PERJURY AND SPURIOUS PITTS PAPERS CHARGED AS AGENTS SEIZE HART

Former SmithAccountant Posts $15,000 Bonds to Win Release.

JUNE 4 IS DESIGNATED FOR HEARING OF CASE

Not-Guilty Plea Is Entered for Accused Man on Arraignment.

Deputy United States marshals last night invaded the halls of the fashionable Shoreham Apartments to arrest Henry O. Hart, dpaper and debonair former F. H. Smith Co. accountant, on a United States Commissioner's warrant charging him with perjury, with inducing another to commit perjury and with bringing into the District of Columbia 70 "spurious and false documents" for use in hte trial of G. Bryan Pitts, former heda of the Smith company.

Hart, surprised by the latest move of the Department of Justice to round up those responsible for allegedly manufactured documents for use by Pitts in his defense, agreed to accompany the marshals after they had read the warrant.

He was taken to the marshal's office and held there until Commissioner Needham C. Turnage could reach his office. Pending arrival of Turnage, Hart communicated with George Horning, an attorney, and asked that he be present at the araignment.

Commissioner Enters Plea.

Inability of Horning to attend the meeting caused a slight halt in the proceedings. Hart was unwilling to enter a plea until he had consulted with his attorney. For that reason, Commissioner Turnage entered a "not guilty" plea with the reservation that the pleading was not a waiver of any of Hart's rights, and also that the plea could be changed or withdrawn by Hart at any time. The hearing was adjourned when Commissioner Turnage accepted a $15,000 bond posted by Milton S. Kronheim, professional bondsman, and set a further hearing forJune 4.

On the way to the hearing room, Hart tried to avoid newspaper photographers by placing his hat over his face. "How do you like my hat?" he asked the cameraman.

Later he agreed to pose for a picture with his bondaman, and Deputy Marshals John J. Clarkson and Arthur Blatcher, who arrested him.

Three Charges Listed.

The first count in the warrant charges that Hart on December 13 and 14, 1930, committed perjury in the District Supreme Court. The second count charges that on the same days he "did unlawfully and feloniously" induce another to falsely testify under oath, while the third count alleges that between September 1, 1930, and December 23, 1930, he conspired, agreed and confederated with G. Bryan Pitts and others to obstruct justice, in a matter pending in the District Supreme Court.

The count further charges that in "furtherance of said conspiracy" Hart conveyed into the District 70 "spurious and false documents" when he knew "said documents were to be used in the case of G. Bryon Pitts and others."

Neil Burkinshaw, special assistant United States Attorney General, who assisted Nugent Dodds in trying the case, signed the warrant, which was obtained early in the day.

The arrest of Hart was to forestall a possible departure from the city pending a grand jury return. The latter body is now considering certain angles of the Pitts defense and was yesterday busily engaged sifting evidence gathered by Federal agents.

In asking the court several weeks ago to permit him to present the case to the grand jury, Mr. Dodds informed the District Supreme Court that the matter related to the manner of the preparation of documents used in Pitts' defense.

Typewriters and Records Seized.

Two typewriters seized in Pitts' palatial home at Palm Beach, Fla., when agents of the Income Tax Bureau raided the estate in search of evidence, may form an important part in the presentation of testimony before the grand jury.

The Department of Justice yesterday began its second attempt to indict Pitts for perjury on the basis of documentary evidence he presented at his trial several months ago. The two typewriters are believed by experts of the department to be the ones used by some one in the preparation of the voluminous documents utilized by Pitts in his defense.

Examination of the documents and the specimens of writing from the machine are said to have coincided.

Seven Trunks Appear.

Seven trunks also were taken into the grand jury room yesterday. It was said that these trunks were seized in the same raid that netted the typewriters. Many papers relating to the Pitts trial were found in the trunks, and they will be used to further the allegation that Pitts might have presented spurious documents to aid him in his defense. Pitts is now serving fourteen years in jail.

Witnesses yesterday were Emory Coblentz, C. Elbert Annadale and John H. Edwards, the latter two being convicted in the same trial with Pitts. They are now serving jail sentences.

Red Cross Celebrates 50th Year of Mercy

Hoover, Hughes and Max Huber, of Geneva, Laud Work of Organization at Anniversary Dinner; Tribute Paid Clara Barton.

(Associated Press.)

The American Red Cross, swift courier of mercy to those in distress, last night celebrated its fiftieth anniversary at a dinner attended by President Hoover and other notablees.

In an address, President Hoover paid high tribute to the founders and leaders of the organization, and described the Red Cross as "one of the most beautiful flowers of the American spirit and the American democracy."

Judge Max Huber, of Geneva, president of the International Red Cross Committee, said the organization had given relief to "suffering friends and to suffering enemies alike," and praised it as an effective agency for peace.

"The American Red Cross," Chief Justice Hughes said, "represents the united voluntary effort of the American people in the ministry of mercy. I is the finest and most effective expression of the American heart."

All three exalted Miss Clara Barton, at whose Washington home the organization was founded a half century ago, and who served as its first president.

Another speaker, Miss Mabel Boardman, the present secretary, however, described the Red Cross before its reorganization in 1905 as "one without much form and void, without

WHEAT ACREAGE CUT REJECTED BY SOVIET

Proposes Broad Scheme to Limit Exports Instead; Conference Split.

London, May 21 (A.P.).—Russia's delegation to the world wheat conference today issued a statement definitely rejecting the American plan for restricted acreage as suggested by Samuel R. McKelvie and proposing instead a broad scheme upon which Russia would be inclined to enter a world agreement limiting exports.

The announcement enlivened an otherwise dull day of routine committee meetings, but what its effect will be on tomorrow's open meeting of the conference was conjectural. Some of the delegates, although they refrained from commenting on the note itself, said they believed it would prolong the conference at least into next week.

The Russian viewpoint was made pretty clear yesterday in committee session and today's statement amplified it. The immediate result of its publication was to divide the conference into two camps, at least under the surface, one supporting the quota system and the other holding out against it. The United States is in the latter.

Mr. McKelvie has made it clear that his country is definitely aligned against the quota system.

Russia wants her old position as the leading wheat exporting nation, and the Danubian states, whose production fell off during the war, support her. The opposition is likely to include Canada, Argentina and Australia.

The Russian statement, signed by Isidore Lubimoff, does not commit the delegation to any definite proposal, but rather places the responsibility for success or failure of the conference with the large exporting countries, including the United States.

"It is necessary to emphasize," the statement said, "that the establishment of a scheme based on quotas can be acceptable only if the largest wheat exporting countries will participate."

The other delegates declined to comment on the import of that paragraph.

The statement referred to Russia's willingness to accept a quota system and said, "but it must be realized that our wheat is one of the main sources for covering our liabilities in connection with our imports, and adequate credits for financing wheat which

FALL WILL APPEAL BRIBERY SENTENCE

Review of Case, Involving Prison Term and Fine, Will Be Sought.

(Associated Press.)

With revived hope, Albert B. Fall has decided to renew his long contest against his conviction of accepting a bribe while Secretary of the Interior in the Harding Cabinet.

From his home at Three Rivers, N. Mex., Fall has instructed his attorneys here to apply to the Supreme Court for a review of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals decision affirming his bribery conviction and upholding a sentence of a year's imprisonment and a $100,000 fine.

Fall recently announced that because of illness and advanced age he would abandon his contest against conviction of receiving a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, wealthy oil man. Doheny was acquitted of giving the money.

Frank J. Hogan, one of Fall's counsel, in a formal statement, made known his client's reconsideration.

"Mr. Fall's attorneys strongly advised him to authorize them to seek a review by the Supreme Court of the judgment against him," Hogan said. "Apparently temporarily weary of his long fight, and because of the hopelessly bad state of his health, Mr. Fall first determined not to follow the advice of counsel and early this month instructed them not to ask the Supreme Court to review the judgment against him.

"Upon further consideration, Mr. Fall has now decided to yield to the advice of his attorneys and to the importunities of his family and friends. The latter felt that the case should not stop short of the Supreme Court.

"Acting upon definite instructions just received from Mr. Fall, counsel are engaged in preparing a petition to be filed with the Supreme Court next week. The time allowed by an order of the District Court of Appeals for Fall's attorneys to file petition for review expires May 28. Mr. Fall's petition will be filed before that date."

When Mr. Fall made his previous announcement, he said:

"I am an old man and for the last eight years have known little but trouble. I am a poor man and I have no money for further legal defense."

Hogan said the matter of financing the appeal had not been discussed.

At the conclusion of Fall's trial in the District of Columbia Supreme Court in October, 1929, it was announced that Doheny, lifelong friend of the former Secretary, would stand the expense of his defense.

Ad Writing Prize Contest Ends at Midnight, May 30

Selection of Sixth Week Winners Delayed Until Sunday by Judging Difficulties Caused by Large Volume of Excellent Entries.

The $10,000 Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest closes Saturday, May 30, at midnight. Ads can be submitted until that time and will be considered in judging for the $3,000 grand prize. To be eligible for this grand award each contestant must write at least one ad about each of the 35 participating concerns.

If you have not kept a record of the number of ads you have written, be sure and start right now writing ads about each of these firms. Don't miss the golden opportunity of winning that $1,000 grand prize simply because you only wrote about 34 of the 35 participating concerns. Give yourself every opportunity to win by writing many, many ads about each concern.

The luncheon for the participating concerns and judges was held at the Wardman Park Hotel yesterday. Through the courtesy of the Fairfax Farms Dairies, artists from popular broadcasting stations whose pictures appear on another page in this paper entertained the guests. Cool, refreshing bottles of nourishing chocolate milk were also donated by this concern to those attending the luncheon. Souvenirs from the Merchants Transfer & Storage Co. were appreciated by guests.

The excellent, well-written thousands of ads which were submitted during the sixth week of the campaign made it impossible for judges to select the price-winning ads which we announced would be published in today's paper. Due to their inability to make these selections for a few

PAN-EUROPEAN GROUP FIGHTS ECONOMIC ILLS

SESSIONS TO RESUME EARLY IN SEPTEMBER

Tariff, Credits, Unemployment Among Problems to Get Special Attention.

Geneva, May 21 (A.P.).—Having sketched an outline of procedure for constructing a program of general European economic relief, the Pan-European commission adjourned tonight to meet again on September 3.

The outline, as adopted with numerous reservations, assigns various elements in the economic situation—such as tariffs, credits, unemployment and customs preference for cereals—to special committees which were charged to concentrate study on them immediately.

It creates a coordinating committee which meets in Geneva July 6 to receive committee proposals and whip them into a harmonious general scheme of relief and rehabilitation. The results will be reported at the September plenary session for action.

The final sitting of the commission was the occasion for the signing by representatives of thirteen states of a convention setting up an international agricultural mortgage credit company, which was described as "the first child" of the commission's labors. Three other signatures were promised.

Russian Plan Reiterated.

Before adjournment, Maxin Litvinoff, commissar of foreign affairs of Soviet Russia, briefly reiterated the Russian proposals for a general pact of economic nonaggression, urging its immediate acceptance of the projected protocol. Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson, of Great Britain; Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, and Julius Curtius, German foreign minister, voiced sympathy with its principles, and the proposal was referred to a coordinating committee for consideration.

The commission's session lasted one week. Its salient chacteristics were:

First, manifestation of deep and general concern over the acuteness and extent of the economic crisis and dire need for concerted international action for relief.

Second, the variety of relief schemes proposed and their apparent impossibility of meeting the needs of every country by a single scheme.

More Cordial Atmosphere.

Third, a warmer and more cordial atmosphere in relations between the Soviet delegation and league members' representatives;

Fourth, appreciation of M. Briand's leadership and the general wish that he will continue to preside over the movement for European solidarity.

The two concrete accomplishments of the session were the launching of the International Farm Credits Co., designed to bring emergency help to European agriculturists, and adoption of the procedure by which it is hoped to produce a general remedial scheme in September.

All members of the Pan-European Commission will be represented on the coordinating commission which meets here in July.

BISHOP CANNON NOT TO REVEAL WORKERS' LIST

Letter to Chairman Nye Says He Will Refuse to Bare Names.

QUESTIONS MOTIVES IN PROPOSED INQUIRY

Fears Intimidation of Men Who Aided Him; Denies Danger in Delay.

(Associated Press.)

Bishop James Cannon, jr., denied yesterday that the statute of limitations could apply to his use of 1928 anti-Smith campaign funds which is being investigated by the Senate campaign funds committee.

Chairman Nye of the committee recently refused the Southern Methodist churchman's request for postponement of further hearings until September 20 on the ground the statute against prosecution would become effective on September 18.

Even if the statute could be invoked, Bishop Cannon said in a letter to Chairman Nye, contributions made later would "give ample margin for hearings begun on September 20."

Questions Object of Quiz.

The bishop said his correspondence indicated that many persons think the purpose underlying the Senate resolution directing the investigation "is an effort to use your committee as an instrument to please Congressman Tinkham's (Representative Tinkham, Republican, Massachusetts) wet, Roman Catholic, Boston constituency, to gratify the anger and wounded vanity of certain Virginia Democrats, and to secure, if possible, the list of names of those who worked in Virginia cities, districts and precincts to defeat Alfred E. Smith, in order that, if possible, they may be so intimidated and harrassed that they will fear to do such work again."

"That list," he continued, "will certainly not be furnished by me."

The committee is investigating a complaint by Mr. Tinkham that the bishop failed to account for a major portion of the $65,300 given him by E. C. Jameson, New York financier, for use against the presidential candidacy of former Gov. Smith in Virginia.

Wants to Go Abroad.

Bishop Cannon said he had called on Senator Nye on May 16 to learn the date of future hearings, as he desired to be present, and that the chairman told him he did not think it probable additional hearings would be held until the latter part of August.

"I then said," he continued, "that if the hearings would not be resumed until the latter part of August I would be glad if they could be delayed until about the 20th of September, as I desired to attend important church and prohibition conferences in Europe. I gave you the dates * * * and said that by taking a fast steamer I could get home by September 20."

Bishop Cannon said Senator Nye's reference to the statute "clearly" indicated "that the chairman of the committee does consider that the committee is acting in the capacity of a grand jury investigating a complaint that I have committed a crime for which I must be indicted before the expiration of the three-year limit."

The bishop has challenged the authority of the committee to inquire into his disposition of the funds.

Rheem Given Guard At Creditors' Inquiry

Police Keep Watch After Report of Threat Against Head of Bankrupt Firm; Note Allotment Proposal Is Discussed.

An effort to allot $51,000 of unreleased Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. notes to the mother of one of the officers, in exchange for released and unpaid securities in its vaults, was made by officers of the concern a few days before it went into bankruptcy, it was charged yesterday.

Edmund D. Rheem, executive vice president of the company, admitted discussing such an allotment with John H. Holmead, treasurer of the company, when examined by creditors yesterday. He testified that Mrs. Alice G. Holmead, mother of the company's treasurer, was to receive the allotment in exchange for her released securities. Holmead, called to the stand, declared the transaction was never completed.

For the first time since the examination got under way, policemen yesterday were assigned to the hearing room, following rumored threats against Rheem overheard by Policeman Bert Sheldon, of the First Precinct. Sheldon remained in the offices throughout the hearing, and Policemen D. M. Vandizer and E. S. Grayson were stationed in front of the building, within calling distance.

Acting Capt. Frank Varney said a similar guard would be placed at the offices when hearings are resumed at 10 o'clock this morning. He said he considered there was nothing unusual about his action; that he was merely taking "necessary precautions."

The 50 or 60 creditors who gathered for yesterday's hearing were orderly. There has never been any demonstration against Rheem since the hearings first opened, when the youthful executive was hissed as he entered the hearing room. Policeman Sheldon, however, said he heard rumors of threats as he passed a group in front of the offices yesterday.

A clash between Marcus Borchardt, attorney, and Referee in Bankruptcy Fred J. Eden marked the opening of yesterdays hearing. Borchardt had subpenaed officers of Riggs, Security Savings & Commercial and the Federal-American Banks to produce bank records pertaining to Rheem's personal accounts, an item that Eden had previously ruled is not embraced by the hearing.

Aroused when officers of two of the banks appeared, Eden said he considered Borchardt's action showed "the grossest disrespect," adding that he "had a mind" to certify Borchardt for contempt of court. Borchardt indicated he would apply to the District Supreme Court for a review of Eden's ruling.

Francis G. Addison, jr., president of the Security, Savings & Commercial Bank, and Kenneth F. Brooks, assistant trust officer of Riggs, nevertheless were questioned briefly by Eden before they were dismissed. Eden asked if they had any personal knowledge of any relation between the personal accounts of Rheem and the accounts of Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. They replied that they had not.

INTRUDER BEATS GIRL OVER HEAD WITH PIPE IN ASSAULT AT HOTEL

Police Fail to Link Middleton to Murder

Virtually Cleared in Cunningham Death, Patrolman Is Still Detained for Hijacking Probe; Sweeney Will Face Grand Jury.

Police last night virtually cleared Patrolman Wallace J. Middleton of any connection with the fatal shooting of Jack Cunningham.

Middleton, although practically exonerated of direct connection with the Cunningham shooting, is still held for investigation in connection with hi-jackings in the last few months.

Lieut. John H. Fowler, ballistics expert, yesterday submitted a report to headquarters that Middleton's gun had not fired the .38-caliber shells which were found in an alley on I street near Fourteenth street, where Cunningham was dealt his death wound.

Lieut. Fowler also examined the .45-caliber steel-jacketed bullet taken from Cunningham and will compare it with the .45-caliber bullets fired at Dr. Don Carlos Leiva, Charge d'Affaires of the El Salvadorean Legation, by liquor thieves two weks ago.

Pictures of Cunningham and Middleton will be shown today to Dr. Leiva, in an attempt to identify them as the assailants whom he surprised while in the act of looting the liquor stores at the legation.

Middleton and Cunningham have been identified in connection with the hi-jacking of liquor from a speakeasy on I street on March 8, and police be-

DE BOE PROSECUTOR SOUGHT IN SLAYING

Los Angeles Man, Missing, Is Linked in Killing of Editor and Politician.

Los Angeles, May 21 (U.P.).—Police announced tonight that witnesses who saw the fleeing killer of Herbert Spencer, magazine editor, and Charles Crawford, politician, had identified the picture of David Harris Clark, former deputy district attorney, as the fugitive.

Clark has fled from his home. Detective Lieut. Frank "Lefty" James, who went to question the attorney, said, Chief of Police Roy E. Steckel immediately ordered all officers to search for Clark.

Lieut. James said that Lucille Fisher, Crawford's secretary; Billie Rohrbeck, employed in an adjoining office, and Ray Radke, real estate man in the same firm with Crawford, had identified Clark's picture.

It was Clark who successfully prosecuted Daisy De Boe for the theft of $850 from Clara Bow. He also aided the prosecution of the Julian Petroleum cases and gained prominence through his successful prosecution of Albert Marco, former vice leader of Los Angeles, for assault with a deadly weapon.

Clark recently resigned his post under District Attorney Buron R. Fitts in order to run for the office of municipal judge in the election May 12 last. He polled 39,280 votes, against 51,379 totaled by Charles B. MacCoy, but still sufficient to gain a place on the general election ballot June 2.

Los Angeles, May 21 (A.P.).—Mrs. David Clark, wife of former Deputy District Attorney Clark, was questioned at police headquarters tonight in connection with the double slaying yesterday.

The interrogation of Mrs. Clark behind closed doors began shortly after District Attorney Fitts had announced that the man wanted for the killings is a former deputy district attorney in his office.

"The man we are seeking," Fitts said, "resigned from my office last February by request."

A coroner's jury late today decided that Crawford and Herbert Spencer, killed as they conferred with a stranger in Crawford's offices, died from gunshot wounds inflicted with homicidal intent. No suspect was named.

At the inquest numerous witnesses related that a man none of them knew joined Crawford and Spencer in the rear room of a real estate concern in Hollywood, and walked clamly from

TWO BUILDERS HELD IN WORKER'S DEATH

Rose Construction Officials to Face Grand Jury on Scaffold Accident.

Two officials of the W. P. Rose Construction Co., of North Carolina, were released under $1,000 bond each yesterday, after a coroner's jury had recommended they be held for the grand jury in connection with the death last Friday of Nathaniel Mozon, 23 years old, colored laborer, who was fatally injured when a scaffold collapsed at the Stuart Junior High School.

Charges of manslaughter were placed against the men, Raymond N. Rouse, superintendent of construction, and O. N. Bordeaux, formerly employed by the Rose company as an assistant foreman, by Detective Sergeant Charles Mansfield.

After the coroner's jury had considered the case for the third time, a verdict was finally reached yesterday following more than half an hour's deliberation. It was brought out in testimony at the inquest that Rouse, who was in direct charge of the work at the school, had been warned several times that the scaffold, which fell resulting in Mozon's death, was unsafe.

Bordeaux, who left the company the day following the accident, was in charge of the hauling work in which Mozon and two other men were engaged when the planking of the scaffold broke, hurling the trio to the ground.

Two District building inspectors told the coroner's jury at the second session of the inquest last Tuesday that they had warned Rouse and Bordeaux that the old boards on the scaffold should be replaced "before some one gets hurt."

Joseph Duncan, colored, of 217 G street northeast, one of the three men who fell from the scaffold, yesterday told the coroner's jury that Mozon, Raymond Harris, another laborer, and himself, were wheeling a large stone down a runway from an elevator to the scaffold, when the accident occurred.

"The first I knew of anything happening," Duncan declared, "was when I heard a board crack, and all three of us fell to the ground with the wheelbarrow and stone."

The stone weighed about 500 pounds, and as Mozon hit the ground, it struck him on the head. He died a short time later.

Asked by Assistant Attorney Milford F. Schwartz how long he had been employed by the Rose Co., Duncan replied he had worked for the 600 Planes Stage Review, Thrill Chicago Thousands

Army's Air Fleet, in Spectacular Exhibition, Opens "Bag of Tricks," Returns to Ohio and Will Go to New York Today for More Stunts.

Chicago, May 21 (A.P.).—The Army's fighting fleet of the air passed in review down the shores of Lake Michigan today and then streaked back to Dayton and Cleveland.

In the brief space of an hour Chicago saw its most spectacular aerial exhibition, 600 planes in formation flying down the lake front and then battle maneuvers by three "crack" outfits of bombers, pursuit and attack ships.

To the Army it was a problem of coordination, the safe and swift movement of a great body of men and equipment; but hundreds of thousands of persons who swarmed to the lake front and jammed the roofs of buildings were looking for thrills and they were not disappointed.

First, there were more airplanes than any of them had ever seen before, flying in loose formation because of strong winds and treacherous air currents, but impressive nevertheless. Groups of from 50 to 70 attack, bombardment, pursuit or observation planes passed in quick succession with press and photographers planes darting over and under them.

The armada, which comprised all of the Army's fighting planes, passed so quickly that the crowds hardly knew the show had started. The first outfit to pass down the lake—the third attack group by Maj. Davenport Johnson, who was in active command of the whole corps, appeared alongside the reviewing stand on the Stevens Hotel, 15 minutes before the parade was scheduled to arrive and by the time set for the head of the col-

Powhatan Resident Hit as She Answers Rap at Room Door.

SCREAMS OF VICTIM FRIGHTEN ASSAILANT

Untouched Purse Indicates Latest Crime Lacked Robbery Motive.

A new mystery was added last night to the series of crimes confronting police when Miss Caroline R. Arnold, 30-year-old department store employe, was beaten over the head in her room at the Powhatan Hotel, Eighteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue.

The young woman was struck with a blunt instrument which she believes was a length of piping before her unidentified assailant, apparently frightened by her screams, made his get-away simply by walking down the steps from the sixth-floor apartment and going through the main entrance to the street.

Miss Arnold declined hospital attention and was treated at the hotel by a private physician for scalp lacerations.

Man Knocks at Door.

"I was in my room alone," she said, "when there was a knock at the door. I thought it was my roommate, Miss Eve Lumdstedt, who I was expecting, but when I asked who was there a man's voice replied that he had a package for me.

"Expecting a package, I opened the door. Hardly had I turned the knob when a man, about 30 years old, forced his way inside and grabbed me by the arm. In his other hand I could see he held an object, about six inches long, which appeared to be a pipe.

"When I screamed, he struck me on the head and when I continued to cry out, he struck me again. Then I must have fainted, for I remember nothing more."

No Parties Reported.

Miss Arnold said she could think of no reason for the assault, adding that she has no enemies and has not been involved in any trouble.

E. C. Owen, manager of the hotel, which is only two blocks from the White House, declared that Miss Arnold and Miss Lumdstedt have been ideal guests at the hostelry. They have held no parties, nor have there been any calls for them.

Miss Arnold has been stopping at the Powhatan since April, when she came from her home in Detroit to work for the Foster Information Bureau at Woodward & Lothrop's Department store. Her roommate, who is from St. Augustine, Fla., and also works at the Foster Bureau, joined her several weeks ago.

Purse Was Untouched.

Grafton Alexander, a bellboy, told police that about twenty minutes before the assault he encountered a stranger on the seventh floor, one flight above Miss Arnold's suite. Alexander thought the man was a guest and thought nothing more of the meeting.

The man did not take anything from the room, Miss Arnold's purse, which was in plain view, was untouched.

A taxicab driver who told headquarters and Third Precinct police that he saw a man, answering the assailant's description, leave by the Eighteenth street entrance a few moments after Miss Arnold was beaten, was hustled into one of the police cars which responded and taken for a cruise through the neighborhood to search for the man.

The hunt proved unavailing, however.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Bacharach said yesterday Democratic inactivity in demanding tariff investigations was proof of insincerity in the party's expressed desire for lower rates.

The New Jersey Republican said only four Democratic senators and no members of the House, who voted against the tariff bill, had taken advantage of the provision permitting members of Congress to call for a Tariff Commission review of rates.

Retail Food Price Declared on Wane

(United Press.)

The market basket is getting easier to fill these days, and grocery bills are decreasing, according to Labor Department figures.

Retail prices of commodities dropped 2.4 per cent last month. Retail prices of food only, as surveyed in 51 cities by the Government, dropped about 2 per cent from March 15 to April 15. Eighty-two cents now will buy on the average as much meats and groceries as a dollar would a year ago.

The heaviest food decreases in the 30-day period on the average of the cities were, butter, 6 per cent; coffee, 5; eggs and cornmeal, 4; plate beef, oleomargarine, cheese, bread, flour, navy beans, pork and beans, canned corn, canned peas, canned tomatoes, and bananas, 3. Potatoes, onions, hens, oranges, pork chops and leg of lamb increased in price.

MIDDLETON FACES HI-JACKING INQUIRY

lieve they may have been implicated in the legation affair.

Middleton's virtual exoneration was effected by four witnesses, who yesterday told police that he was in front of a delicatessen store on Fourteenth street, near I street, while the shots rang out near Cunningham's house.

Charles E. Ford, Middleton's attorney, said Patrick X. Kinnon, of Fourteenth street, near I street northwest, saw Middleton in front of the delicatessen when he heard the shots. Three other witnesses have been found, Mr. Ford said, who will place Middleton away from the shooting scene.

With the exception of Middleton and Mrs. Cunningham, all suspects in the case have been released. George W. Mattingly, held for investigation, yesterday was freed from the First Precinct.

Believe Two Were Implicated.

Discovery of a .38-caliber shell and the slugs from the .45-caliber automatic in the alley has led police to believe that more than one man was implicated in the shooting.

Tag numbes of cars seen in the vicinity have been checked by police, but nothing was revealed to connect them with the shooting.

Sweeny Ordered Held.

Elmer J. "Bulldog" Sweeney was sent to the District Jail yesterday afternoon after a coroner's jury, investigating the shooting of Talley Day, ordered him held for the action of the grand jury.

Several witnesses who were in a speakeasy on M street near Fifteenth street Sunday night when the shooting occurred testified regarding the shooting.

Joseph C. Williams, alias Harry Conway, alleged proprietor of the place; John C. Kelly, a waiter, and Joseph Demar, alias Joseph Poglioli, and Detective Sergt. John A. Flaherty, of the homicide squad, testified to events leading to the shooting.

They said Sweeney and another man, still sought, were playing cards with Day and others when Day and the man at large threw "gin bucks" at each other. Day, they said, drew a gun and fired at Sweeney's companion, then pointed the gun at Sweeney, who fired, hitting Day.

Princess Anne, Md., May 21 (A.P.).—The joke is on the man who stole Warren G. Painter's automobile and his sample cases.

Painter, a shoe salesman, left the car parked in front of a hotel here, and found the next morning it had been stolen. Later it was found abandoned and burned, the sample cases gone. But all the shoes—about a gross of them, said Painter today—were for the left foot only.

GENEVA CONFERENCE ENDED BY DELEGATES

the plan of procedure adopted tonight is the proposal for preferential customs rates for European cereals. Mr. Henderson made a flat reservation to this plan in voicing Great Britain's unchanged opposition to such a theory. In doing so he defended the interests of the wheat-growing dominions of Canada and Australia.

Litvinov also rejected this feature and the British and Soviet stands were supported by Denmark and Norway.

Soviet representatives were placed on all committees created by the commission, but Foreign Minister Litvinov announced his country wished no representation on the unemployment committee because there was no unemployment in Russia. M. Briand retorted that the Soviets therefore ought to be just the experts needed, but he agreed to replace Russia by another representative.

PRINTS ONLY CLEW IN LABOR SHOOTING

Official of Union Still Is in Serious Condition as Attacker Is Sought.

Fingerprinst found on a tray handled by the gunman who seriously wounded Frank Langdon, 72-year-old labor union official in the Robin Hood Cafeteria are the only tangible lead in possession of police that may lead to the solution of the attack.

Even these prints police believe, may not be the prints of the gunman and may possibly be those of the counter clerk who handled the tray. All numbers of cars given by witnesses who saw the overalled assailint leap into an automobile and escape have been checked and eliminated.

Mr. Langdon is still in a serious condition in Emergency Hospital from a bullet wound near the temple, which cost him the sight of one eye. Hospital officials said last night his condition was slightly improved, although it is still serious.

The shooting occasioned an attack on the District Attorney's office by Col. James Easby-Smith, attorney for the International Union of Operating Engineers, who charged that the District Attorney's office invited the assault by dropping an assault case against a woman and thre men.

The attack referred to by Col. Easby-Smith was the alleged horsewhipping of Charles E. Haury, union supervisor, in front of the organization's office at Tenth and K streets on March 31.

In this case, Mrs. Robert Stevens and three men were arrested, but the district attorney's office refused to prosecute the case, saying it was not the policy of the office to air labor disputes in court.

District Attorney Leo A. Rover refused to comment on Col. Easby-Smith's charges.

The internal troubles of the organization began when Henry E. Fish, a former business agent of one of the locals, and William I. Green, a suspended member, filed an injunction suit charging Arthur M. Huddell, president of the organization, with misusing their authority and misapplying funds.

Harry F. Barger, attorney for four suspended Washington engineers, filed a suit last week to intervene in a suit filed in December, 1929, in New York on behalf of several suspended members.

Col. Easby-Smith argued against the Barger suit in court yesterday. In this suit the officers of the union are charged with racketeering, allegedly having "robbed and mulcted members."

The organization's troubles, Col. Easby-Smith said, dates back to the time when a local branch of the union sought to keep the membership of the union down to 90, while 400 were seeking admission. Officers of the local union were suspended, he said, and their places have been filled by supervisors chosen by the national organization. Since then, he said, the membership has increased to 400. Mr. Huddell and John Possehl, general secretary of the union, were with Mr. Langdon when the man opened fire on them. Mr. Huddell was saved from injury by a book he carried in his pocket which stoped a bullet.

State Group Hears Bicentennial Talk

Bloom and Others Speak at West Virginians' Gathering.

George Washington needs to be "humanized," Representative Sol Bloom (Republican), of New York, associate director of the National Bicentennial Commission, late night told a mass meeting of West Virginians in the caucus room of the House Office Building.

Former Gov. E. F. Morgan, of West Virginia, made an address in which he decried recent protests of Army aerial maneuvers over the Eastern seaboard. He said the same organizations which are now protesting, objected to America's preparedness plans in 1915.

Other speakers introduced by Gov. Morgan, who presided as chairman, were John L. Bateman, secretary of the West Virginia Society; John W. Smith, president; W. E. Hoffheins, of the All States Society; Mrs. Rose I. McGraw, of the West Virginia Commission; Stuart F. Reed, former representative from West Virginia; and D. W. Gall, chairman of the committee on arrangements. A program was presented by the Overseas Band of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

The Modern Captain Kidd

WHERE once the famous buccaneer used to put in for stores and water and where, tradition says, the sea rover buried some of his piratical loot and pieces of eight, a new kind of a pirate found haven until prohibition enforcement officers swooped on him. In the Sunday Magazine Section of The Washington Post is told the inside story of the capture of one of the biggest of the rum-runners at Taylors Island, the source of the contrabrand supplies for New York and Philadelphia.

HARWOOD PARK, who, prohibition agents say, operated the wireless between shore and the rum-runners' "mother ship."

A gigantic business, which operates with every modern invention from $100,000 speed boats to a wireless station operated by a debonnair youth was disclosed, say enforcement officers. The facts assemble themselves with the breathless rush of fiction and the tale is permeated with the salt of the sea and shrouded in a fog of mystery.

right of guardianship of public gifts, and with just loss of public confidence."

The dinner was the beginning of a year's jubilee celebration. Several hundred Red Cross chapters held concurrent meetings throughout the United States in honor of the occasion.

Chief Justice Hughes said the American Red Cross knows no partisanship. "In the perfection of its cooperation, there is no blemish of distinctions by reason of race or creed or political philosophy.

"However we may differ in all things else, in the activities of the Red Cross we are a united people. The American Red Cross is not only first in war but first in peace. The American people rely upon its ministrations in every great catastrophe. It has given its aid in over 1,000 disasters.

"When, as we hope, war will be no more, still the Red Cross, in the countless activities of relief and rehabilitation, will continue to function as the organized compassion of our country."

American Red Cross Work Is Lauded by President

The Red Cross is one of the most beautiful flowers of the American spirit and the American democracy. It represents our people in their most generous, unselfish and spontaneously warm-hearted character. And it represents them in the most effective exercise of their powers of organization and self-government.

Supported wholly by the voluntary gifts of the people, it is managed by the voluntary service of high-minded private citizens, and yet it occupies a unique position in the public mind as a truly national institution, a living organism of the people, vitalized by their affection, fed by their gladly given money, and firmly rooted in their trust.

Through the loftiest of all spiritual qualities—charity—it has become the guardian of the people from suffering in times of disaster. It has commanded the recognition of governments, its charters are conferred by special act, its position in international activities is guaranteed by treaty. By its very purpose it compels the respect for its own flag and its own passports.

50 Years of Evolution.

The 50 years of the life of the Red Cross, which the American people celebrate today, have been years of evolution of an impulse and an idea and a method to produce this greatest institution in alleviation of human suffering that we have ever known.

Its beginnings were small, and it grew because it expressed the humanity and the generosity and the practical helpfulness natural to our people. And, like so many of the benign social agencies that bless our democracy, it sprang from the mind and the heart of a woman.

Clara Barton was in her own person and her own life all that the Red Cross has since become. She in turn gained much of her inspiration from another great woman—Florence Nightingale.

The magnificent structure of today grew up around Miss Barton's passionate pity for the sick and the distressed and her practical genius and energy in their relief. She was the ministering angel of the battlefields and hospitals of the Civil War.

Lived Like a Soldier.

When peace returned she still lived like a soldier, with her field tent and equipment always packed and ready to respond instantly to the call of duty.

The Johnstown flood found her ready, and within an hour after it was reported she was on her way to the stricken city. She responded to a thousand such calls, but her service on the battlefield and her service at Johnstown especially captured the public imagination, and it is these two things that have largely directed the development of the character of the American Red Cross.

It has evolved into an agency for the nursing of the wounded in war and for the relief of the victims of disaster in time of peace.

Clara Barton did not look to Government for support for her work. Governments are always too slow, frequently too shortsighted, to meet the sudden, sharp demands of critical emergencies in human suffering. She depended upon the instant response of the individual human heart to finance the instant need. This gave her the flexibility and freedom of private initiative in her work.

The Red Cross has grown in this tradition. Hundreds of times it has appealed to the American people for funds to meet an immediate situation, and invariably the American people have immediately responded. It has raised millions in a week when millions were needed.

Traditional Power Illustrated.

No finer illustration has ever been given of the tremendous practical power of pure and unselfish emotion than these outbursts of American generosity to finance relief of suffering caused by conflagration, flood, earthquake and drought.

No finer illustration has ever been given of the tremendous practical capacity of an organized free citizenry than the skill and efficiency with which the Red Cross has administered this relief. This combination of the warm heart and the cool head in action is a perpetual source of just pride to the American people, for it represents them at their best.

A woman founded the Red Cross and a woman has enlarged its usefulness. Miss Mabel Boardman enjoys a deserved national honor for her tireless and effective work in the enlargement of its powers. The men of America, too, have had their indispensable part in its growth.

Judge John Barton Payne has earned equal honor for his long years of devoted leadership across a score of disasters and for his steadfastness in holding the organization to its national ideal as a nongovernmental agency for the free expression of the private generosity and humanity of the people. His wisdom and courage and zeal are beyond praise.

Heart and Soul of People.

But the greater glory of the Red Cross belongs to the people themselves. It is a living embodiment of their heart and soul. It has lived and grown because it is a natural outgrowth of their spiritual impulse. Its sap is drawn from the soil of their spirit, its leaves are collared with their thought, and its flowers are fragrant of their sweetest emotion. It is as truly theirs as the flag or the public school.

They wished it, and they willed it into being. It grows with their growth. They support it as spontaneously as they support the church or the lodge. They control it as simply and as naturally as they control the operations of the district school. They will thus support it and control it so long as it continues what it is: the natural repository of their generosity, the effective practical instrument of their eager wish to relieve human suffering. It will remain, as it has been and is, a chief glory and pride of the American democracy.

Clara Barton Paid Memorial Tribute

Indoor Observance Forced by Threatening Weather; Governor Speaks.

North Oxford, Mass., May 21 (A.P.).—At a small white house with rose-draped portal and flagstone walks, perched high on the verdant hills of North Oxford, the shrine of Clara Barton, founder of the American Red Cross, several hundred persons gathered this afternoon to honor her memory and commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the Red Cross.

Threatening weather forced the observance indoors and the barn, recently restored, was utilized. Time-stained banners which accompanied Miss Barton on her errands of mercy to foreign lands adorned its weather-beaten walls and an illuminated cross hung beneath the beams, a symbol of her work and her life.

Because of pressure of business, Gov. Ely was unable to attend as a speaker and his address was received by radio from Boston. A loud speaker, set up on the barn, carried his message of tribute.

The Fairfax County Home Demonstration Agents' advisory council, at its regular meeting, made plans for the annual county 4-H Club camp, to be held during the week of June 8 at Camp Kahlert, Md., on the South River. The tentative plans listed by Miss Sara E. Thomas and Miss Belle Burke, demonstration agents, include a course for "The Well-Groomed Girl." Miss Burke and Miss Gertrude Warren, of the extension service, will act as instructors. Mrs. Annie Robey Walker, of Herndon, will have charge of music instruction. The hand-work courses will be supervised by Mrs. James U. Kincheloe of Fairfax; Mrs. Charles Bladen and Mrs. Mason Hirst, of Annandale. In addition to the class work, each day's program will include supervised recreation, led by Miss Dorothy Shererats.

Mrs. Kincheloe was appointed to ask the school board for permission to use the county buses for transportation to the camp, and Mrs. George R. Bready, Mrs. W. J. Cleveland, Mrs. J. Hunter Mack, Mrs. J. U. Kincheloe, Mrs. Marvin Sanders and Mrs. Edmund H. Allen were appointed a committee to take charge of transportation. The advisory council made plans to raise $50 in the various districts of the county to pay the necessary transportation charges.

Mrs. A. Harmon Roberts, of Potters Hill, was elected delegate, and Mrs. E. D. Vosbury and Mrs. E. J. Garber, alternates, as the Fairfax representations to the annual meeting of the Virginia Home Makers Association and Farmers Institute, which will be held during the last week in July at Blacksburg, Va.

Fifty women of the county have signed pledges to take part in the summer garden campaign which is to be conducted this year by the council. A series of visits are planned during July for all 4-H clubs and home demonstration clubs in the county to the demonstration garden at the home of Mrs. Mason Hirst, at Annandale.

The first Fairfax County women's camp will be held this year from August 25 to 28 at Camp Burch, at Bluemont, Va. The cost of this camp will be $1 per day to each woman. All those attending the camp will be asked to bring a contribution of foodstuff.

Mrs. James U. Kincheloe, Mrs. C. W. Oliver, Mrs. Mark Turner, Mrs. Martin T. Webb and Mrs. Marvin Sanders were appointed a committee to assist the county agent, Miss Thomas, with the 4-H exhibits at the annual county fair which is to be held this year in September.

The decision of the Mayor's Court at Falls Church in the case of Milton Anderson, who was found guilty of the possession and transportation of ardent spirits, was upheld yesterday in the Fairfax County Circuit Court by Judge Walter T. Daniel and fined $200 and costs and sentenced to three months in jail.

W. A. Houchens was found guilty in the Fairfax Circuit Court of the second offense of driving while drunk and was fined $100 and costs and six months in jail. Roy Best, of Washington, was found guilty of possession of liquor and was fined $50 and costs by a jury.

FIRE CHIEF HELD AFTER AUTO CRASH

Hyattsville Volunteer Head and Other Driver Face Trial Wednesday.

Noble F. Rushe, chief of the Hyattsville Volunteer Fire Department, was charged with reckless driving yesterday after he wrecked his car in Riverdale while going to a fire. The charges were made by occupants of another car, the driver of which also was arrested on similar charges.

Rushe, rushing to a fire in Branchville, swerved his car to avoid collision with another machine. His automobile went over a six-foot embankment. The driver of the other car was Clarence E. McClelland, of K street northeast near Tenth street. Taken before Judge Robert E. Altemus, of Colmar Manor, each swore out warrants against the other.

Rushe was released on his own recognizance, and McClelland posted bond of $100. Unless withdrawn sooner, the charges will be tried in police court in Hyattsville next Wednesday.

The fire damaged a vacant twelve-room house in Branchville owned by W. R. Harr. The blaze apparently started on a rear stairway and was confined to the upper floors.

Fire companies from Branchville, Berwyn Heights, Bladensburg, Hyattsville and Riverdale attended. The blaze caused reports of incendiarism, as a number of vacant houses in the section have burned recently. Constable Howard Slater is investigating reports that three youths in a District car were seen acting suspiciously at the latest fire.

Pershing avenue in Colmar Manor will be paved throughout its length with funds from bonds now on sale, and seven other streets will receive partial paving, according to plans of town commissioners.

The other streets are Hurley street, Baker avenue, Marshall avenue, Wilson avenue, Lenox avenue, Daniel street and Columbia avenue. If any funds are left after this schedule has been completed, other streets will be improved. A bond issue of $80,000 for paving purposes recently was approved, and the bonds have been advertised for sale. Bids will be opened June 2.

A town ordinance forbidding the discharging of fireworks except on the first four days of July is being framed by Bird H. Dolby, town counsel. The town recently passed a law requiring a license of $50 per year for all dealers in fireworks.

Riverdale councilmen and Edward C. Stewart, fire chief, will meet May 27 to consider purchase of new fire apparatus. Six manufacturers of fire-fighting equipment will bid on new engines.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, former Governor of Wyoming, addressed the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland at a luncheon yesterday by the Democratic Women's Club of Mount Rainier at the Beaver Dam Country Club.

Other guests of honor were Mrs. Mary H. Duvall, president of the United Clubs; Mrs. John G. Whitely, congressional committee woman; Mrs. Elizabeth R. Menefee, national committee woman; Senator Lansdale G. Sasscer and Charles Marbury, member of the House of Delegates.

Preliminary plans for the annual convention were discussed at an executive board meeting before the luncheon and committees were appointed.

Dredging of the Northwest Branch in Bladensburg as a measure of flood control will begin within the next ten days, according to E. G. Duncan, State roads engineer. The work will be done before the widening of the bridge at this point is started.

Contract for the work was awarded to L. R. Colbert, of Fredericksburg, Va., whose bid was $89,586. Seven other bids ranged upward to $118,000. Specifications provide for removal of 27,000 yards of dirt, deepening the channel and widening it to the width of the bridge. Removal of the earth will result in straightening the bed of the stream, facilitating the flow of water.

Rights of way for the dredging have not yet been obtained, according to Mr. Duncan, but no difficulty is anticipated. After changes in the channel have been made the bridge will be widened 10 feet. This will mean a width of 40 feet for the bridge between Cottage City and Bladensburg and 30 feet between Bladensburg and Hyattsville.

C. F. Winslow, district forester; Thomas D. Roberts and Albert Roussel will act as judges of the garden contest to be held soon by the Women's Community Club of Laurel. Arrangements are in the hands of a committee headed by Mrs. George E. Albee and composed of Mrs. Thomas D. Roberts and Mrs. C. F. Winslow. Contestants will be judged in three classes, with prizes in each class.

Mrs. J. Howard Hopkins, president of the club, announced the program committee as follows: Mrs. Albert Roussel, chairman; Mrs. Edward Vogts, Mrs. Howard Barker and Mrs. W. E. Beall.

Dorothy Meighan, of Washington, was fined $50 on a second charge of transporting liquor and paroled on a third charge when she agreed yesterday in Capitol Heights Police Court to leave the State.

Arrested a month ago, she was fined $200. She appealed this case and was released on bond. Last Tuesday she was arrested again by Constable Howard Slater, who found nine cases of alleged liquor in her car.

She agreed to withdraw her appeal and pay the $50 fine if Judge J. Chew Sheriff would parole her on the third charge. Yesterday in police court she signed an agreement to leave the State, going to live with her brother in Pennsylvania, who also signed the agreement. Attorneys Robert W. McCullough and Thomas J. Luckett represented her.

Burns suffered two weeks ago while playing with matches near his home proved fatal Wednesday to David E. Prime, 5, of Hyattsville, who will be buried today in Evergreen Cemetery in Bladensburg after services at his home. The services will be held at 11 o'clock. The child was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Prime.

Improvements to Hyattsville streets hereafter will be reflected in increased assessments on abutting property, the town council decided at a recent meeting. Holding that paving increases the value of lots along a street, the assessors have been instructed to raise the assessed value after improvements have been made.

The ruling was made when the problem of assessing property along Rhode Island avenue came up. This street has been paved since the last assessment, and sidewalks and curbing are now being put down.

Funds Recovered; Man Is Arrested

Former Janitor Is Charged With Theft of $1,074 From Office.

A large leather billfold, containing $856 and a number of checks amounting to $218, were recovered yesterday by police of the Seventh Precinct, after they had been reported stolen from the office of the C. Irving Wood real estate office, 1249 Wisconsin avenue northwest, Wednesday night.

According to a report to police by Miss Emma Stevens, of Ballston, Va., manager of the company, the establishment was entered by the use of a duplicate key. The money and checks were taken from a safe in the office.

Thomas Howard Collins, colored, of Dumbarton avenue near Thirty-first street northwest, formerly employed as a janitor by the company, was arrested at his home yesterday, and police declared the stolen money was found in his possession. He was charged with housebreaking and grand larceny.

MEETING WILL PLAN FOR COUNTY SURVEY

Montgomery Organization to Be Perfected at Session Monday.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. Ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4205.

The first meeting of the advisory committee which will assist in the public health survey of Montgomery County, to be made by Dr. Allen Weir Freeman, of the Johns Hopkins School of Hygiene, will be held Monday night at the Manor Club, near Norbeck. The meeting will be held for organization and a discussion of the scope and purpose of the survey.

Representatives of civic and medical organization of the county and of incorporated towns of the county will form the advisory committee.

Miss Lavinia Engle, member of the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, will preside at the meeting and introduce the speakers. Miss Engle and Dr. R. H. Riley, director of public health for Maryland, secured the services of Dr. Freeman for the survey.

Dr. Freeman will address the meeting and will answer questions of the delegates. Dr. Riley will speak on the public health program of the State and its relation to the county health unit. Dr. William T. Pratt, county health officer, will discuss the county health department and some of the problems it faces because of rapid growth of the suburban section of the county while a rural section still remains in the upper end.

More than 6,000 county school children are expected to take part in the annual field day program of the Montgomery County schools at the Rockville Fair Grounds Monday. All but two of the county schools have entered the many contests, which will be held under the supervision of the Maryland Playground Association. The field day, originally scheduled for May 2, was postponed because of bad weather.

The reduced telephone rates effective for the suburban section of Montgomery County will become effective June 6, it was announced yesterday. A new billing period will begin on that date when new service and new ates ae inaugurated.

The new schedule of ates and service was filed with the Maryland Public Service Commission yesterday. Inasmuch as the schedules have been approved by the Montgomery County Civic Federation and other civic organizations in the area affected, it is not believed that a public hearing will be necessary or that there will be any difficulty in obtaining the commission's approval.

Subscribers in the Bradley and Silver Spring exchanges will be given Wisconsin and Shepherd numbers. Those who wish to retain purely local service in Bradley and Silver Spring can do so and will be given local service in the two exchanges.

Bids for the construction of Beach drive, the first unit in the construction of Rock Creek Park extended in Montgomery County, will be asked by the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The sealed bids are to be received at the office of the planning commission in the Tower Building, Washington, June 11.

Plans and specifications covering the work are on file in the office of the chief engineer of the commission, Irving C. Root, in the County Building, Silver Spring. The work calls for paving 1.2 miles of driveway 30 feet wide, from the District line to the East-West highway at Jones Mill road. Two sets of specifications are provided for alternate bids. One is for asphalt-macadam road, with concrete shoulders and the other for concrete paving over the whole width. The project will require approximately 20,000 square yards of road surface.

Shady Sybil, a Jersey cow of the herd of John C. Letts, Ayrlawn Farms, Bethesda, has completed her second register of merit record at the age of 3 years and 4 months. On test 305 days, she produced 9,223 pounds of milk, with an average of 5.80 per cent of fat, making 553.12 pounds of butter fat. She was awarded her second silver medal by the American Jersey Cattle Club. In less than two years she has produced 16,548 pounds of milk, 962.84 pounds of butter, and gave her owner a prize-winning bull calf, by Successor's Jest.

Richmond, Va., May 21 (A.P.).—J. Aldine Smith, State moforcycle policeman, was suspended at noon today pending a full investigation of charges of assault and unlawful search of vehicle and person preferred by two University of Virginia students.

Lawyer Under Fire Quits as Receiver

Oliver Is Facing Contempt Order for Failing to Give Accounting.

Attorney Walter Tansil Oliver, of Fairfax, against whom a rule was issued Monday in the Fairfax County Circuit Court requiring him to show cause why he should not be judged in contempt for ignoring an order issued last May, ordering him to file an accounting in two cases in which he was a special receiver, yesterday submitted his resignation to Judge Walter T. McCarthy as receiver in one of the cases.

In making his report of the case of Harry Oliver and others against Walton D. Oliver, the attorney said that no funds of the estate came into his hands. The resignation was accepted by the court and the Fidelity & Deposit Co. of Maryland, who was on Oliver's bond, was released as surety. The company was instrumental in having the rule issued against Oliver.

The court rule for contempt is still in force as an accounting has not been filed in the second case. Judge McCarthy gave Oliver until the last day of this term of court to make accounting in the Carrie Burke estate, on which the Fidelity & Deposit Co. also is surety.

Police Seek Peeper In Attack on Child

Lyon Park Offender Held to Be Man Who Sought to Etherize Girl.

Believing that the "Peeping Tom of Lyon Park" is the same man who entered the home of 11-year-old Lorraine Hack and attempted to render her unconscious with ether, Arlington County police have doubled their patrols in the vicinity.

So far no description of the man has been received, and it is not known whether he is white or colored. Even the little girl who awakened to find the man bending over her bed was unable to give police a description.

Possible fingerprints on the ether can used were blotted out by the number of persons who handled it after the crime. Authorities, however, have one more clew in the form of a pair of gloves found near the scene.

For about two months a man has made a habit of looking in the windows of houses along South Walnut street in Lyon Park. His only activity, except for peeping, has been to steal milk off porches, it is reported. A partly filled bottle of milk was found on the porch of the Hack home when police arrived.

Chestertown, Md., May 21 (A.P.).—Sheriff John T. Vickers, of Kent County, got his man today, although he had to save his life to do it. He and a deputy boarded a scow to arrest Charles Tuer, 45, of Annapolis, commander of a scow, and members of his crew, on charges of illegally removing gravel.

In a scuffle Tuer fell overboard. The sheriff dived in and brought him ashore. A magistrate fined Tuer $10 on a trespassing charge, and charges of larceny and resisting an officer also were filed.

FLAG COMPETITION INTEREST RUNS HIGH

Thrill of Seeing Own Banner May Be Experienced by District Citizens.

Interest in the contest being conducted by The Washington Post for the appropriate design for the District of Columbia flag is growing like a garden after yesterday's rain.

When one returns from a trip abroad after seeing all kinds of flags but only occasionally the Stars and Stripes, the thrill of seeing the United States flag floating from all the house tops is a real thrill. As soon as the judges have picked the District of Columbia flag, this same thrill may be experienced by those returning to Washington in seeing the flag of "the old home town" flying over District buildings and being carried in parades. Also think what joy it would be to see it in some other city designating the Washington delegates at a convention. These are a few reasons why suggestions as to design should be submitted.

Sumner E. W. Kittelle has sent in his suggestion and in an accompanying letter states "A flag is a symbol and therefore it should be so designed as to most beautifully symbolize that which it represents."

This is an unusual contest in that there are no long lists of rules to be followed, the only rule being that designs must be submitted in pen and ink so that they may be reproduced in The Post. Simple, isn't it, and such an easy way to earn $25, the prize offered for the emblem selected by the following judges:

Dr. B. C. MacNeil, department commander of the American Legion; Gen. Anton Stephan, commander of the District National Guard; William L. Thomas, commander of the District department of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant 3d, director of public buildings and public parks.

A flag is something all cherish and naturally want it to be just right. So, contestants, get your ideas of what the District of Columbia flag should be down on paper in black and white and send them in to the Flag Contest Editor of The Washington Post. You may be the winner!

Fruit and Vegetable Exchange Is Formed

(Associated Press.)

Organization of the National Fruit and Vegetable Exchange, Inc., was announced yesterday by the Farm Board as its eighth national sales agency.

The exchange, to handle miscellaneous fruits and vegetables, will act as a sales agency on terminal markets for commodities assembled by local and regional cooperatives now operating independently. It also will furnish shipping point sales service. The organization committee, meeting here since Monday, will submit an operation plan to be further developed at a meeting of the exchange directors with representatives of cooperatives.

More than 160 different associations have signified their desire to participate in the new agency.

HISTORY RECALLED IN FLAG DESIGN

This is the design for the District of Columbia flag submitted by William Boone Douglass, 4500 Lowell street northwest. The field would be of colonial buff with white stars in the center, one for each State; the outline would be a blue field the shape of the District, on which would be the arms of George Washington, its founder.

WHEAT ACREAGE REDUCTION REJECTED BY SOVIET GROUP must be kept in stock in Russia must be guaranteed."

Repudiation of the McKelvie proposals was very definite.

"The chief proposal of the United States," said the statement, "is reduction of acreage. So far as our country is concerned this solution is unacceptable. In the conditions of our social system, with the extraordinary development of our industries and number of industrial workers, increased production is necessary to meet growing internal demands. At the same time it will lead also to an increased surplus to meet our export requirements."

In an outline of the position of wheat in Russia the statement said last year's crop was 29,500,000 tons of which 6,100,000 was surplus. The estimated harvest this year is 36,500,000 tons.

(Associated Press.)

Washington's Government and private followers of the international wheat conference were agreed last night that deliberations thus far have strengthened this Government's position that American wheat must be produced on a domestic consumption basis.

Sentiment, they said, appeared to be leaning toward an international export pool rather than universal acreage reduction, and since United States delegates are without authority to treat on the pool project the entrance of other nations into such an alliance would make this country a free lance in the world markets.

Arrayed against the combined selling power of competitive nations which already have the natural advantage of cheaper production, the United States, it was argued, might find it rather difficult to find or hold an export outlet.

Little Hope for Accord.

Although the strong national views may be tempered, the general situation was interpreted as holding little possibility of acocrd on either the American or the Russian suggestions which now dominate the conference.

It was held that Russian insistence that her prewar position as the chief wheat-producing country of the world be recognized might automatically eliminate the Soviet government as a member of an international export pool. In that instance Russia, too, would be a free lance in the markets.

Danubian countries which, like Russia, suffered loss of prestige during the war, were considered likely to resist any plan limiting their operations.

Snow Blankets Part Of Mountain States

Denver, May 21 (A.P.).—Snow ranging from a trace to nearly 2 feet in depth blanketed parts of the Mountain States today.

Rain and snow which began falling Tuesday in most of Wyoming, Colorado and Montana and parts of New Mexico was expected to prove an immediate benefit to crops in the ground and eliminate the necessity for early irrigation.

RHEEM FUND MISUSE IS DENIED BY RIGGS

Bank Answers Holders of Notes, Asking Suit Be Dismissed.

Counsel for the Riggs National Bank late yesterday filed in the District Supreme Court the answer of the bank to the suit of two noteholders of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. seeking to recover from the institution some $635,000 allegedly "misused" by the bank in allowing a special account of the mortgage firm to be transferred to a general account.

The suit was originally brought on the ground that the bank should have retained the special account funds so that noteholders could have received from that fund the money due them on their notes. The claim was made in the noteholders' suit that the special account was inaugurated solely to pay Shoreham Building noteholders.

The bank entered a general denial of any "misuse" and asked that the suit be dismissed. Frank J. Hogan, general counsel for the Riggs Bank, declared that all the transactions between the bank and the mortgage firm were carried out "in the regular course of business of the bank as a national banking institution."

A letter written by the Riggs Bank to the New York Title & Mortgage Co. disclaiming any obligation to see that funds of the special account were used in paying the noteholders was incorporated in the answer. This letter was written on the same day that the bank notified the title company that the special account was sufficient to cover the mortgage on the Shoreham Building.

Scotland Yard Called To Bar Texas Guinan

London, May 21 (A.P.).—The London Daily Express said tonight that Scotland Yard detectives will meet the French steamer Paris at Plymouth to see that Texas Guinan does not land in England on her way to France from New York.

The New York night club hostess is definitely on Great Britain's list of barred aliens, the Express said, and immigration officers in every port have been instructed to turn her back if she attempts to enter the country.

al Presbyterian Church on a plot of ground between the present Shoreham Hotel structure and Rock Creek Park to Mrs. Holmead, in exchange for other of her notes on which deeds of trust had been released.

Rheem testified that more than $100,000 of these notes, on a project that is destined to be incorporated in the third unit of the Shoreham Hotel project, were in possession of the company the week before the bankruptcy.

Denies Transaction Was Made.

Sullivan asked if it wasn't a fact that Holmead had learned the company was headed for bankruptcy and wanted to make the notes "good." Rheem denied this, insisting that neither knew that bankruptcy was imminent, even the week before it took place. He said Holmead merely wanted the proceeds of his mother's other securities "reinvested."

Holmead testified that although $51,000 of the unreleased notes were actually made out in favor of his mother, and notations made for entry in the company's books, the transaction never was entered and the notes, "so far as he knew," are still in the vaults of the company.

He said that a number of similar allotments of the National Presbyterian notes were made, but never completed, about January 22. Notes to the sum of $18,000 or $19,000 were made out to Walter O. Norwood; $7,500 to H. F. Dismer; $17,000 or $18,000 to Clara E. Stewart; $10,000 to Mrs. S. S. Reiss; $3,500 to Amy C. Clapp, and an unknown quantity to Mrs. Jennie H. McDonald, Holmead testified.

It was explained afterward that the notes involved were part of a $258,707 trust taken out by the Presbytery, which intended to build a church on part of the Shoreham site.

Attorney David A. Pine questioned Rheem on disposition of notes on the unimproved tract at Massachusetts and Nebraska avenue, and on Kew Gardens.

In the course of his inquiry Pine asked if it was true that Rheem was "the only officer who knew what was going on."

Rheem replied: "It hardly seems possible, but it seems that I did most of the work."

Sullivan examined the witness at length on the systems of bookkeeping used by the company, Rheem testifying under questioning that it was necessary to have knowlege of the company's transactions in order to properly read its records.

La Salle Note Holders Act to Save Interests

Preliminary steps to protect holders of notes on the north unit of the La Salle Apartments, valued at $750,000 and secured by a leasehold interest, were taken at a meeting of lawyers representing noteholders yesterday at the offices of Colladay, McGarraghy, Pettus & Wallace in the Second National Bank Building.

The apartments are one of a number involved in Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. financing. The meeting was called in view of a possible default in interest payments due June 15. Edward F. Colladay was elected chairman of the meeting.

A special committee was appointed to consider protective steps. This committee, which will report at another meeting to be held next Thursday, includes Walter B. Guy, James A. Purcell, Frank Van Zandt, Paul E. Lesh and B. B. Pettus. Guy is leading a movement of Hay-Adams noteholders to incorporate in order to avoid loss.

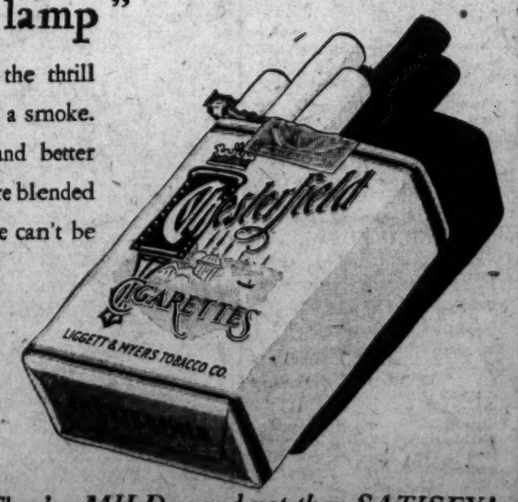
Big game is big game whether you hunt it yourself or share the thrill from an open book, or the silver screen. Likewise, a good cigarette is a smoke. What you taste in Chesterfield is what you want to taste—milder and better tobaccos. The taste is there and the fragrance too, for these tobaccos are blended and cross-blended to bring out their full aroma and flavor, and there can't be anything better in a cigarette.



FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

CALHOUN BLACKMAIL DECISION IS DELAYED

Hillenbrand Attorney Quits Effort for Mistrial in Conspiracy Case.

Reversal of the position of Attorney Paul Sedgewick, representing Mrs. Anna Hillenbrand, in joining with other defense counsel in the C. C. Calhoun blackmail conspiracy trial, yesterday caused Justice Jesse Adkins to defer rendering his decision on the mistrial request made the preceding day.

Mrs. Hillenbrand is said to feel that since she spent a long period in jail before she was released on bond, she wishes the present case decided on its merits. The case is now going into the end of the second week, and most of the defendants have taken the position that because of a further possible expenditure of time and money they would be justified in pressing the request for a mistrial.

The mistrial is being sought on the grounds that a woman witness for the Government had been intimidated by a Department of Justice agent. The claim was advanced that this alleged intimidation might have influenced the witness' testimony, although the witness, Mrs. Emma Crouse, denied, after being recalled to the stand, that she had allowed it to affect her.

Justice Adkins spent the entire day yesterday in listening to arguments from Irvin Goldstein, assistant United States Attorney in charge of the case, and defense attorneys, citing various authorities. Goldstein made the point that the authorities allowed an attorney to talk to a witness while that witness was not actually testifying. The ruling on the mistrial will be announced this morning.

CHICAGO THOUSANDS THRILLED BY PLANES

600 Craft Fly Over City and Return to Ohio; Will Go to New York.

umn, the whole fleet had disappeared to the south, most of the units flying directly to their bases at Dayton and Cleveland.

But the crowd was not denied its thrills. The Ninety-fifth Pursuit Squadron, of Rockwell Field, Calif.; the Eleventh Bombardment Squadron, of Rockwell Field, and the Thirteenth Attack Squadron, of Fort Crockett, Tex., left the rest of the division south of the city and returned to the downtown section.

Out over the lake in view of thousands of office workers these squadrons first flew in close formations, their wing tips seeming almost to touch. Nine heavy bombers, ominous looking craft that in war time carry 2,000 pounds of explosives each, flew low, setting up a great roar with their eighteen motors. Twelve attack planes, faster, more agile, waged mimic warfare on ground personnel.

Up among the clouds the eighteen single-seated pursuit ships cavorted under the leadership of Capt. F. O'D. Hunter, one of the few remaining war aces still in the service. Swerving quickly, banking so that only their yellow backs were visible at times, these tiny speedsters demonstrated everything in the Army air repertory.

Finally, Lieuts. Irving Woodring and George Price dropped out of the pursuit formation and started a battle of their own, a "dog fight," over the Navy pier. Twisting and turning, trailing and diving at each other, they kept the crowds engaged until their squadron reappeared and they fell in line again.

By this time the rest of the division was well on its way to Ohio and an overnight stop en route to Eastern maneuvers.

Maj. Gen. James A. Fechet, chief of the Army Air Corps, stayed long enough to attend a luncheon and express satisfaction at the successful completion of the first big movement during the aerial maneuvers. In the movement of 600 fighting ships, 60 staff ships and about 1,400 men from Dayton to Chicago and back, not one serious accident had occurred, and the air chief was manifestly well pleased.

"We tried to show Chicago and the Middle West," he said, "that the Air Corps is being developed in an orderly manner and that perfect timing can be achieved throughout the entire division."

Gen. Fechet said the estimates that the maneuvers would cost the Government $3,000,000 came from "propagandists."

"They based this estimate on a cost of $50 an hour to maintain an airplane while it is flying," he said, "but this estimate is wrong. It costs about $4.50 an hour. The entire maneuvers called for an extra expenditure above our allotted funds of $35,000, and this amount will be made up during the coming year. The people can not object to maneuvers of the Air Corps when they realize that an efficient Air Corps is the country's biggest instrument for peace."

Fair Field Air Depot, Dayton, Ohio, May 21 (A.P.).—With fair weather predicted, 500 planes were tuned up here tonight for the hop-off at dawn tomorrow for New York, where the Army Air Corps will stage a gigantic review of its main fighting planes.

At the same time 150 National Guard planes were serviced at Cleveland Airport preparatory to joining the flight to New York. The first group will hop off from Fair Field at 5 a. m. tomorrow, with other groups following in rapid succession up to 7 a. m.

Weather maps showed excellent flying weather on the Pennsylvania mountains for tomorrow. The regular air routes to New York via Cleveland, Middletown, Pa., Butler, Pa., Bolling Field, Washington, and Aberdeen, Md., will be utilized for the flights.

A portion of the planes will go to Buffalo and Rochester, N. Y., for refueling before proceeding to flying fields adjacent to New York City.

The Army aircraft will be housed at Mitchell, Farmingdale, Valley Stream, Roosevelt Field Nos. 1 and 2 in the metropolitan area.

Servicing of the aircraft started immediately upon their return from Chicago at noon today.

Rush to Woodland Proves Ardor for Summer Homes

The Washington Post's Unusual Circulation Offer Continues to Draw Steady Flow of Lot Buyers at Beach Development.

Rain failed to dampen the ardor of those planning to enjoy pleasures of Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer-home development in Maryland, for yesterday saw a continuous line of lot buyers in the office of The Post, choosing locations.

Woodland Beach is rapidly becoming a byword with Washingtonians, and indications point to a very representative group of lot owners when the entire developmnet has been bought up.

Yesterday was only the third day of the sale of lots at Woodland Beach, but it seemed that the development had been advertised for months. Purchasers appeared early and continued to pour into The Post all day long. They all wanted to take advantage of this great offer.

Woodland Is Picked Site.

Woodland Beach, located on the South River, in Maryland, just 32 miles from Washington, is a site picked only after careful consideration of a number of other areas, as the best available.

It has proven attractive to Capital residents for several reasons. One of these is the price. A lot at Woodland Beach is only $93. And this amount need not be paid in full. A down payment of $9 permits selection of your lot, and then you may pay $3.50 a month until the obligation has been fulfilled. The only restriction on the purchase of a Woodland Beach lot is that you must be a subscriber of The Washington Post, either old or new.

Other attractions offered by Woodland Beach are bathing, boating and fishing. For those inclined toward sport, these three will be inducement enough. But Woodland Beach has other features making it a delightful summer colony site. It has a wide beach front which will be preserved intact for the use of lot owners. It has woods and water, shade and sun, and it is easy to reach.

Road Is Well Marked.

A motor trip out Defense highway toward Annapolis is the first step on a visit to Woodland Beach. At Camp Parole turn right onto Maryland State highway No. 2, crossing the South River bridge and following the highway to Mayo road. Turn left on Mayo road and continue to Woodland Beach, which is well marked.

A clubhouse is now in course of construction at the beach, the clubhouse to be deeded to an association of lot owners which will be formed when the development is complete. It will be oneof the added attractions of the community, designed to care for community needs and furnish a place for meetings of the association.

Drop in at The Post today and learn all the details of this great subscription-summer home offer. You'll enjoy reading The Washington Post, the Capital's greatest newspaper, and you'll never regret buying one of the lots at Woodland Beach for a summer home.

Coal Test Case Under Advisement

Judge McMahon Indicates He Will Give Ruling Next Week.

Judge John P. McMahon yesterday took under advisement the so-called "coal-test case" in which the District government is trying to have the short ton of 2,000 pounds barred as a sales unit here.

James E. Colliflower, coal dealer, submitted to the test case when he sold a unit of 2,000 pounds. The dealers assert coal can be handled more expeditiously by the short ton rather than by the long ton. Ringgold Hart and Maurice Rosenberg represented Mr. Colliflower, while William A. Roberts, special assistant corporation counsel, represented the District.

Judge McMahon asked if a transcript of the record could be submitted to him. When he was told that he would be furnished a copy, he indicated that his decision would not be forthcoming until next week.

TAX INCREASE URGED AS WAR PROFIT CURB

Session of Policies Body Is Enlivened by Johnston-Hurley Word Tilt.

(Associated Press.)

Heavy taxation rather than price freezing was advocated to the War Policies Commission yesterday by Walter S. Gifford, president of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., to take the profits out of war.

The plan for freezing all prices at the outbreak of a conflict as proposed by Bernard M. Baruch, former chairman of the War Industries Board, was highly commended, however, by J. Leonard Replogle, New York steel manufacturer.

Arthur Deerin Call, secretary of the American Peace Society, also approved the Baruch plan, but said the only real way to equalize the burdens and remove the profits of war was to avoid one.

The session was enlivened by a verbal clash between Secretary Hurley and a witness who suggested the War Department head had ignored the congressional mandate that the commission was "to promote peace."

Hurley Is Assailed.

Mercer Johnston, director of the People's Legislative Service, said Chairman Hurley appeared to consider these words "pure bunkum" and said, "It would have looked better if some other than the warrior member of the Cabinet had been named chairman."

Mr. Hurley accused Mr. Johnston of calling him a militarist and said it was "absolutely and unqualifiedly unjust, unfair and unwarranted."

"I think I am a more reasonable pacifist than you are," Mr. Hurley added.

Mr. Johnston said he was not a pacifist and added he had not called the Secretary a militarist.

"I am a seeker of peace and decline to have you distort my character," Mr. Hurley said.

Mr. Gifford testified Mr. Baruch's plan would not take the profits out of war and said price freezing would seriously interfere with "the outstanding characteristic of the last war—voluntary action." Any fixed, rigid legislative plan would be a mistake, he said, because of the impossibility of foreseeing conditions which might arise.

Not All of Profits.

Mr. Gifford said that by proposing to take the profits out of war he did not mean all the profits, but only those arising from the conflict. Enough profits should be left, he added, to keep the wheels of industry grinding and disturb conditions as little as possible.

The telephone company head also suggested that President Hoover revive the council of national defense by appointing industrial leaders who could keep in touch with War Department plans and be prepared to mobilize industry in time of emergency.

He suggested further that if Congress would pass a resolution declaring it to be the policy of the Government that no profits would be made in a future war it would be notice to those, if there were any, who might want a war because of its financial benefits.

Mr. Gifford opposed proposals made by previous witnesses for constitutional amendments to authorize taking private property without compensation and to prevent Congress from declaring war without a referendum of the people.

Holiday services at the synagogue begin at 8:30 o'clock this morning. Rabbi J. T. Loeb will deliver a sermon on the subject, "The Torah Versus Physical Force," at 10:30 o'clock this morning. At the latter hour tomorrow morning he will speak on "Champion Martyrs for the Preservation of the Divine Law."

Rabbi Loeb also will deliver the principal address at graduation exercises of the religious schools under the Washington Chapter, Council of Jewish Women, at 2:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon, on the subject, "Our Constantly Renewed Biccurim Offering." Others on this program will be Mrs. Harry Levenson, Miss Dorothy Abramson, Mrs. Herman Holander and Adolph Sternberg.

Georgetown Students Plan Annual Drill

Postponed because of a muddy parade ground, the twelfth annual military field day for the Georgetown University R. O. T. C. will be held this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock on the Hilltop campus, weather permitting.

Competitive company and platoon drills will feature the events, followed by the awards of special prizes to honor men of the unit. The Washington Chamber of Commerce is to award four silver cups to the cadets ranking first in military efficiency in their respective classes. Col. E. Goring Bliss, an official of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. and a son of the late Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, former chief of staff of the Army, will present the cups on behalf of the chamber.

A $10,000,000,000 CROP.

Crop prospects throughout the United States so far this year are almost uniformly good. There are no indications of danger that such a drought as afflicted many States last year will return this year. This means that there will be realized from farm products more than $10,000,000,000, since the average value runs well over that figure. To this must be added over $6,000,000,000 paid yearly for animal products.

So much is heard about wheat these days that it really assumes undue proportions in the minds of most persons who are not familiar with the relative importance of farm crops. Wheat, in reality, accounts for less than one-tenth of the value of American field crops. The corn raised in this country is worth twice as much every year as the wheat. We hear comparatively little of oats, rye, barley, buckwheat, flax and rice, yet the aggregate value of these products of the farm is just as great as that of wheat.

Cotton is 50 per cent more valuable than wheat in poor years, and runs to much more than wheat's value when the crop is sold for $1,500,000,000, wheat averaging recently between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000. The cultivated hay crop of the United States is usually worth $1,125,000,000. Apple and peach crops bring in an annual revenue to farmers of over $200,000,000, and tobacco mounts up to $285,000,000 annually.

The yearly income of American farmers is a dependable fund that helps make up the tremendous market of the United States, and yet it is something less than one-fifth of the yearly income of the total population, which reaches the staggering sum of $90,000,000,000. Small wonder that the nations of the world, with almost universal overproduction, are clamoring for freer access to this great market, immeasurably greater than that of any other nation.

COLORADO RIVER RIGHTS.

By dismissing the suit of Arizona against Secretary Wilbur and six Western States the Supreme Court permits construction of Hoover Dam to go ahead, leaving the States free to fight over the water afterward. The court refuses to halt work on the project, on the ground that Arizona's rights have not yet been infringed. But the court takes note of the fact that Arizona has not agreed to the division of waters called for by the six-State compact, and states that if operation of the dam after it is constructed shall in any way interfere with the rights of Arizona an appropriate legal remedy will be available.

The court refuses to inquire into the motives of Congress in passing the Hoover Dam act. Congress pretended to authorize this $165,000,000 project for the purpose of controlling floods and improving navigation. As a matter of fact, the compact, to which the act is subject, declares that "inasmuch as the Colorado River has ceased to be navigable for commerce * * * the use of its waters for navigation shall be subservient to the uses of such waters for domestic, agricultural and power purposes."

It is logical to suppose that the diversion of water for agricultural purposes will destroy whatever navigability the river now has, and that instead of improving navigation the Hoover dam will render it impossible. But the court was willing to take the word of Congress that improvement of navigation is one of the primary purposes of the act. Thus the fiction of spending $165,000,000 of the taxpayers' money for flood control and navigation is sustained by the highest tribunal.

Unfortunately, the Supreme Court's decision does not settle this protracted controversy. All legal obstacles in the way of construction of Hoover dam are now removed, but the squabble over water rights in the Colorado will doubtless go on for many years. The court has merely decided that Congress has authority to build this dam under the pretense of improving navigation, and not that Congress and six States may ride roughshod over Arizona's water rights. The court did not permit an injunction to issue, because Arizona's suit was based on "potential invasions," and not an actual impairment of her rights. Nevertheless, 9,000,000 acre-feet of water of the Colorado remain unappropriated, and Arizona has the same right to appropriate it as she had before the Hoover dam was authorized. Since Arizona is not bound by the compact that State can presumably take as much water from the Colorado as it wishes, and once it has done so the other States will be powerless to interfere.

In effect this situation seems to vitiate the whole compact. It was not because Utah, Colorado and Wyoming wanted a dam built in Black Canyon that they agreed to the compact. That project will be of no advantage to them. They entered into the compact to protect their rights for future development in the Colorado, and they agreed to the construction of Hoover dam in order to bring California into the compact and thus limit its rights of appropriation. Now their rights in the river can not be protected, because Arizona has the privilege of establishing claim to as much of the water as its people desire. The Upper Basin States are left without any guarantee that their share of the water will remain unappropriated when they are ready to use it. The Supreme Court's decision leaves the basic controversy open, awaiting the time when actual diversion of a State's waters by other States will warrant an injunction.

Oddly enough, Arizona is the only State concerned that has not bargained away some of its rights.

FILIPINOS CHANGE TUNE.

The Philippine independence movement has suddenly collapsed. Native politicians appear to have made an about-face movement, and the Filipino press is busy explaining that the demand for "immediate and complete independence," with which Washington is so familiar, has never been anything more than a trading point.

Senator Juan Sumulong, of the independence mission, has returned to Manila with a report that it would be impractical to divorce the islands from the United States. Manuel Quezon, president of the Philippine Senate, and for many years a leader of the movement, has come to the conclusion that independence must be eliminated from the Filipinos' demands. Manuel Roxas, who still holds fast to the fanciful idea of a separate Filipino nation, is facing defeat in the forthcoming legislative election, and makes no mention of independence in his campaign.

This change of heart has come about because the Filipinos are beginning to realize what independence would mean. Heretofore they have passionately declared that they cared nothing about the economic difficulties in the way; they were willing to sacrifice material advantages for the sake of imaginary freedom. Now just as there is talk in Congress of putting the islands upon their own responsibility, they turn about and cry that independence would be impractical.

Senators Vandenberg and Hawes have paid a visit to the islands, and many members of Congress have interested themselves in the problem with a view to disposing of it at the next session. Filipino politicians hear the demands of American farmers that Philippine products be subjected to the tariff, and the request of labor that immigration from the islands be limited. They are gripped with a sudden fear that their chimerical prayers might be answered. It becomes necessary for them to admit that their burning patriotism has been merely political exploitation of a popular emotion.

The consensus of informed opinion is that the Philippines could not maintain a stable government if they were granted independence. Senator Vandenberg holds that the Filipinos would suffer an economic collapse within 30 days if left to themselves. Loss of the American free market would derange 80 per cent of their export trade and completely upset the financial structure. Dr. Herbert Adams Gibbons, of Princeton University, who has made a deep study of the subject, recently told the Filipinos that if they insisted on being cut loose from the United States they should prepare themselves for supervision by Japan under a mandate. In his opinion that is the only practical alternative to the present arrangement.

This leaves the independence movement in an anomalous position. Only American farmers and laborers who fear the competition of the islands are asking that they be divorced from the United States. Filipino politicians who for years have made the welkin ring with eloquent pleas for independence may find it necessary to beg Congress to allow the islands to remain under American protection and tutelage. But it is not to be supposed that the protests of agriculture will be taken seriously. For the peace of the United States as well as for the safety of the Philippines, the islands will not be turned adrift.

CHINA AGAIN AT WAR.

All hope that China might escape the ravages of a civil war this summer have been abandoned. Hostilities have been delayed longer than usual this year, which offers some encouragement, but the national government is still confronted with the necessity of fighting to keep China under one flag. For the twentieth consecutive summer that unhappy country has plunged into internecine warfare.

Theoretically China has entered upon a period of political tutelage during which the people will be taught the ways of self-government. When the national people's convention met at Nanking recently it decided that the "military" period of the Chinese republic should be ended. A new constitution was drawn up and adopted with a view to training the Chinese millions in the responsibilities of citizenship. It is anticipated that when this period is completed the people will be capable of governing themselves through representative institutions. But the era of civil war can not be brought to a close by a governmental decree.

President Chiang Kai-Shek has been a target for many charges from numerous factions. The answer of the national convention to those accusations was to extend the president's power. He now has authority to choose the cabinet, the chairmen of the five governing Yuans and all governmental commissions, subject to the approval of the council. In spite of the tendency toward disintegration in some of the outlying provinces, the movement for a strong central government which will some day be able to unify all China seems to be gaining momentum.

The national government has established a rigid censorship throughout China, wishing to conceal the death struggle of the war lords from the rest of the world. But it is known that large armies are in conflict in the provinces of Honan and Hopei and that preparations are being made to hold in check Feng Yu-Hsiang's troops in the Shansi uplands. The greatest menace to China is the army of some 300,000 communists in the mountainous regions of southern Kiangsi. The national government must defend itself on not one but many fronts.

The present disposition seems to be to strike boldly against the rebels and bandit hordes. Apparently the Nanking authorities are now determined to stake all their hopes on a campaign which should leave the national government in undisputed control of China. There can be no question that its determination to bring the "military" period to a close is sincere, but the odds against an early attainment of that ideal are heavy.

A 2-cent postage stamp commemorating the formation of the first chapter of the Red Cross, on the fiftieth anniversary of that event was issued by the Postoffice Department yesterday. That first chapter was organized in the village of Dansville, N. Y., the home of Clara Barton, whose name will ever be connected with the American Red Cross. It was fitting, under the circumstances, that Dansville should have been designated as one of the two postoffices at which the "first day issues" were available to collectors of postage stamps. Washington was the other office. First day covers are highly prized by philatelists, and envelopes bearing each issue of special stamps, properly post-marked and canceled, always command a substantial premium.

The philatelic branch of the stamp division of the Postoffice Department, which was created in response to a Nation-wide demand from collectors, has grown in importance by leaps and bounds during the last five years. At first the sales from the division amounted to only a few thousand dollars each year. But of late the receipts from such sales reach into the hundreds of thousands of dollars. It is a very profitable branch of the postal service. In fact it is the only branch which brings a distinct profit to the Treasury, as nearly all the stamps sold through the philatelic agency are purchased by collectors and dealers and few are ever used for postage.

The extent to which the collecting of postage stamps has grown can be understood when it is known that the original order placed with the director of the Bureau of Engraving called for the delivery of 25,000,000 of the Red Cross commemorative stamps. But before the date set for the first distribution arrived requisitions from postmasters everywhere throughout the country indicated such unexpected popularity for the issue that the order was increased to 50,000,000, and even that enormous quantity was 10,000,000 below the number for which requisitions were on file in the stamp division of the department on Wednesday morning.

CALVIN COOLIDGE SAYS:

Northampton, Mass., May 21.—One of the most difficult questions pressing urgently for decision by Government and business is railroad rates. Almost daily some one in Washington is urging the maintenance of the present wage scale. But wages can not be paid without ready money. The public attitude has not encouraged railroads to accumulate a surplus even if possible. They have to pay wages and taxes out of current earnings. They claim nearly all the increased rates allowed about ten years ago have been withdrawn by subsequent orders of the Government. Meantime wage scales were increased.

Business would consider an increase in railroad rates as a serious burden at this time. If it resulted in increased employment in the railroads there might be large compensations, and if it created confidence and revived trade, approval would be universal, but these reactions are problematical. No one can long expect railroad service that is not paid for or continuation of wages that do not come out of income. Those in authority who are asking for the maintenance of wages will have to give thought to helping to provide the income for their payment. The decision of the Government on this question is a serious responsibility.

LITVINOV PROPOSES

From the Chicago Tribune.

Russian commissars take European conferences for the fun there is in them. There is always a chance to light a firecracker in the vestry or to wad something in the chimney and smoke out the room. Maxim Litvinov, Soviet foreign minister, thus became the life of the commission of inquiry at Geneva examining the idea of a union of Europe. He reminded the conferees that capitalistic countries were ruining each other by dumping their goods and made them an offer. Russia would sign a convention, an oath in the spirit of the Kellogg gasoline, the steel corporations their steel, the automobile makers their cars, &c., from tooth pastes to typewriters, controlling export as to volume and destination. The people's commissars, having made this start in the domestic and foreign field, would soon be conscripting labor and expropriating capital and the thing would be done. The depression would be over. It would appear in the background as a high tide of prosperity. A good half day's work would be getting a bread card and the other half would be standing in line.

The comrade was a model of generosity, offering a bit of the rope with which the kulaks were hung to the barn rafters and the Russian tradesmen to their store beams, pact, in which the signers would pledge themselves not to undertake economic aggressions and another in which the nations would agree not to dump goods, but to compel the maintenance of a sales price at home no higher than in foreign markets.

The commissar was earnest and did not betray that he was droll, and the conferees blinked, not knowing exactly what to say to him. They know how to talk, but able as they are at this the Russians are always too adroit for them. The Russian school is that of dialectics. When they want to build a tractor or a dam they get an American. Mr. Litvinov's proposal was that the capitalistic countries communize their industries. Thus the United States would fix at home the price at which the oil producers could sell their

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

LAW BREAKER.

The good man wondered why the crook
Should violate the statue book
And wreck his life and give his time
To wanton folly and to crime.
It seemed to him that all should pause
To count the cost of breaking laws.

The doctor to the good man said:
"You must go earlier to bed.
Read not so late at night and take
A long vacation or you'll break.
This everlasting tug and strain
Will bring you to a bed of pain.

"Think not that you alone can do
The many tasks which fall to you,
Drop half your burdens; learn to play;
Don't rush so fast along the way.
Though very noble seems the cause,
You're breaking all of nature's laws."

The good man heard, and well he knew
The words the doctor spoke were true.
"I'm one," said he, "who can not quit.
I'll work and get away with it!"
But now he knows, since health is lost,
Why men refuse to count the cost.

The Old West Drove the Bad Men Out by Inviting Plowmen In.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

IN the southern part of the United States there is a grass named Bermuda. It takes root at every joint, survives drought and flood, and spreads so rapidly that farmers regard it as a pest.

A field of Bermuda grass may be plowed, harrowed and raked until no root or blade remains in sight, yet within a month it will be green again with a growth made more vigorous by the loosening of the soil.

Ridding the premises of this grass is much like ridding yourself of a bad habit.

The habit is a pest that encroaches on your freedom and manhood. You resolve to be quit of it. You will show it who is master. So you burn your pipes, give away your cigars and cigarettes, break up your smoking stands and wash your hands free of the lingering odor. You have plowed up the habit, root and branch.

Then what happens? You know what happens. On the way down town after breakfast you sniff hungrily every time you pass a fellow smoker, and before you reach the office you stop at some drug store and sheepishly restock.

It is another evidence of Nature's unwillingness to tolerate a vacuum.

The farmer who rids his field of the stubborn grass is the one who gives it competition. When he has plowed and raked the field, he plants another crop to spring up and shade the ground and the grass is "choked out."

You may sweep the house and drive out the seven devils, but they will return again with others of their kind unless you find better tenants.

The only way to be rid of a stubborn habit is to develop another in its place.

It is much like training a child. In a strange new world full of unreasonable rules, the child unwittingly becomes a transgressor. Its tastes are unformed and its heart isn't set on one form of activity more than another, but the word "Don't!" arouses its natural spirit of antagonism and invites conflict.

The child can't remain inactive. Do you expect it to sit and hold its hands until it thinks of some enterprise that isn't forbidden? Give the kid a break. Say "Do" instead of "Don't." Fill in the vacuum. Suggest a new activity to replace the one verboten.

The best cure for any evil is an alternative. "Be not drunken with wine," says the wisest of books, "but be filled with the Spirit."

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

George Norris and the Pulitzer Prize.

Topeka Capital.

Whether one agrees with it or not, the Pulitzer 1930 prize editorial by Charles S. Ryckman of the Fremont Tribune on Nebraska and Senator Norris was well conceived and well written. The Nebraska Senator, it is true, takes sharp issue with the Pulitzer judges, who must be regarded nevertheless as better judges in this case than Judge Norris, an interested party.

And now comes the Hutchinson News to say that "a big man would have ignored the editorial," demonstrating that Nebraska's Senator is not a big man. Not only that, it proves that he is the victim of bad taste, hypocrisy and an inflated ego. So concludes the News.

An Augury for Roosevelt.

Atlanta Constitution.

The statement by Senator Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, that the public views of Gov. Franklin Roosevelt, especially upon "power" problems, have given him a distinct popularity in the great West, is likely to center study more intensely upon the personality and publicism of the big New Yorker.

This authoritative report of Roosevelt an favor in the West and Northwest comes from a part of the country where the normal sentiment is Republican and largely insurgent against anything Eastern in person or policy. Senator Nye is an insurgent Republican, but a Republican nevertheless, and careful to keep his political fences hogtight, but he is a shrewd observer of how the political winds are blowing.

Renominating Presidents.

New York Times.

Among the things claimed for Mr. Hoover when he took office one was that he would not recognize the party bosses in the distribution of offices unless they proposed the best men available. Probably the President believed that he would follow this course. Nearly all new Presidents do. Mr. Hoover started out to reform the Republican organizations in Mississippi, South Carolina and Georgia, declaring that they must clean house or get no offices. He appointed a triumvirate to see to it. But the party leaders in these States are today the very ones who were supposedly excommunicated two years ago. Presidents, as they approach renomination, realize that the nucleus of Southern delegations is essential to heading off a possible rival. Presidents must not only be renominated, there must for election purposes appear no strong minority in the convention.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Washington Baseball Team a Pennant Winning Machine if Players Will Fight Every Game, Says "Box Seat."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In their talk about our ball club's chances in the pennant race I notice that our professional dopesters give much attention to the fine opening we will have when the Macks are up against the unusual number of double headers they must tackle later on. Even Manager Johnson says: "You will notice that Grove pitches one whole game and finishes about two of the next three. He can not keep that up, and I'm figuring that when the A's start their double-header schedule we'll make up lots of ground."

That sounds all right as a chance bit of shop talk, but I would be sorry to think that it expresses actual temper of the manager and his club. In the first place, there was a popular belief early in the season that the A's would be handicapped by their short-handed pitching staff, but their leading position and game-winning pace at this stage of the race is evidence that there wasn't much in it. The danger of underrating an opponent should be avoided in any sport, and especially in baseball. You will remember that in our pennant-winning years of 1924 and 1925 Bucky Harris inspired his players with the idea that every game was crucial and their task a tough one, and what he tried by all means to guard against was the weakness of pinning pennant hopes on any alleged crippled condition of other clubs.

Today our line-up is, as a machine, stronger than that with which Harris won out. It has made a better start this year than I expected; and if I were a gambler I would back it heavily to win the pennant if absolutely certain that it has the will to win from day to day, without bothering about lucky breaks which may never happen. Mississippi Man Here in 1861 and Heard Lincoln's First Inaugural Address.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was in Washington March 4, 1861, and heard Lincoln's inaugural address. So far as I can learn, I am the only Southerner living who heard Lincoln on that occasion. I was also in Richmond, a lad, and shook hands with Lincoln in April, 1865, after Lee evacuated the city and retreated toward Appomattox.

How Washington must have changed in all the 70 years—almost three-quarters of a century—since that memorable and momentous day when I was in Washington for the last time!

I would like to go back to the Capital City on the Potomac and for a brief time live over those wonderful and uncertain days of the early 60's, but I am old and poor and find it hard to make a living. All the friends of my youth and the children of my young manhood have all gone on across the mist-curtained sea and I am left alone like driftwood on the shores of Time. But the present is the best of any time in which I have lived.

However, I can not help yearning to see Washington again before I sail the unknown seas to the great beyond. I wish I knew some way to earn expenses—money enough to again visit Washington—but I just don't. JAMES U. WALTON.

Pacifist and Communistic Propaganda Behind "Good-Will" Stunt, Says Correspondent.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The "telephone conversations" reputedly of so-called good will between the high school students of this and other countries held May 19, 1931, was purely "pacifist" propaganda for the purpose of influencing the people against this country's necessary plans for national defense. It was engineered by the National Council for the Prevention of War, the officers of which are affiliated with the communistic American Civil Liberties Union. By its own record it stands discredited before the country

It only goes to show that the various subversive anti-American organizations, similar to the National Council for the Prevention of War, working in our country today, can, because of their "camouflaged" connections, easily lead our people into doing such things as this, the significance of which they know nothing. The significance in this particular instance is not so much in what was done as in the character of the organization that "put it over."

If your article had had coupled with it some information about the pacifist organization, the beautiful theory of "good will" would not set so well with those who read.

BART B. PIGMAN.

Artemas, Not "Artemus," the Name of Gen. Ward, Revolutionary Hero.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your story this morning headed, "Statue of Ward to Adorn Circle," you make a somewhat common error in the spelling of Gen. Ward's first name. It was Artemas, not Artemus, as you printed it.

An old-time humorist, whose real name I do not recall, used "Artemus Ward" as a pen name, probably misspelling it with humorous intent. He told an uncle of mine that he had no idea he was using a historic name. His misspelling seems to have fixed itself in the public mind.

The approaching erection in Washington of a statue of Maj. Gen. Artemas Ward gives The Post an opportunity I feel sure it will take advantage of in any future reference to the general of spelling his name as spelled by him and in all biographical and historical works.

This will be appreciated by his many descendants, of whom I am one. KATHARINE WARD FISHER.

CUBAN REVOLUTION REPORTS CONFLICT

Government Says Troops Quell Armed Revolt; Battle Denied.

Havana, May 21 (A.P.).—Conflicting versions of last night's reported insurrection in Oriente Province were received here today.

An official government statement by the department of the interior confirmed early reports that there had been an armed revolt against troops at Manzanillo and Jiguani and that there also was "excitement" at Holguin and Chaparra. The government said these uprisings had been quickly suppressed and no further trouble was expected.

Flat denials of any such trouble at Manzanillo were made by Manuel Bonet, president of the Nationalist Union branch there, and from Mayor Rafael Sariol.

Bonet told an Associated Press correspondent that a private quarrel, in which two men had been killed, furnished the foundation for reports that the citizenry had revolted.

Secretary of the Interior Octavio Zubizarreta said today his information regarding the reportel rebellion was without details. In his official statement he said, "There has been a revolutionary movement in Manzanillo and Jiguani and excitement at Holguin and Chaparra," but the uprising had been suppressed by troops.

He said the government was confident its armed forces were strong enough to meet any emergency and "if the seditious attitude persists it may be necessary again to suspend constitutional guarantees in Oriente."

(Associated Press.)

Undersecretary of State Castle said yesterday the American Embassy at Havana had reported rumors of possible impending trouble in Cuba to the State Department.

The embassy in each instance, the Undersecretary added, had been careful to state that all such rumors were wholly unconfirmed.

Archbishop Judge At His First Case

Unique Spectacle Is Seen as Clergyman Ascends Bench in London.

London, May 21 (A.P.).—A unique spectacle was seen today in king's bench law court when the Archbishop of Canterbury ascended the bench to sit as a judge in an ecclesiastical case.

It was the first time the present archbishop had presided over such a trial under a law of 1926, which provides for his appearance on the bench in such cases, alongside a judge of the supreme court nominated by the lord chancellor.

The case was an appeal by the Rev. S. A. Norris Huntley, rector of a parish in Norfolk County, from an inhibition pronounced against him by the Bishop of Norfolk for alleged neglect of duty and use of bad language.

Fire Chief Dies in Explosion.

Spring Green, Wis., May 21 (A.P.).—Fire Chief Milford Graham was killed, another man was injured and eight firemen were rescued today when an explosion blew the front wall of a burning building into the street.

Acquitted Prize Beauty Claims Estate Share

Nice, France, May 21 (U.P.).—Mrs. Charlotte Nixon Nirdlinger, acquitted of killing her husband, went to a small mountain village in the foothills of the Alps today to avoid curious crowds.

She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. James Nash, of St. Louis, but her two children remained at Nice, pending arrangements for the family to depart for the United States. Acquittal at her trial yesterday enabled her to claim a third of her husband's estate, said to be valued at $725,000.

Alfonso's Wealth Set at $8,000,000

Jewels in Possession of Royal Family Are Not Listed in Audit.

Madrid, May 21 (A.P.).—A Republican military audit places its preliminary estimate of the wealth of former King Alfonso XIII and the royal family at roughly 86,000,000 pesetas (about $8,000,000).

This was distributed as follows: 3,862,674 in currency; 6,516,122 in real estate, and 75,595,385 in investments.

Of the former king's personal fortune 14,338,255 is supposed to be deposited in the form of investments in banks in France, England, Holland and Switzerland. The memorandum issued by the military accountant explains that jewels possessed by various members of the royal family are not listed in the inventory and many other assets also remain unlisted because it has been virtually impossible to determine their worth.

Woman Hurt Starting Round-World Flight

Passau, Germany, May 21 (A.P.).—Christel Marie Schultes, who started this afternoon from Berlin for Vienna by airplane on a projected round-the-world flight, was seriously injured in a forced landing near here this evening.

Both her legs were broken. Her pilot, Gustav Sackmann, also was badly hurt. Their plane was wrecked.

13 Chemical Lines Completely Protect Garments Placed in

Our Fumigation Storage Vaults

Each little detail of mechanism shown in this photograph plays an important role in protecting your furs, and the countless other garments, that are stored here. The chemical vapor that kills every cycle of moth life is carried by these thirteen arteries to every nook and corner of the storage vaults. Each day you delay storing your Winter garments here you are inviting moths to do their disastrous work. Let us collect them today—Phone DIstrict 5300.

This Is How Chemical-Fumigation Actually Works

1—Furs and garments are placed in small vaults for a 24-hour chemical vapor treatment, which destroys every cycle of moth life.

2—Each garment is placed on a separate hanger and put in the large vaults that are periodically fumigated by these 13 important little pipe lines.

3—The vaults are fire-proof, theft-proof, and damage-proof—as well as moth-proof.

4—The rates are moderate—3% on the first $200 valuation; 1% on additional valuation in excess of $200. $1 minimum charge for small fur pieces. $2 minimum charge on coats and suits.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Philadelphia Folk Taking To Baseball

Society Matrons Beaten by Score of 13 to 9 by Schoolgirls.

"WHERE," ask the Washington debs, "do we go from here?"

"To the baseball diamond," their mothers reply, "but we go with you."

Alack-a-day, a whirligig life—this business of society. Scarcely had the debs surveyed with complacence feminine laurels upon the polo field, conquests in squash, tennis or bowling (spurred on by Mrs. Arthur O'Brien, whose house was the assembly point for hosts of bowlers), than there arises another sports goal—a winning baseball nine.

Capital society will have to get busy, for it is being done. To the front of the spring sports brigade march the lady pitcher and catcher and all the other "properties" of a baseball diamond, with the debs in the foreground and "mothers" giving them a run for their money.

It all started in staid and proper Philadelphia. The time was Wednesday. The place was the grounds of the Shady Hill Country Day School. The "girls" were Philadelphia social registerites of assorted ages. The score was 13 to 9, society matrons taking a defeat from their school girl daughters.

The umpire was an individual in shirt sleeves and green eye shades who proved to be none other than Mr. Nicholas Biddle, father of one team member and husband of another.

Kellogg and Glenn Coming on Leviathan.

Senator Otis F. Glenn, of Illinois, will reach New York tomorrow afternoon on the Leviathan from a stay in Europe. Also on the steamer are Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Lord, of Washington, and former Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, who will be at the Ritz in New York for several days.

Miss Edith R. Derby, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Derby, the latter the former Ethel Roosevelt, of Oyster Bay, and grand-daughter of the late President Theodore Roosevelt, spoke at the reunion of the Nassau County Chapter of the American Red Cross in Mineola, Long Island, last night. Miss Derby is 15 years old, she talked on the present and future of the Junior Red Cross. Her mother is chairman of the Nassau County administrative committee. Representative Robert Low Bacon presided at the meeting.

Mr. Duncan Phillips, founder of the Phillips Memorial, of Washington, was elected to the board of directors of the American Federation of Art at a meeting held on Wednesday at the Brooklyn Museum. He succeeds the late Edward Robinson as one of the board.

The board voted to ask President Hoover to set aside space in each department building in Washington where framed portraits of Cabinet members may be hung.

Acting on the basis of a report that a new Palais de Justice is soon to be erected in Athens which will obscure a view of the Acropolis, the federation voted to write to the Greek government to express the hope that the report is untrue.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, wife of Representative Bacon, of New York, was one of the hostesses at tea on Wednesday near Westbury, Long Island, where several society leaders entertained the visitors and delegates to the annual convention of the Garden Club of America, in session at Glen Cove. Mrs Bacon's gardens were on view with many others in that section. About 700 visitors are this week making the garden pilgrimages to North Shore estates and Long Island society women will entertain through the four-day convention. The Piping Rock Club seems to be the center of festivities, teas, dinners and luncheons being given daily.

Lieut. J. R. Van Nagell, U. S. N., has arrived at the Mayflower from Haiti and will remain in Washington for a few days before going to the United States Naval Academy to do some postgraduate work. His mother, Mrs. John R. Van Nagell, of San Diego, Calif., met him in Washington and will make her home with him in Annapolis.

The Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Arcaya entertained at luncheon yesterday in honor of the celebrated novelist of their country, Senor Romulo Arcaya. The guests were members of the legation staff.

On the High Seas

MISS ELSIE QUINBY, with her mother, Mrs. Duncan Cameron, is en route to this country from England. After a brief visit in Washington Mrs. Cameron and Miss Quinby will go to Newport for the summer season.

Celeste Crosby Miller Coming Here for Visit

Marriage Two Years Ago Was Brilliant Event in Warrenton.

Mrs. Ralph Miller, wife of the United States vice consul to Buenos Aires, will arrive in New York Monday from the southern republic, where she and Mr. Miller have been since their marriage two years ago.

Mrs. Miller was formerly Miss Celeste Crosby, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar T. Crosby, of View Tree, Warrenton, Va., where her wedding took place. The wedding was one of the smartest events of that season, attended by a small group of Washingtonians, a number of diplomats and officials, and many close friends of the Crosby family in nearby Virginia. Mrs. Miller had for her only attendant, Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, daughter of the former Belgian Ambassador.

View Tree, one of the show places of Virginia, was a beautiful setting for the simple ceremony which was performed by Mr. Miller's grandfather, who had not been in that part of Virginia, since he fought there in the Battle of Bull Run with the Union Army.

Mrs. Miller was among the most popular members of Washington's younger set, and many an Ambassadress has been known to place her at dinner between two high officials who were reputedly difficult to entertain, feeling an easy complacence for the success of her fete made gay by the sparkling Celeste.

Mrs. Miller will come to Washington shortly after her arrival in this country and will go to Warrenton to be with her parents during her stay. Famous are the Sunday luncheons of the Crosbys, and with clever Celeste home again, many old friends of the younger set, will again take the road to Warrenton on a Sunday.

Mr. Miller has been granted a two months' leave of absence and will join Mrs. Miller here in August.

The bride was first married on September 2, 1916, in Rye, N. Y. The engagement had been announced the previous winter on Christmas Eve, after a ball at Sherry's during Miss Palmer's debutante season.

Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Keith entertained at dinner last night in honor of Prof. Charles Schuchert, of Yale University.

Hoovers Hosts To Roosevelts For Week-End

Mrs. Mitchell Entertains Wife of President at Luncheon.

The President and Mrs. Hoover have as their guest at the White House, Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, jr., who arrived yesterday afternoon. She will be joined here tomorrow by Col. Roosevelt, Governor of Porto Rico. Col. and Mrs. Roosevelt will be in the party which President and Mrs. Hoover will entertain over the week-end at the Rapidan camp.

Mrs. Hoover was faced with a crowded program yesterday. After being entertained at luncheon by Mrs. William D. Mitchell, wife of the Attorney General, she went to Walter Reed Hospital to attend the dedication of the new memorial chapel there. And, last evening, with the President, she attended the Red Cross golden jubilee dinner at the Willard.

Mrs. Mitchell had as her other guests at luncheon wives of Cabinet members including Mrs. Stimson, Mrs. Hurley, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Wilbur, and Mrs. Doak. Also Mrs. Herbert Hoover, jr., and Mrs. Mitchell's mother, Mrs. F. L. Bancroft.

The only Cabinet women absent were Mrs. Arthur M. Hyde and Mrs. Robert Patterson Lamont, who are visiting in their respective homes.

Mrs. Hoover had as her guest at tea yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Joseph A. Haspel, of New Orleans, who is a guest at the Mayflower for a few days, having come here to attend the Memorial Chapel services at Walter Reed and the Red Cross dinner last night.

Maj. and Mrs. Charles H. MacDonald entertained a party at dinner last evening at the Shoreham Hotel.

Packs to Entertain At Luncheon Today.

The Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy and Mrs. Arthur Pack will entertain at luncheon today. They were hosts at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. Ronald Fraser, of the British foreign office, who is their guest. He is spending a short time in this country en route to England from South America.

Capt. and Mrs. Frank B. Freyer and their daughter, Miss Engracia Freyer, have motored to New York, where they will spend several days.

Mrs. Allison W. Jones, wife of Capt. Jones now stationed in Panama, is the guest of Mrs. David Lee Alexander of Chevy Chase.

Mrs. Lloyd M. Sheppard has closed her home in Cocoanut Grove, Fla., and come to Washington, staying at Wardman Park Hotel. She will remain here about ten days before going on to the Adirondacks, where she will spend the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Kahn will receive Saturday evening, May 23, at the Mayflower Hotel, in honor of the confirmation of their daughter, Charlotte.

Mr. James J. Murphy, jr., chief of the consular commercial office in the State Department, will head a foreign service delegation which will attend the national foreign trade convention in New York next Wednesday to Friday. The others are Mr. Harry A. McBride, executive assistant in the State Department; Mr. Marion Letcher, consul general stationed at Antwerp, and Consuls Louis H. Gouley, of Sao Paulo; Fletcher Warren, of Barranquilla; Leroy Weber, of Chefoo, and Walter A. Foote, of Medan, Sumatra.

Mrs. A. C. Downing and Miss Alyn Downing will leave today for New York, and on May 29 will sail on the Belgenland for Europe, where they will spend five or six months in travel.

Vatican Envoy To Washington Seen as Near

Larger House for Papal Legate Believed Step in That Direction.

Lending plausibility to the sketchy bits of conversation adrift in Capital drawing rooms that a more striking resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Vatican City is imminent is the news of the erection of a new residence by the apostolic delegate to Washington, the Most Rev. Fumasoni Biondi. The new building will be on Massachusetts avenue directly opposite the grounds of the Naval Observatory and across Thirty-fourth street from the new Norwegian Legation.

Its proximity to many of the embassies and legations adds a bit of foundation to the rumor which would send from Washington a Minister to the Vatican and, by the same token, bring to the city a representative of Vatican City for the first time since 1871 when, during the administration of President Grant, the Vatican ceased to be a temporal power, following the annexation of the "States of the Church" by the newly established Kingdom of Italy.

The new building is planned on a larger scale than the old residence on Biltmore street, presumably to accommodate an envoy who will occupy a position more entertaining than that of the present nuncio.

Great Britain was among the first to send an envoy to the Vatican City last year after the reestablishment of the temporal sovereignty of that State, in the person of a man well known to Washington, Sir Henry Getty Chilton, formerly Counselor of the British Embassy here and now British Ambassador to Chile.

Dr. Louise Taylor Jones will receive the members of the American Association of University Women tomorrow at 5 o'clock at her estate at the annual picnic of the organization. The play, "Sylvia's Dream," by Dr. Anna Marie Ketcham, will be presented. Mrs. Chester Morrill is in charge of arrangements.

Recent reservations for the May breakfast of the Political Study Club, which will take place tomorrow at the Mayflower, include Mrs. Henry Albers, who will have as her guests, Mrs. E. E. Collister, Mrs. F. A. Morhart, Mrs. A. W. Free, Mrs. Walter Wright, Mrs. Oscar Juve, Mrs. L. A. Schimph and Mrs. James Wickersham.

Mrs. Charles Maevin Jones will have with her Mrs. J. Harry Cunningham, Mrs. J. C. Hemphill and Mrs. J. Harry Phillips. Guests with Mrs. Frederic Adams Young will be Mrs. George Fiske Dudley, Mrs. Edward Croft, Mrs. John Norwood, Mrs. Mary F. Adams and Mrs. William A. Kinnear.

Dr. and Mrs. James Alexander Lyon have gone to New York for a few days, planning to return home the last of the week.

Peter Greig Weds New York Girl.

The marriage of Mrs. Lillian Adele Palmer Steers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Quintard Palmer, of Portchester, N. Y., to Mr. Peter Greig, son of the late Henry A. Greig, of Blackheath, Kent, England, recalls to Washington the attractive young man who was attached to the embassy here during the war.

The ceremony took place Wednesday, in Greenwich, Conn., and after a wedding trip the couple will make their home at Alden, in Portchester.

Mr. Greig has been making his home in this country since the war and lived in St. Louis for some years, where he was secretary to Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, president of the Pulitzer Publishing Co. He is chairman of the Oxford and Cambridge boat race dinner committee and member of the firm of Haines, Spencer & Chancellor, of New York.

Mrs. Anderson Case, of New York and Madison, N. J., is the guest of Mrs. Lester Jones.

Flag Envoys Start Soon For Europe

Mrs. Strong to Sail June 17 With Students of Pilgrimage.

Mrs. Henry Alvah Strong will close her apartment at the Mayflower the early part of next month and will sail from New York on June 17 with the group of students making the pilgrimage to Europe this summer with the United States Flag Association, of which she is honorary vice chairman general.

Keen interest in the trip is being evidenced at the United States Embassies in Great Britain and France, where Col. James A. Moss, president general of the association, has been completing the final details of the journey. In a cable message received by Mrs Strong on Monday from London he stated that Lady Astor was among others offering all possible cooperation for the hearty welcome of the young envoys in England.

On his visit to Paris about ten days ago Col. Moss was assured that the plan appealed tremendously to the French people and that the children would also be given an enthusiastic welcome there. Both Col. Picot, former minister of war of France, and Dr. J. W. Cochran, pastor of the American Church in Paris, have expressed willingness to assist.

According to Mrs. Strong there is still time for parents or relatives to arrange for sending their own children or any one wishing to sponsor a student boy or girl on the trip. Details concerning the expense and itinerary may be secured from the local offices, where information may also be given regarding the physical, mental and moral requirements.

MRS. BROWN HAS THREE CHILDREN

...a boy, a girl and a husband

AND the man is the one she has to mother the most. In spite of their size, these husbands of ours are still small boys in many ways. What they eat, particularly, must be watched so carefully.

For, as every woman knows, the things they eat have much to do with the way they act, at home and at work. Many a man has been nourished to success by an understanding wife. She sets the training-table that prepares him for the battles of business.

The world's greatest nutritionists agree that the average adult should eat more fruits, more leafy vegetables, and should drink more milk. For milk supplies the nutritive elements so many diets lack. It builds the body, helps keep teeth and bones sound. It fills in the hollow spots, and rounds out the meal. Milk is not fattening, but nourishing. Every person should have four glassfuls a day—as a beverage, or in custards, cream soups, ice cream, etc.

In the family menus include the richer, better milk from Chestnut Farms. And . . . before dinner, set a golden glassful beside the plate of the Tired Business Man, and never say a word. Ah, you're smiling. Well, you do know how it's done, don't you?

Pure, tree-ripened orange juice delivered every day!

"National Dairy" Pure Orange Juice is squeezed from tree-ripened oranges. Nothing is added—nothing removed. This juice comes to you frozen, in a vacuum-packed container. Just melt it and drink it! Place your daily order for "National Dairy" Pure Orange Juice with your milkman.

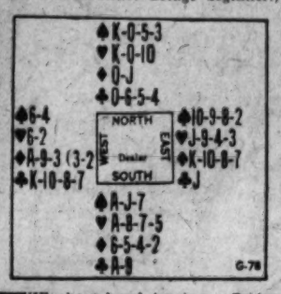
WORK ON BRIDGE

(This article is intended for the Auction and Contract Bridge beginner.)



THE above hand teaches a Bridge lesson well worth the learning. There is little in the bidding. It was played at Contract: South bid one No Trump and North three. At Auction South's one No Trump would be the only bid.

West led the Seven of Clubs, North played a small Club, East the Jack, and South won with the Ace. Declarer, appreciating that the adversaries had at least four Diamond tricks and would be in position to save game by leading that suit as soon as either of them obtained the lead, tried to put the game on ice by running four Spades, which was easy, and then four Hearts; but in the latter effort he was blocked by the four Hearts to the Jack in the East hand. After that he led a Club toward dummy's Queen, but West played the King and led a Diamond, which produced five tricks for the enemy and ended Declarer's game aspirations.

The Correct Play.

The correct play is very simple. Declarer could tell that East had three Clubs higher than Seven. They could not be King-Jack-Ten or he would have led the Jack. They could not be Jack-Ten-Eight, or he would have led the Jack; so they must be King-Ten-Eight or King-Jack-Eight and East must have either the Jack or the Ten. Therefore the play of the Queen of Clubs second hand, even although the suit is a four-carder, is sure to produce two Club tricks for Declarer; and that, with the assured four Spades and three Hearts will produce game even if the Hearts fail to run.

YOUR NAME — WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By Harry A. Defferrari, Ph. D.

THE family name "Park" (also spelled "Parke," "Parks" and "Parkes") is of English origin. Although it generally means "he who lives at or near the park," it not infrequently has a quite different origin. There is evidence that the various forms of this name are sometimes merely shortened forms of "Parkins." "Parkins" is a variation of "Perkins." What seems to be the earliest recorded instances of "Park" in English records are John del Parc (1273) and Roger atte Parke (1301).

The explanation of the family names "Parker" and "Parkers" is much more complicated than is ordinarily believed. However, in most cases "Parker' has the obvious meaning of "the keeper of the park," and indicates the occupation of the persons who were first so called. This name is found in every early register throughout England. A few fourteenth century instances are John Parkar and Hamo le Parkere. There is evidence that in a few cases "Parker" has become confused with "Park" and therefore means either "he who lives at the park or near the park" or "the son of Peter." In early English records the name "Porker" occurs with great frequency. It has the obvious meanings of "the pig keeper" and "the pig-fattener." Although "Porker" is still occasionally found in modern directories, in the great majority of cases it has been changed to "Parker.' Finally, although the family name "Parkers" generally means "the son of Parker," there is evidence that it is not infrequently a corrupted form of "Parkhouse.'

The personal and family name "Seth" is of Hebrew origin, and means "he who has been appointed." The Hebrew form of this name is "Sheth.'

Watch this column every day. Your name will appear here.

Jean Interprets the Mode

Lanvin shows charming evening pyjamas of silver lame (lah-may), with a sash of brocaded old rose lame (lah-may).

New York, May 21.

"BE as exquisite as you please in the evening, have as many gay and bizarre tea and lounging pyjamas as your heart desires, dazzle the eye with color, if you please, on tennis court or sandy beach, but do, I beseech you, be conservative on the street if you would be smart!" Thus writes one of the most charmingly fashionable women I have ever had the pleasure to meet.

Let's see, then, what we should include in street wear that will be becoming, and yet in the conservative category. These clothes are flattering and lovely, yes, but never fussy. The street suit is a good choice, or the tailored frock to be worn with a fur scarf, or one of the interesting redingotes, if you would be a bit more colorful. All three can be chosen in wool or silk, with equal effectiveness. I do think, however, that the little spring suit is far better in tweed or wool than in the silk, which, after all, is a bit soft for this type of dress.

Now as to colors. There's black, which when combined with white this year is especially good, navy, which is usually contrasted with a touch of bright red or white, or both, and dark brown, with lovely beige or eggshell or white accessories.

And last, let's take a hasty look at accessories—not too hasty, for they can make or mar the rest of your costume with the greatest ease! Let's wear small hats on the street, preferably without the ubiquitous gardenia, in bicorne, tricorne or the smart, square-crowned sailor shapes. Most of the time our gloves are white, and plain, and large enough to wrinkle around the wrists. Our bags are plain leather for smartness, too, and match our shoes which should have a moderate, comfortable walking-height heel. And certainly no one will deny our smartness, the while we know we are well within the bounds of good taste.

Lots of otherwise lovely ladies sigh and moan and groan that they just simply can't stand summer—that heat just wilts them! I'll bet a new pink-iced cookie that the main reason that they're so pessimistic about the loveliest season of all is that they don't know how to dress properly. 'N' the secret of dressing properly for summer starts right at the skin—for if you have too heavy undies, or ones that are too revealing, or ones that bind and bunch, you are'nt going to be comfortable, no matter how thin your dress is! Hot weather is just ahead, too, so you'd better hurry and send your stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for the summer lingerie leaflet I have prepared for you this week. It will certainly show you how you may attain the maximum amount of comfort with the minimum amount of undies, and as you can easily make them yourself from my directions, they are very inexpensive.

* * * *

'N' while everybody is talking and talking about pyjamas for all sorts of occasions, I just thought I'd sketch you an evening pyjama that will give you a brand-new set of favorable arguments! Lanvin designed these, and executed them in softest silver lame (lah-may). It's almost impossible to guess that they are pyjamas, isn't it, with the full and two-tiered trouser legs looking so like a skirt? The decolletage, which is deeper in back than in front, is of soft cowl draping. And the sash that ties in back is of wide, soft, old-rose brocaded lame (lah-may).

* * * *

You couldn't see any more foot and wear a shoe, now could you really? But that's what evening shoes are doing, and that's why I illustrated one for you up in the left-hand corner!

* * * *

Furs step forth in greater beauty than ever when summer comes. You'll want to read about them in the weekly Dare fashion letter in the Sunday Washington Post.

Wives of Tomorrow

FRANCES M'DONALD

Santa Claus and Husbands.

THIS column is becoming a column of advice for husbands, near-husbands and never-should-become-husbands. Today's mail is almost entirely from men. One calls us wise, one calls us sour, and one calls us catty. Is there any one in the audience who has noticed any other outstanding characteristics that deserve honorable mention? We are feeling exceptionally well this morning and neither wise, sour, nor catty, so speak your mind and feel better for a whole week. We promise to feel perfectly squelched for at least 10 seconds after reading just what we are. Would you like to hear what an ex-husband has to say about all column conductors in general and this one in particular?

Dear Madam: (Brrr-rrr-rrrrr)

For some time I have been following your column and I find it pretty bad.

Why women of the make-up displayed by you should be selected to guide the actions of other women is a mystery. Apparently man, in the eyes of such women, is a mere puppet. Woman is the real show. Woman's destiny, woman's influence, woman's patience. Any one would suppose that all the virtues were woman's particular property and all the vices were man's.

As a man I wonder whether Frances McDonald in her wide and comprehensive experience ever met a good man or a bad woman, an unselfish husband or a selfish wife?

Why are only the most sophisticated, worldly, and completely disillusioned women selected to form the opinions of younger women? Why not a motherly woman who has some sense of justice? A thousand times I have seen in your writings the implication that parenthood is a mere incident to a man, but the whole of life to a woman. Where is the justice of such a blatant untruth? My mother deserted me in the cradle and if it were not for my father I would never have known what affection was. My wife was just such a woman as my mother. I wanted a family. She could not see it that way, and rather than discuss it further I packed my belongings and left her in her glory.

I admit I hate women, every last one of them. And all clever women hate men. Only the inferior women ever love. And love the weak men. You are a clever woman and a wise one. You despise men and resent their existence and through your column instill into the minds of other women a false sense of their superiority over man—no doubt chuckling as you do.

This is, however, destructive. The average woman needs man. She has not the intelligence to survive without him. You therefore harm your own sex by exaggerating the faults of man, regardless of the fact that they revel in your performance. If men were as selfish as women all families would starve, for the men would use their own earnings for their own enjoyment.

May we sometime read a column on marriage that does not paint woman the saint and man the devil?

EX-HUSBAND.

Now isn't that nice reading with one's breakfast? And all because we try to help both men and women to see life as it is, meet it, and live it, instead of wringing their hands over human imperfections. The best wife is the one who knows all about her husband and loves him just the same, just as his mother did and in much the same way his mother did.

No one can ever be happy who goes through life bewailing the fact that they have found out all about Santa Claus. And it is the same with husbands. They have been overadvertised for centuries. Sleigh bells and all. The truth is sometimes a blow to woman. Whoever helps her to see man and his numerous shortcomings in a practical light performs a public service—and can stand a few beratings in the morning mail.

Man is a very helpful adjunct to a full life and a charming companion—once you know all about him and no longer expect him to come down the chimney of your dreams laden with everything your heart desires. For about all he brings is responsibility. And his bag is filled with demands. But what of it? Woman was created to meet these demands. All that incapacitates her is the legend about man and what he means to woman. Once she accepts him as man and not the answer to her prayers and the fulfillment of her dreams all will be well.

We thank you.

THE POPULAR SEMPERVIVUMS.

SEMPERVIVUMS. Do you know this interesting family of plants with the long, hard name? Or would you know them better were I to call them by their common name, houseleeks?

These wee plants that never grow up have no real beauty, as has the lily and the rose, to recommend them; yet each rosette of sage green leaves makes a very definite appeal to all lovers of nature. Like the sedums, if grown in their natural settings of stones, they will very soon win their way into your garden likings, as you learn to know their quaint poses and formations.

Houseleeks are domestic little plants. In the Old World we find them growing quite happily on the very housetops of the oldest houses. They are such comfortable little bunches of green; when they come into your garden they come to stay.

The houseleek, or homewart, requires its own environment and is always ill at ease when planted with military precision along the outer edge of a straight border. We often see them so placed in public places and when we do we long to lift them and carry them off.

They are always well placed when used to fill odd corners or when planted along the edge of a brick pathway. Here they have a chance to spread themselves, and how beautifully they do it. The children always love the sempervivums. They know them by the name of "hen and chickens."

One interesting way to grow these wee plants is to fill a box with rather poor soil, then bore some large holes in the sides of the box. In the center of the box, on the surface of the soil, set four sempervivums and in each hole in the side stick a very young plant. You will be surprised at the resultant development. Before long those plants on top will be peeping over the edge and those set in the holes will be diligently reaching out to their nearest neighbor. Soon the entire top and sides of the box will be covered with these most perfect green rosettes.

Sempervivums are just the plants for filling the popular strawberry jars. They are also useful for planting in the miniature dish gardens. They do their best in a rather sunny situation, and while they do grow with little moisture they should be watered in the house about three times a week. In the open ground you may water them once a week and depend upon the rain to supply the rest of the moisture.

What Today Means to You

"GEMINI."

IF May 22 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 a. m. to 11:30 a. m., from 3 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9:10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger hours are from 1 p. m. to 2:45 p. m. and from 5:50 p. m. to 8:15 p. m.

May 22 does not, according to the stars, hold out any bright prospects except to those of artistic tastes. For the conventional sort of person, the day will be unsatisfactory and rather muddled. In the evening, conditions will improve and all social activities will be crowned with success.

Children born on this May 22 will, in early years, be handicapped by oft-recurring ailments. Once the period of adolescence is attained, they will develop along normal lines, revealing not only physical but moral and intellectual strength. They will be both successful and happy.

Born on May 22, you are independent in thought and in action. This, in youth, militated against your success, and caused many to shake their heads in despair. You, however, have always shown much tenacity of purpose and never faltering, you have established your right to absolute freedom, as your originality wins out, when conventionalism and general usage might only fail.

You are largely governed by intuitions and impressions, and have a gift for "sensing" things that others do not feel. You enjoy your own companionship, and are never happier than when all alone you wrestle with a problem or try to analyze a complex situation. It can not be said that you are a curmudgeon, as, when in the society of others, you are a brilliant—and, sometimes, spectacular—conversationalist.

The signs denote that you will travel extensively. In your case, this will give you a breadth of view and a tolerance that will make you charitable and sympathetic. You are a great reader, and your memory is a retentive one. You only evince an interest in sports sufficient to give you a certain amount of physical exercise. You are a good friend, and never a bitter enemy. Marriage will round out and mellow your character.

Successful people born May 22:

2—Arthur Tappan, reformer.
3—Sidney H. Gay, journalist and author.
4—Worthington Whittredge, artist.

Woman Lost 19 Pounds of Fat---Cost 85 Cents

Table Tells How Much Women and Girls Should Weigh

How would you like to lose 19 pounds of fat in a month and at the same time increase your energy and improve your health?

That's just what one western woman did—How happy she is.

How would you like to lose a load of unhealthy fat that you don't need and don't want and at the same time feel better than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too prominent abdomen and at the same time make your skin so clean and clear that it will compel admiration?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure and also gain in ambition and keenness of mind?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh—then get an 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last you for 4 weeks. Take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water every morning—cut out pastry and fatty meats—and when you have finished the contents of this first bottle weigh yourself again.

Now you can laugh at the people who pay hundreds of dollars to lose a few pounds of fat—now you will know the safe, swift and pleasant way to lose unsightly fat and you'll also know that the 6 salts of Kruschen (Salts that your blood, nerves and glands should possess to function properly)—have presented you with glorious health.

After that you'll want to walk around and say to your friends, "One 85 cent bottle of Kruschen Salts is worth one hundred dollars of any fat person's money."

Leading druggists' America over sell Kruschen Salts. But one bottle with the distinct understanding that you will be joyfully satisfied or money back.

Mrs. C. L. of Shepardsville, Kentucky, writes: "I have reduced 24 pounds in 31 days with Kruschen and I ate three meals a day." Peoples Drug Stores know all about Kruschen. —Adv.

CHIEF PRIZE WINNER MUST WRITE 35 ADS

Each Participating Concern Required as Subject at Least Once.

Winners to Be Named On Radio Tomorrow

Because of the unprecedented number of advertisements which flooded in to The Post in the last week the announcement of the weekly prize winner will be delayed until tomorrow evening. It will be announced at 10 o'clock over radio station WRC in the Washington Gas Light Co. program.

A full list of winners will be announced in the Sunday edition of this paper.

When the clock strikes 12, midnight, Saturday, May 30, The Post-Zain Ad Writing Contest will be over. Like Cinderella in the story books, whose fine clothing turned to rags, all your fine chances of winning the $1,000 grand award will have been in vain unless you have written at least one ad about each of the 35 participating concerns.

Imagine how Cinderella felt when she saw the amazing transformation in her exquisite clothing. That illustration would probably demonstrate your feeling if you should find your ad selected as the $1,000 grand prize winner and the judges, on making the final check, should find you have only written about 34 of the participating concerns, thus destroying your chance of receiving the prize.

Suggestions about different concerns are published daily in this column to help you write the $1,000 prize winning ad. Here are a few tips:

Rizik Brothers Have New Store.

In your ads about the Paris home of fashions, Rizik Brothers, remember they have recently opened a shop opposite the Mayflower Hotel. This beautiful new up-to-date store is filled with lovely gowns, exquisite evening wear, chic sport and street apparel and all those garments and accessories which enhance one's individual beauty. Rizik Brothers are specialists in women's apparel. Remember their other store is located at 1213 F street. If you want the ultra-smart, the latest in fashions, the best in quality and reasonable prices, Rizik Brothers, the combination of all these, are there to serve you.

Remember, if that grand award prize winning ad is written about this concern it is going to give an additional $1,000 to the $1,000 winner. What a chance for you ad writers.

Merchandise Is Prize.

Thomas E. Clark affords you another big opportunity to win that grand prize. Whether you win the grand award or not, if you write the best ad about this concern you will receive a $20 merchandise order which you can apply on any of its stock. In your ads feature the Standard plumbing fixtures and the acid-resisting fixtures which can be had at a small additional cost. This concern carries a complete line of plumbing fixtures in varying colors to suit the individual and the home. Get busy writing those ads about Thomas E. Clark, Inc., at once.

One Match Is Winter Supply.

Do you want a $200 Janitrol gas conversion burner? Foolish question, we know. Here is how you can get it—and perhaps the grand prize of $1,000 also. Write lots of ads about automatic gas heat. Incorporate in your ads the facts that gas heat is clean, effortless and certified by engineers. One match is your winter's kindling supply. It eliminates ordering fuel or storing it away in bins and you are always assured of uniform heat instantly ready to match the ups and downs of the outside temperature.

New Slogan Is Suggested.

The tire that never tires. How's that for a slogan for the famous U. S. Royal Cord Tires? In your ads about Bailey Tire Stores don't forget to incorporate the outstanding features of the U. S. Royal Cord Tires. Call at one of the convenient Bailey Tire Stores and learn the facts about U. S. Tires; learn why the wise motorist has his car equipped with these tires. This is the tire that covers more miles for less money and eliminates your tire troubles.

Ale Will Help Ideas.

Don't forget to write lots of ads about National Pale Dry Ginger Ale. This famous beverage is the Capital's favorite drink. It stimulates and refreshes the mind; a body builder for old and young. It contains only the purest ingredients and is so deliciously blended that it produces a totally different taste than any other ginger ale on the market. If your mind is tired and you find it difficult to think up new ads try a bottle of this cooling beverage, which will act as the key to your storeroom of original ads. It will unlock the door and that $1,000 prize winning idea will pop out. You don't believe it? Try this suggestion and watch results. Come on everybody. Plenty of time left to enter your ads in this final week.

days these names will be published in Sunday morning's Post. Because these splendid ads were so numerous, The Post is awarding many additional prizes. Be sure to read The Post Sunday morning. The $100 prize winner, the four other big award winners, the 280 merchandise winners, the special prize winners and the many additional prizes The Post is giving to winners in the sixth period of this contest will be published.

The following firms participating in The Post-Zain Amateur Ad Writing Contest, have announced SPECIAL AWARDS IN ADDITION to the $1,000 grand prize which will be given by The Post this seventh and last week of the contest.

D. J. Kaufman, Inc. (Radio Joe)—$45 "Beau Geste" hand-tailored, silk-lined, 2-trouser suit will be given for the best ad submitted about their concern during entire contest.

Washington Gas Light Co.—A $200 Janitrol gas conversion burner to the writer of the best ad on automatic gas heat during entire contest.

Maryland Line Officers To Fete District Group

Members of the Line Officers Association of the Odd Fellows in the District will be guests of the Line Officers Association of the order in Maryland at Bowie Monday night. They plan to leave by bus from the Odd Fellows Temple.

The line officers here also will be guests of the Covenant Lodge Wednesday night, with Martin A. McGregory, president of the association, presiding.

Charity Box in Synagogue Robbed.

A charity box, containing $1.30, was stolen early yesterday from the Jewish Synagogue at 602 I street northwest, according to a report made to police by Herman Schrot, sexton of the synagogue. He said entrance was gained by forcing a front window.

CHANGE IN BUILDING HEIGHT LINE SOUGHT

Proposal for I Street Area to Be Considered June 3; Hotel Is Planned.

A proposal to raise the building height line on the north side of I street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets northwest, from 90 feet to 110 is one of the 27 cases to be considered June 3 by the District Zoning Commission, Maj. D. A. Davison, Assistant Engineer Commissioner, announced yesterday. A large hotel is planned for this area.

An application has also been made to alter the zoning of property near the District line and bounded by Georgia avenue, Geranium street and Blair road, so as to permit establishment of a private country club. This would be the only private golf course in the District. Twenty-one acres are involved.

Another unique proposal has been made by developers of the Westchester Apartments, who wish to change the zoning of 8,770 square feet of area entirely within the apartment group so as to permit the establishment of stores to serve the apartment occupants. The stores would not be visible to passersby.

The commission will consider a proposal to change the zoning of the frontage of the east side of Twentieth street, between Florida avenue and R street, from residential to first commercial. The west side of the street is already commercial. The Dupont Circle Citizens Association is expected to oppose the application.

Another proposal is for the changing of a small piece of property on the south side of Harvard street, between Eighteenth street and Adams Mill road, to permit erection of a large apartment house.

—Pulitzer Prize Novel—

YEARS OF GRACE

SYNOPIS.

Jane and her three friends are graduated from high school with the class of '24. She and Agnes take the examinations for Bryn Mawr, while Flora and Muriel go abroad for the summer. Andre too, is leaving for France to study art. Jane is invited by Mr. and Mrs. Duror to go to a picnic with Andre, and on the lake shore by moonlight, he confesses his love for Jane and asks her to marry him. They exchange their first kiss and Jane realizes at last that she loves Andre.

ANDRE—CHAPTER VI.

JANE came downstairs next morning a little late to breakfast. The family were all at the table. Jane slipped silently into her seat and unfolded her napkin. It seemed strange to hear her mother and Isabel arguing just as usual and to see her father buried, as always, in the Morning Tribune and to realize that for them this golden morning was just like any other. For her it opened a new era. Jane felt a little guilty as she hugged her happy secret to her heart. And very much frightened. And terribly excited.

Just after breakfast the telephone rang. Jane rushed to the pantry to answer it. Yes, it was Andre. His voice sounded just a little confused, but cheerful, too.

"Hello," he said. "How—how are you?"

"Oh—I'm fine," said Jane. Her heart was beating fast.

"Happy?" said Andre.

"Oh—yes," breathed Jane. That was all. It seemed to satisfy Andre.

"When does your father come home?" asked Andre.

"Half past 5," said Jane.

"Mother thinks," said Andre, "that I—I oughtn't to see you again, until I speak to him."

"What else does she think?" asked Jane anxiously.

"Well," said Andre, and his voice sounded just a little rueful. "She—she think's it's all right—now."

"What did your father say?" asked Jane.

Andre's voice seemed to hesitate.

"He—he was awfully surprised," he said. "Much more surprised than mother. But they—they understood—after I talked to them."

"Andre," said Jane miserably, "they don't like it."

"Oh, yes—they do," said Andre uncertainly. "At least——" Then with increasing confidence, "They like you, Jane. It's just what they think——" He stopped.

"We're young," said Jane.

"Yes," said Andre.

"Well—we are," said Jane.

"Anyway," said Andre, cheerfully, "Father said of course I must tell your father."

There was a little pause.

"It's really all right," said Andre.

Jane wished she could be sure of that.

"Well—goodby," said Jane. "I'll see you this afternoon."

A funny little sound clicked in Jane's ear.

"That was a kiss," said Andre. "Good-by—dear."

Jane hung up the receiver and pressed her forehead weakly against the mouthpiece. Dear Andre—darling Andre. She was terribly frightened. Yet radiantly happy, through and through. She could hear his voice still, with that funny little break at the end. "Good-by—dear." He did love her. She had said she would marry him. Marry—Andre. But they were much too young. Her mother—

Jane walked slowly up the stairs to her own bedroom and closed the door. She sat down at the window and looked out at the willow tree. It seemed only yesterday that she and Andre had climbed it. The remnants of their tree house—a few weather-beaten planks—were still visible in its middle branches. She was going to marry Andre. She was going to be his wife.

At 5 o'clock Jane took up her stand in the parlor window to wait for her father. Isabel was out playing tennis, thank goodness, on the Superior street courts. Her mother was in the kitchen superintending the solemn rites of the June jelly-making.

Jane heard the door open and close and her father's quick step in the hall. Then his footsteps receded toward his library and were lost. Silence and the smell of cooking currants dominated the house once more.

She ought to go in, thought Jane, and—and talk to him. She ought to break the ice for Andre. It would be terrible for Andre. She walked slowly toward the parlor door. At the entrance to the library she paused. Her father was seated at his desk, running through the afternoon mail.

"What's the matter, Kid?" asked her father. "You look as sober as a judge."

"Nothing," said Jane.

Her father threw some mail in the waste basket. Then he looked up again with a smile.

"Any one dead?" he inquired cheerfully.

"No," said Jane.

"What's the trouble?" he asked. "Been worrying about Bryn Mawr?"

"No," said Jane. Bryn Mawr, indeed!

"Well—don't," said her father. "I'll see you get there."

"Papa—" began Jane desperately, and stopped.

"Yes," said her father.

"Papa," said Jane again, "I—I want you to help me."

"All right," said her father. "I will."

"I—I hope you will," said Jane a little desperately, then went on in a rush. "I—I want you to understand. I want you to remember that I—I'm not a—child any more. I want you to be good to Andre. I want——"

"Good to Andre?" repeated her father. He looked very much astonished.

"Yes—good to Andre," said Jane. And then the doorbell rang. She rushed incontinently from the room and halfway up the stair. Minnie was coming out of the pantry. Jane sat down, just above the first landing. Minnie opened the front door. Jane could see Andre quite distinctly from the dark of the staircase. He couldn't see her.

"Is Mr. Ward in?" he asked. His voice sounded very brave and steady to Jane.

"Yes," said Minnie and led him to the library door.

"Mr. Ward?" Jane heard him say, on the threshold. And then her father's voice. "Come in, Andre." She heard her father's footsteps. Andre vanished into the library. An unknown hand closed the door.

Presently her mother came out through the pantry door. She had on a long white apron, stained with currant juice, and her hair was ruffled. She looked very flushed and pretty after an afternoon in the hot kitchen. But not very neat. She noticed Andre's hat on the hat rack, immediately.

"Who is here. Minnie?" she called over her shoulder.

"Mr. Andre," said Minnie from the pantry.

"Where is he?" asked her mother.

"He asked for Mr. Ward," said Minnie.

"For Mr. Ward?" said Jane's mother incredulously. Then after a pregnant pause, "Where is he, now?"

"They're both in the library," said Minnie.

Then Jane's mother perceived Jane.

"I—I don't have to—marry him," said Jane faintly. "I just want to—to promise that I will when we're old enough. I just want——"

She looked her up and down as she sat crouched on the staircase.

"What does Andre want of your father?" she said.

Jane didn't reply.

"Jane!" said Jane's mother.

Jane stared at her in silence.

"What does this mean?" said Jane's mother.

"Oh, Mamma!" pleaded Jane, suddenly finding her voice. "Please—please don't—spoil it. Let him talk to papa! Oh, mamma——"

Without another word, regardless alike of Jane's imploring entreaties and her own currant-strained apron, Mrs. Ward opened the library door. She closed it after her. Jane sat quite still, for several minutes, in horror. Then she heard her mother's voice raised in incredulous indignation behind the closed door.

"I never heard anything so ridiculous in all my life! John, you haven't been listening to them? Andre—it—it's perfectly absurd——"

Jane waited to hear no more. She flung herself hotly down the stairs and burst in at the library door.

Her father was sitting very quietly in a leather armchair and Andre was erect at his side. Her mother stood in the center of the room, her flushed, indignant face turned toward the men before her. She looked quickly at Jane.

"Jane, leave the room," she said.

"I won't," said Jane. And closed the door behind her. Her father held out his hand.

"Come here, kid," he said. Jane rushed to his side. She looked quickly up at Andre. She hoped her heart was in her eyes. Andre smiled steadily down at her. He looked shaken, however.

"Jane——" began her mother again.

"Lizzie," said her father, and there was a note in his voice Jane had never heard before. "Leave this to me."

Her mother, with compressed lips, sank down in the other armchair. Her father pressed Jane's hand very kindly.

"Kid," he said gently. "You know this won't do."

"What won't do?" cried Jane in desperation.

Her father still held her hand.

"You—you and Andre can't—get married."

"Why not?" flashed Jane.

"Because you're children," said her father. It was terribly true.

"I don't care!" said Jane.

"Well, I do," said her father. "And so does your mother. And so do Andre's parents. He very honestly told me that. And so does Andre, really. Andre doesn't want to persuade you to do anything that isn't right—that won't bring you happiness——"

Happiness! Jane threw a tearful glance at Andre. He looked very proud and stern, standing there before her father. He gave her a tremulous smile.

"Papa," said Jane, "I know I'd be happy with Andre——"

"Don't talk like that!" cried her mother sharply. But her father silenced her.

"You think so now, kid," he said kindly. "But you can't tell. You don't know anything about it, either of you. Andre's 19 years old. He's got five or six years of education ahead of him, on his own say-so before he can be any kind of a sculptor. You were 17 last month. You've known Andre for four years and you've never said three words to any other boy. You can't know your own mind and he can't know his, either. Five or six years from now, you might both understand what you were talking about. Andre's going to France next week to live. He's a Frenchman and that's where he belongs. You've got to stay here with your mother and me and grow up into a woman before you talk about marrying any one."

"I—I don't have to—marry him," said Jane faintly. "I just want to—to promise that I will when we're old enough. I just want——"

"Jane," said her mother very reasonably, "we'll cross that bridge when we come to it. We don't have to think of that now."

"I just—want to—wait for him," faltered Jane. Then, with a flash of spirit, "You can't help my waiting!"

"Of course not," said her father pacifically. "But no promises, Andre, on either side."

"And no letters," put in her mother. Jane's father shook his head at her, but she insisted, "No, John. No letters until Jane's 21. You must promise that, Andre. I won't have her tied down to any understanding."

"I guess that's right, Andre," said Jane's father soberly. "You'd better promise."

Jane and Andre exchanged a glance of despair. There was a brief pause.

"How about it, my boy?" said Jane's father.

"I—promise," said Andre huskily.

Jane's mother gave a sigh of relief. She had the situation in hand now.

"I think you had better go, Andre," she said very kindly.

"Can I see Jane again?" Andre asked.

"I think you'd better not," said Jane's mother. "It would only be painful."

"Then I'd like—I'd— like——" said Andre steadily, "to say good-by to her now."

"Of course," said Jane's father, very promptly rising. "Come, Lizzie."

Jane's mother looked very reluctant to leave the room.

"I don't like this," she said.

"Mrs. Ward," said Andre, "you can trust me."

Jane's father threw him an admiring glance. He fairly pushed her mother from the room. He closed the door behind them. Jane turned to gaze at Andre.

"Andre," she said breathlessly, "what—what can we do?"

"We can wait," said Andre. "And we can think of each other."

"Andre," said Jane earnestly, "did—did your father and mother talk like that, too?"

"They didn't talk like that—they thought the same things. I—I could see them thinking."

"They didn't—like it?"

"They like you," said Andre. "Father said you were a girl in a thousand."

"Well, then—?" said Jane.

"Mother thought I was much too young and she thought I ought to be able to support a wife before I asked a girl to marry me. She thought it was pretty rotten—my asking you. And father—well, father had always expected me to marry in France, of course. And we're—we're all Catholics. That doesn't mean much to me, but it does to him. But when I told them how—how I felt about you—well, they said—all right—I could try my luck with your father. I—didn't have much. Though he was awfully decent. I haven't a leg to stand on, of course. I can't support you and I—I've got to go to France—you—you—understand that, Jane—I've got to go—to study, you know, if I'm ever going to amount to anything. Father and mother both said that. I couldn't do anything here. I—I guess I don't sound like much of a son-in-law——"

"But, Andre," said Jane, "do you mean—do you mean that there's nothing, absolutely nothing, that we can do?"

"Well," said Andre, "what is there?" What was there, indeed?

"I—I shouldn't have asked you," said Andre.

"Oh, Andre!" cried Jane. "You must never think that!"

"Why not?" said Andre.

"You made me so happy," said Jane simply.

Andre took a quick step toward her. Then he stopped. He remembered.

"Oh, Jane!" he said, and dropped down on the sofa. "Jane—my love!" He buried his face in his hands.

Jane sank down on her knees beside him. She pulled his hands away from his face. Andre was crying. She took him in her arms.

"Andre," she said breathlessly, "Andre!" She looked eagerly up at him.

"I—I promised your mother," he said huskily.

"I didn't promise any one!" cried Jane desperately. "Andre—you must kiss me good-by!"

He took her in his arms. His lips met hers. The world was lost again. But this time Jane knew that it was really there, pressing close about them, menacing them, parting them, saying they were—young. She slipped from his embrace. She rose to her feet. Andre stood up, too, and held out his hands. She seized them in her own. He stooped to kiss her fingers.

"Good-by," he said.

"Andre," she said, "I'll always——"

He managed a wavering smile.

"No promises," he said. "Just thoughts."

"All my thoughts!" said Jane. He stumbled toward the door. On the threshold he turned again.

"Good-by," he said.

"Andre!" cried Jane. "I—I can't bear it!" She heard her father's voice in the hall.

"I'm sorry, Andre. You—you've behaved so well, both of you." Their steps died down the passage. Jane heard the front door open and close. She rushed to the window. Andre was walking, furiously fast, up Pine street. At the corner he turned to look back. She waved wildly. She kissed her hand. He smiled again, very bravely. Then turned and vanished. Jane flung herself face downward on the sofa. The mark of Andre's elbow was still on the pillow. She buried her face in it passionately. She heard her father enter the room. He walked slowly over to the sofa.

"Little Jane," he said, "don't cry like that."

Jane only buried her face the deeper. There was a little pause.

"Kid," said her father, "you're so young that you don't know that you'll get over it. You get over everything."

Jane thought that was a horrible philosophy. She heard her father moving about a little helplessly. Then he bent over and touched her shoulder.

"I'll see you go to Bryn Mawr," he said, "with Agnes."

"Oh, let me alone," cried Jane. "Just—let—me—alone!" She heard her father turn and walk quietly out of the room. Jane quietly put both her arms tightly around Andre's pillow. She was sobbing as if her heart would break. She thought it was breaking.

Boyd School Loses 3-Cent Fare Plea

Utilities Commission Holds Curriculum Does Not Meet Schedule.

A request of the Boyd School for Secretaries, 1333 F street northwest, to be added to the list of schools eligible to benefits of the 3-cent fare was refused yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission on the ground that the applicant's curriculum does not conform with that of the public schools.

The application was made after a similar request of Strayer's Business College had been granted. This was the first commercial school to be added to the list which includes, besides public and parochial schools, a number of exclusive private schools.

The Boyd School can appeal to the District Supreme Court, but it is not likely that it will, as only ten of its pupils come within the 18-year-old age limit.

Senor Don Rene Montero, attache of the Chilean Embassy, has taken an apartment at Wardman Park Hotel.

The regular monthly meeting of the State historic committee of the District of Columbia of the Daughters of the American Revolution was held at the Willard last night. The guest speaker for the occasion was Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard, who is the official historian for the bicentennial.

Lieut. Waddell Sailing To Teach in Sweden.

Lieut. Hugh B. Waddell, aid to the former chief of staff, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, has left Washington for his new duty at the Swedish Cavalry School, in Stromsholm.

Lieut. Waddell, known to his many friends as "Wazu," was in Washington for several years, during which time he was one of the military aids at the White House, in addition to his detail as aid to the chief of staff. He sailed early this month and is now in Europe where he will spend the summer before reporting at Stromsholm for the opening of the course in the fall.

Lieut. Waddell made his home while in Washington at 1616 K street, and his quarters there have been taken over by Maj. John M. Eager, of the Field Artillery.

Like all Cavalry officers, Lieut. Waddell looks forward with great anticipation to his post at the foreign school. It is a great honor to be selected for duty at such a school, and may lead to other similar posts.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT is probably true that in no other business in the world are so many people hired and given absolutely nothing to do as in the motion picture industry. At the moment I have not so much in mind the relatives of the "higher ups," whose names clutter up the pay rolls of a majority of the major producing companies, as the players whose appearances before the public are popularly supposed to represent an earning power that their managers number among their valuable assets.

The case of Noel Francis may be cited as an example. Taken all the way to Hollywood from New York for a "tryout" period of six months, not once did she appear on the screen. She received a generous check every week, but her pleas to be given a chance in even a small part went wholly unheeded.

The six months passed, Miss Francis cashed her final check and was packing for the return trip to New York when another studio offered her a role. She has worked more or less regularly since.

Few of the "all pay, no work" group are so fortunate, according to Mr. Hubbard Keavy, this department's West Coast operative. Zita Johann, seen at the Belasco last season and recognized in the profession as one of the stage's most competent leading women, spent half a year in Hollywood loafing and hoping, to no avail. No one knows why she was never given a chance.

Sylvia Sidney, at the Fox, beginning today, in "Six Cylinder Love," by the way, after experiencing a similar indifference on the part of executives and casting directors, returned to the movies for a second try. Two years ago, after a solitary role, she waited five months for the phone to ring. She was being paid, but with no work to do it wasn't any fun. Then she was rediscovered, taken back to the Coast and dropped into Clara Bow's place in "City Streets," with Gary Cooper.

The list might be extended almost indefinitely. A great many of the names upon it would belong to youngsters who have been handicapped by circumstances over which they have no control. There simply haven't been any parts for them—except Frances McCoy, a diminutive blonde blues singer, who isn't worried. She was in one scene in one picture and played the lead in an unsuccessful, unheard-of film. "One-Shot" McCoy she calls herself.

Tough, this drawing salary and having nothing to do—so I hear. If you think I'd say no to a chance to try it, with a hot summer coming on, you're crazy!

There was a party at the Fox yesterday afternoon. Monroe Tabor and Fred Greene, the blackface comics with the "Society Circus" unit, who have done a 40-week continuous tour of duty with Fanchon & Marco, left the company last night to join a new musical comedy being produced in Chicago. Their associates in the revue presented them with two statuettes of themselves, fashioned by Agnes Galligan, who happens to be company manager, and a miniature piano, modeled after the tiny one they use in their stage act. I understand some of the girls cried, so they must have had a swell time!

This coulmn is indebted to Mr. E. V. Wilcox, Ph. D., president of the Shakespeare Society of Washington, for the honor of having been asked to address the membership at their annual banquet, to be held on Wednesday night, May 27, which, fortunately for the society, is a date upon which this department is not at liberty. They are to be congratulated on their narrow escape.

Speaking of the Fox—as we were a paragraph or so back yonder—in the June issue of the American Magazine, just out, there is an interesting interview with Ruth Chatterton, written by Edgar Waite. Mr. Waite has told me something of the circumstances surrounding the interview and its publication.

It seems that by merest accident Mr. Waite—who used to be a newspaper man himself—sat next to Miss Chatterton and her husband, Ralph Forbes, at the opening performance of "America's Sweetheart," in New York, last February. She was leaving in three days for the Coast. By the time Mr. Waite had sold the idea to the editor, he had two days left. The interview was secured in broken doses of two hours each over the two-day period and written over night at a single sitting, in time to be approved by Miss Chatterton before her departure.

But there it is, and a pretty rattling good yarn, at that. And if you don't remember who Mr. Waite is, he is the present director of publicity at the Fox.

NEW CINEMA OFFERINGS

METROPOLITAN

"SVENGALI," Warner Brothers picturization of Du Maurier's "Trilby," adapted to the screen by J. Grubb Alexander, starring John Barrymore, supported by Marian Marsh, Bramwell Fletcher, Donald Crisp and Lumsden Hare. Directed by Archie Mayo. Reviewed Thursday afternoon.

There is little here to add luster to the already brilliant name of Barrymore. Remade as a dialogue picture without any material alteration of the story structure or treatment accorded the dramatized novel of "Trilby" when it was first produced upon the stage something over 35 years ago, "Svengali"—so titled to accommodate the masculine gender of its present star—seems an outmoded and unenlivened bit of theatricalism.

The title role, I should say, does not represent one of John Barrymore's most notable achievements. The unkempt and filthy genius of musical composition — erratic, supremely egotistical, but never so sinister as he should be—who through a highly developed hypnotic power makes a famous prima donna of the little model who has posed for his three artist friends, is much more John Barrymore than he is the ominous and repellant Pole. The matted hair and scraggly beard are not enough to screen the humor of a suave comedian or dull the glint of a mischievous eye. In the scenes in which the power of hypnotism is so melodramatically employed a weird and repulsive terrorism is lent Svengali's gaze by a trick of photographic lighting.

Almost the entire burden of the story rests upon the drooping shoulders of the titular character. Little Marian Marsh, although a seemingly precocious youngster, lends the star no appreciable dramatic support in the role of Trilby. No more can be said of Lumsden Hare and Donald Crisp, in the quaint roles of Taffy and The Laird, but a sturdier and more helpful bit of portraiture is contributed by Bramwell Fletcher, who impersonates Little Billee, the thwarted lover, who finally triumphs as Svengali's persistent Nemesis.

The development of the bizarre love story leads from the attic studios of Paris, through the leading opera houses of the capitals of Europe to one of Cairo's dingy cabarets as Svengali's waning powers trace a descending course also for the untutored beauty who shines only under the spell of his hypnosis. The settings and photography are excellent, save that the attic lodgings are given an oddly expansive effect suggestive of some mighty ramp in, say, the Grand Central Station.

The major feature is numerously supported. The fourth installment of "Adventures in Africa" concerns itself with "Spears of Death" and reveals many strange tribal rites on the Dark Continent. A Looney Tunes cartoon comedy, "The Trees Knees," has its moments, and the Universal News, expounded by a subdued Graham McNamee, is diversified and interesting. A diverting song and dance novelty in natural colors is the Vitaphone Variety, "Modern Business," which is notable, among numerous other reasons, because it enlists the talents of Bernard Granville, long absent from both stage and screen.

Youth Riding Bicycle Hurt by Automobile

While riding his bicycle on Sixteenth street near Fuller street northwest yesterday morning, Frank Meyers, 17 years old, of 1354 Kenyon street northwest, received severe injuries when he was thrown to the ground when struck by an automobile said to have been operated by Owen L. Lentz, of Mount Pleasant street near Park road northwest.

Young Meyers was taken to Emergency Hospital, where physicians said he was suffering from lacerations to his left arm and possible internal injuries. He remained at the hospital. Police said the accident was unavoidable.

ARLINGTON OFFICES OPENED TO CLERKS

Hoover Order Allows Civil Service Employes to Hold Public Jobs.

President Hoover yesterday signed an executive order permitting Federal Civil Service employes to hold part-time public offices in Arlington County, Va. About 5,000 Government workers live in the county.

The first to take advantage of the executive order was William C. Hull, of Leeway, who announced his candidacy for a place on the county board.

Under a reorganization that takes effect next January, Arlington County becomes a municipality. At that time the board of county supervisors will go out of existence and be supplanted by a new board of five members.

Recommended by Commission.

The executive order signed by President Hoover yesterday was recommended by the Civil Service Commission and was the result of an appeal made to the commission by Arlington County civic leaders.

President Hoover's order follows:

"Officers and employes of the executive civil service permanently residing in Arlington County, Va., may become candidates for and hold local office in such county and may participate in campaigns for election to such offices.

"In the exercise of the privilege granted by this order officers and employes must not neglect their official duties and must not engage in national or State politics in violation of the civil service rules. If there is such a violation, the head of the department or independent office in which the person is employed shall inflict such punishment as the Civil Service Commission shall recommend.

Time Conflict Is Barred.

"Officers and employes elected or appointed to offices requiring full-time service shall resign their positions with the Federal Government. If elected or appointed to offices requiring only part-time service, they may accept and hold same without relinquishing their Federal employment, provided the holding of such part-time office does not conflict or interfere with their official duties as officers or employes of the Federal Government.

"This order is based upon the fact that Arlington County is substantially a municipality; that a considerable number of the residents and taxpayers are employed in the Government service; that service as local officers in such county should in no way involve general partisan political activity, and that the principle of local home rule and self-government justifies such participation.

"The permission granted by this order may be suspended or withdrawn by the Civil Service Commission when, in its opinion, the activities resulting therefrom are or may become detrimental to the public interests or inimical to the proper enforcement of the civil service rules.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

County Benefited by Order.

Mr. Hull, who filed for a place on the county board, is a lifelong resident of Arlington County. For the last seven years he has taken an active part in civic affairs. For two years he held the office of president of the Arlington County Civic Federation, was a member of the executive committee and a delegate to the interfederation conference.

Commenting on the executive order signed by President Hoover, Hugh J. McGrath, chairman of the special committee from the Arlington County Civic Federation which prepared the petition and spent much time in preparing the necessary data to accompany it, said last night: "I am more than pleased and I feel that I voice the sentiment of the entire membership of the committee and the hundreds of citizens who have awaited the action of the President.

"As a result of this order it makes it possible for all citizens to participate on an equal basis in local affairs, and it is bound to result in much benefit to the county."

Salvation Army Progress Noted

Southern Territory Chief Finds District Division in Good Condition.

Progress made by the District of Columbia division of the Salvation Army during the past year has been "most gratifying," according to Commissioner Alexander M. Damon, commanding the Southern territory of the army, who made the annual inspection of the local division yesterday. Commissioner Damon remained in Washington last night to attend the Red Cross banquet at the Willard as the personal representative of Evangeline Booth, commander in chief of the United States forces.

"In both the senior and young people's work, we found that splendid progress had been made," Commissioner Damon said. "Not only has the work of Maj. Asher, commanding the division, and Ensign Charles Dodd, at headquarters, been all that could be desired, but the work of the officers and workers in all the corps has been excellent."

The commissioner also paid a tribute to the work of the Community Chest in relieving the officials of the army from solicitation of funds. The District division is made up of the District of Columbia and parts of Maryland and Virginia.

Doomed Cat Ignites Gas, Escapes Death Chamber

Spokane, Wash., May 21 (A.P.).—Ralph Morse rubbed the cat's fur the wrong way.

There was a flaming blast, a feline yowl, a human howl and they summoned an ambulance for Ralph, who was burned about the face.

Morse was putting the cat into the lethal gas chamber at the Humane Society barns at the time of the accident. Static electricity from the doomed animal ignited the gas.

The cat escaped.

PROTECT YOURSELF AGAINST TYPHOID.

THE summer season approaches. Presently, people will be making their vacation plans. Some will go into places where they will be exposed to typhoid infection, and it will not be feasible to purify the water they are to drink or to get pasteurized milk. They want to know something about vaccination against typhoid.

In the Olean epidemic of typhoid there was proof that vaccination confers considerable immunity nine years after. In that community there were 1,000 people who had been vaccinated against typhoid fever during the World War and had not been vaccinated since. Some of these had typhoid, but the disease among them was only one-fourth as prevalent as it was among 1,000 people of the same age who had never been vaccinated. Of the 248 cases there were 24 who had had one to three protective injections of typhoid vaccine. Some had had all three injections after being exposed and more had only had time to take one or two shots before they got sick. This shows that injection after exposure is apt to fail to give protection. Some of the cases of typhoid got sick four days after exposure. Most of the others had a longer incubation period. Typhoid vaccination as an emergency procedure had shortcomings. Locking the stable door late is never entirely satisfactory. The number of people vaccinated ran into the thousands. The bad effects of vaccination were determined with some detail.

Among several thousand school children vaccinated there was an average loss of 29.5 days of attendance for each 100 pupils or, about one day lost from school for each three pupils. Or, one-third of the pupils lost one day each. The cause of the absences from schools were, per 100 pupils, 13.4 days or less than one day for each seven pupils, on account of sore arms, about one day for each ten pupils on account of headache; one for each twelve on account of general aching; one out of each 120 because of dizziness. The older pupils had a higher proportionate loss of attendance than the younger ones.

This is about all the information the report had for prospective vacationists on the subject of vaccination against typhoid, unless it be this: it appears that a high percentage of those who have had typhoid are still typhoid carriers after the end of several years. Vacationists should know that water may be clear, cold and appealing to the tongue, nose and eye and still be badly polluted.

The best way to make polluted water safe is to heat it. Water can be heated enough to make it safe without causing it to have a flat taste. Of the chemicals used to purify water, the best are alcoholic iodine, chlorine, and the chloramine preparations.

TRENCH MOUTH.

H. N. writes:

1. What is trench mouth?
2. What are the causes?
3. Are teeth extractions necessary?

REPLY.

1. An infection of some part of the mouth with two certain micro-organisms in combination. This causes inflammation and ulceration.
2. Lack of mouth cleanliness is the principal contributing cause. Infection is the direct cause.
3. Eventual extraction of some teeth may be advisable. Immediate extraction is not.

MANUSH'S HOMER AND TRIPLE BEAT WHITE SOX, 4-2

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE home run pendulum has swung toward the American League this season for the first time in a decade, or since Babe Ruth posted the circuit clout among the items of general interest.

The National League, with Baker Bowl, the Polo Grounds and Wrigley Field proving conducive territory for homers, has annually outstripped the American by a wide margin in total home runs hit, but today, with seven weeks of the season passed, it is noted that the National is trailing the rival big league in point of homers, 113, to 104.

The band box parks in Philadelphia, New York and Chicago still stand in the National League, but the home run depression may be traced to the fact that the National went a step farther in remodeling the official ball. The American League attempted to pin back the ears of the "rabbitt" ball by raising the stiches, but the National went it one better by applying a heavier cover in addition. That may account for the reversal of the old order.

I see by the papers that no decision will be rendered if the Schmeling-Stribling bout in Cleveland ends in a foul and wonder what effect the ruling will have.

Under the ruling, Schmeling, recognized in most localities as the champion, could not be dispossessed of his title in the event he fouled or was fouled by Stribling. Only Stribling could be the loser in the event of a foul by either inasmuch as Schmeling could save his title by medium of a low blow.

That is, only Stribling, of the two fighters, could lose should a foul occur. Jonathan Q. Public, of course, would get the full force of the blow. But he has a reputation for recuperating quickly after punishment at the hands of our heavyweights.

In a letter to this column Henri De Glane, most recent contender to the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, announces that he has been a patient in a Boston hospital for ten days as a result of being bitten by Strangler Lewis in his recent match with the Strangler in Montreal.

De Glane writes that he was afflicted with infection as a result of the bite. The genus wrestler, known to be carnivorous apparently is noxious as well.

The National League apparently is regaining its reputation as a "pitcher's league." Whereas Bill Terry led the National hitters with an average of better than .400 in a close race with Babe Herman last season, none in the league is hitting better than .380 this season.

Sam West, who rates fifth in the American League standing, with an average of .360, would rate second if he hit at that pace in the National. It has been several seasons since an average of .333 was heavy enough to land a batter among the "five leading hitters" in the National, but that is the mark that Cuyler sports in fifth place.

It can't be the resin that National League pitchers are permitted to use on the ball. They have employed it for several years now with no success at curbing the heavy hitting. Recent world's series play lays open to question the effectiveness of resin on the ball, inasmuch as American League pitchers, who are forbidden to use the stuff, have been consistently more successful in the interleague battles.

Burleigh Grimes Fined, Suspended by Heydler

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes, veteran pitching star of the champion St. Louis Cardinals, today was fined $50 and suspended three days by John A. Heydler, president of the National League, for disorderly action in the game with Brooklyn yesterday.

Grimes was punished for a succession of arguments with Umpire Charles Moran, who banished the pitcher from Ebbets Field after stopping the game five times to issue warnings. Grimes alternated between the bench and the bullpen in annoying the arbiter.

Grimes has won five straight games for the Cardinals and it was his turn to pitch today or tomorrow. In addition to being banished until next Sunday, his salary, under league rules, is cut off for the period of suspension.

Browns Beat Red Sox, 2-1, on Goslin's Single

St. Louis, Mo., May 21 (A.P.).—The St. Louis Browns overcame Boston's lead today to defeat the Red Sox 2-1 and win the final contest of a two-game series. Collins allowed the visitors only four hits, and of these Webb's double paved the way for the only run scored by Boston.

Two singles and a walk gave the Browns a run in the sixth and in the seventh Burns tripled and then scored on Goslin's single.

Canada Splits Singles With America

Shields Easy Victor; Doubles Match Is Slated Today.

MONTREAL, May 21 (A.P.).—Canada's Davis Cup Team showed unexpected strength today and divided the first two singles matches of the North American zone final competition with its strongly favored rivals from the United States.

Marcel Rainville, little French Canadian star from Montreal, whose campaign through the South last winter put him in such good condition he made a clean sweep of the trial matches, continued his brilliant play to score the day's upset and put Canada on even terms with the team that is expected again to reach the challenge round.

Rainville took a hard five-set match from Sydney B. Wood, jr., youthful New Yorker, 4—6, 6—4, 6—3, 2—6, 6—4, after Frank Shields, No. 2 ranking player, had defeated the Canadian veteran, Dr. Jack Wright, in straight sets, 8—6, 6—2, 6—2.

High Wind Spoils Many Shots.

There was not much good tennis in the second match, although it kept the crowd in an uproar. A high wind spoiled many good shots and both players followed the same tactics, playing slowly and carefully. Throughout the five sets long rallies predominated and at one time the action dragged so that the spectators burst into laughter and had to be called to order.

The stirring moments came in the final set. The Canadian took the offensive and ran the score up to 5—1 as he mixed some fast placements with his softer shots. Then Marcel eased up a bit, trying too many drop shots over the net, and Wood pulled the count up to 5—4. In the tenth game, Rainville ran he score to 40—0 on his own service, dropped two points in succession, then won the final point for set and match.

Wright, a veteran of ten Davis Cup competitions, was hardly a match for his tall, powerful young opponent. Shields, after the first set. They fought back and forth until the count reached 5-4 in the set with Shields leading all the way. Then Wright evened it up in a twice-deuced game and won his own service to take the lead at 6-5. Shields quickly rallied, however, and won three games in a row to take the set at 8-6.

Shields Parades to Victory.

After losing the first game of the second set, Shields won five in succession for an easy victory. He continued his spectacular play in the third, running it out with another string of five games.

The same players were named to compete in the doubles match tomorrow, promising another good battle. The young New Yorkers, Shields and Wood, are experienced doubles partners, while Wright and Rainville have had considerable experience playing as a team.

The concluding singles matches will be played Saturday afternoon, Shields opposing Rainville and Wood meeting Wright. The nation which wins three of the five matches will enter the American final against Argentina, which won the South American zone competition.

Yanks Defeat Tribe, 7-6; Ruth Hits Homer

Cleveland, May 21 (A.P.).—The Indians put up another close scrap today, but again failed to scrape out a victory. They lost their twelfth straight game by a 7-to-6 count to the New York Yankees, failing to win a single game of their home stand against the Eastern clubs.

Babe Ruth led the Yankees to victory by hitting his fifth home run of the season, a triple and a double. The homer, Ruth's first since May 6, came in the first inning after Combs had stretched his hitting streak through twenty games by smashing out a double.

The Indians took the lead in the fourth, driving George Pipgras from the mound, but could not hold their margin, as two walks, an error and Chapman's single gave New York two runs in the sixth. Vernon Gomez, second of three Yankee pitchers, was credited with the victory.

ALABAMA'S NINE BEST IN SOUTH

McAllister Nine Won 11 of 13 Games in Conference.

ALABAMA CITY, Ala., May 21 (A.P.).—Alabama Polytechnic Institute, at Auburn, in addition to winning the Dixie College Baseball League championship, can also lay claim to the Southern Conference crown with eleven victories and three defeats.

Coach Sam McAllister's Plainsmen from Auburn almost ran away with the Dixie League in its first season, and while winning this pennant piled up enough victories in the conference to base its claim there. Auburn's percentage is .786.

South Carolina and Duke, while playing only four conference games, won three of them to finish with a .750 percentage. If all nonconference games were counted, South Carolina probably would have the best college record, as the Gamecocks won thirteen straight games before losing to Citadel, and then finished strong.

Duke Played Well In Outside Games.

Duke also played fine ball outside the conference to win its third consecutive "Big Five" championship in North Carolina.

The Tarheels, of the University of North Carolina, won the Tristate Baseball Conference pennant. This league is composed of conference teams in Virginia, North Carolina and Maryland. Carolina completed its campaign with ten victories and four defeats in the conference.

Alabama, claimant along with Virginia Polytechnic of the conference, won eight and lost three for a .727 mark, just a few points above North Carolina's .714.

Washington and Lee and Virginia Military turned in .600 percentages, with six victories and four defeats. Georgia, Florida, V. P. I., Mississippi and Mississippi A. and M. were among the teams having final percentages of around .500.

Tulane and Tennessee were two of the larger schools of the conference who were not represented.

Sasscer, Herrman, Nolan, Pitt Indian Spring Survivors

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

THE outcome of the first and second round matches in the first day of the Indian Spring invitation club tournament yesterday made it certain that interesting contests will be staged in the semifinal round in the championship flight this morning. In the upper half of the bracket Leroy D. Sasscer, Indian Spring, is paired against James D. Herrman, Washington, while in the lower half Harry G. Pitt, Manor, will have M. Parker Nolan, Congressional, as his opponent.

Sasscer reached the semifinal round by defeating J. Monro Hunter, jr., 3 and 2, yesterday morning and in the afternoon easily disposed of John J. Tierney, jr., Congressional, 6 and 5. Herrman, after defeating Earl McAleer, Argyle, in the forenoon, 1 up, eliminated Thomas P. Bones, jr., Columbia, in the afternoon. Pitt's two victorious matches were against M. F. McCarthy, Beaver Dam, in the afternoon, 2 up, after having defeated J. William Harvey, jr., in the morning, while Nolan's victims were John Britton, Chevy Chase, in the morning and Charles R. Morrow, Indian Spring, in the afternoon. Morrow tied with Sasscer for the medal in the qualification round and the tie will be played off at eighteen holes at 2 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

Sasscer Coasts to Victory.

Sasscer is the Indian Spring Club champion, as well as the former champion of the Argyle Club. In his match against Tierney esterday afternoon he was out in 37, two over par, and then coasted easily along until he had won the match. Herrman, out in 38, was one down to Bones at the turn, but came romping home in 34, two under par. In the recent Woodmont tournament he was runner-up and he won the Chevy Chase invitation event. Both Sasscer and Herrman are skillful golfers and their contest this morning, if both are on their game, will be a succession of pars, with holes won in birdies.

The other pair in the semifinal round are both well-known, but Pitt, former Middle Atlantic champion, three times winner at Chevy Chase, and with other substantial victories to his credit, has a record which Nolan has not thus far been able to equal. Nolan, however, is known as the "siege gun" at the Congressional Club, and yesterday afternoon he played sixteen holes in three strokes over par. Pitt, who was all even at the turn in his match against McCarthy, was 3 up and 3 to play, but lost the sixteenth to a birdie 4 and the seventeenth to a par, leaving him 1 up. He won the eighteenth with a par 4 after McCarthy had played his second shot into a trap short of the green.

Morrow, one of the medalists, still survives in the consolation flight of the first sixteen and will play this

Mad Scramble to Leave After Sports Spectacles Fascinating to Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

NEW YORK, May 20.—As picturesque as any phase of these great American sports outings, such as the Kentucky Derby, the Poughkeepsie regatta, the football games and the World Series, is the mad scramble of the customers to get somewhere else the instant the show is over.

Within an hour after the decision, the special trains are clicking over the switches in the dark yards, proceeding cautiously, without much early foot, as the horse people put it in their curious jargon. Then going into their stride and belting past the crossings and whistling posts, revealing blurry glimpses of luxury and festivity in the yellow light of the interiors, especially the interiors of the private cars, as they roar past the smoky cottages of the poor out along the line. Inside the cars, all moist and dusty and just generally grummy from the effort, the heat and the excitement of having a good time, the passengers are unbuttoning their vests and ringing for the porters to bring corkscrews and ginger ale or mineral water, and also, later on, the menu.

The train conductor and the Pullman conductor, who are pretty good fellows as a rule, especially in the North, start at the head end, as the railroad people put it in a curious jargon of their own, and work back toward the tail end, holding up the passengers for their tickets and contriving to fish out an unsold lower for the fellow who had to buy an upper back in the station or changing over a couple of guys from one upper in 991-B and one lower in 986-B to compartment J in car 990-B, where they can slip down their suspenders, put their feet up and flick their ashes onto the floor and maybe start a game of dealer's choice with a couple of other guys, which is likely to last until 6 a. m., or until the losers are certain that they have had a non-legitimate run for their ten bucks.

Elsewhere, the conductors, in my observations, are not as decent as those in the North, and this probably is explained by the fact that they go in for lodge buttons on their lapels and watch chains. A lot of those lodges, such as the Klux, are maintained, so that people can get together on meeting night and hate some other class of people under formal conditions—and this trait is characteristic of prohibitionists—so when a fellow sees a conductor or brakeman coming with a mysterious button or emblem showing which can not be recognized as the badge of one

Mackmen Win 13th Game In Row

Cochrane, Simmons, McNair Hit Homers in 12-5 Victory.

Tigers Use 4 Hurlers; Game Sees 32 Hits for 46 Bases.

DETROIT, May 21 (A.P.).—The Athletics knocked pitches all over the field today to defeat the Tigers, 12 to 5, and make a clean sweep of a three-game series and register their thirteenth straight victory.

The heavy-hitting game, in which there were 32 safe hits for 46 bases, contrasted sharply with the pitching exhibitions by which the champions won the first two encounters. The winners' eighteen hits included home runs by Cochrane in the fifth, McNair in the sixth and Simmons in the eighth, the latter two with one man on base. McNair went in in the fifth after Dykes was spiked by Johnson.

Seven pitchers were used. Rommell was taken out in the second inning by Philadelphia and succeeded by Mahaffey, who won the game, although he was relieved by Walberg in the seventh. Detroit started Bridges and Sullivan, Herring and Sorrell followed him in order.

Williams, Del Ray Boy, Wins 5 Sports Letters

Special to The Washington Post.

Alexandria, Va., May 21.—Frank Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Williams, of Del Ray, Va., is the first athlete at Hargrave Military Academy ever to win five varsity monograms.

Williams was awarded his letter for baseball this week at the Cathan School, his fifth monogram for varsity competition. He has won other letters in basket ball, football, track and tennis.

The Hargrave athlete played football and baseball with the George Mason High School Team in Alexandria two years ago. His father, Jeff Williams, has been active in sports for many years in Alexandria and this season is coaching the Del Ray Athletic Club Baseball Team.

A. A. U. Track Meet Prospects Are Bright

With demands for entry blanks so great that additional blanks have been ordered printed, prospects for a large field of contestants in the first District of Columbia amateur track championships, scheduled June 6 at Byrd Stadium, College Park, seem particularly bright at this time, it was reported last night at the monthly meeting of the board of managers of the local A. A. U. Association.

As the meet will be held before commencement exercises at the local high schools and colleges, many entries from these institutions are anticipated, it was said. Entry blanks are now available at the office of J. Kip Edwards, chairman of the committee in charge, at the Star Building, and at Spalding's store, 1338 G street northwest.

Any bona fide amateur athlete is eligible to compete.

Big Left Fielder Drives in All Runs as Nats Win; Marberry Is Relief Star

Handy Heinie

Holds Sox to One Hit After Relieving Hadley in Sixth.

Cronin Stars Afield; Nats Take Lead Off Thomas.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Post Staff Correspondent).

CHICAGO, May 21.—Thanks largely to Heinie Manush's big bat and Fred Marberry's clever relief pitching, the Nats ended their first Western invasion of the season here this afternoon by making a clean-up of the abbreviated series here and downing the Chisox, 4 to 2.

Manush, who has been showing signs of hitting his best stride at bat, drove home all of the Nats' runs. He tripled with one on in the first; hit his second 1931 homer with one on in third, this being a drive into the right field stands, and singled a fourth marker over the counting block in the seventh.

ARGENTINE NETMEN IMPRESSIVE IN DRILLS HERE

Chevy Chase Prepares for Crowd

3,000 Fans Expected at Cup Play Starting Thursday.

Rain Halts Practice; Invaders Interested in Wood's Defeat.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

FROM a tennis standpoint it was an inactive day yesterday for the little band of Argentines who are stopping at the Chevy Chase Club awaiting their match next Thursday, Friday and Saturday with the winner of the United States-Canada match now in progress. Capt. Edwin French, nonplaying captain of the team, was confined to his room all day, not yet acclimated to the local atmosphere.

The remainder of the team—Guillermo Robson, Lucilo Costillo, Adriano Zappa and Ricardo Sissener—spent the day in the company of a committee from the Argentine Embassy in sightseeing and shopping. All thoughts of practice were banished by a heavy downpour of rain in the early morning, although the "En Tout Cas" courts at Chevy Chase, on which the matches will be played next week, were in perfect condition after noon.

Workmen Start Building Stands.

A young army of workmen yesterday started on the erection of boxes and stands to house what is expected to be the largest crowd ever to witness a series of tennis matches in Washington. Stands will seat more than 3,000, but, judging from the sale of seats to date, this number will have to be complemented. All but one box has been sold.

Capt. French was in communication with The Post late yesterday afternoon concerning the outcome of the first day of the United States-Canada tie. He was more than interested in Wood's loss to Rainville and, as he repeated the scores, seemed to regard the match as more than significant.

Capt. French stated that he was more than pleased with the condition of the Argentine team, who are in surprisingly good form despite their recent eighteen-day boat trip from Buenos Aires. The veteran Guillermo Robson has especially impressed French, particularly in volleying. Rosaldo Boyd, No. 1 ranking Argentina player, will arrive in New York tomorrow and will proceed immediately to Washington.

Boyd and Robson To Play Singles.

Capt. French yesterday stated that, barring injuries, the singles players representing Argentina would be Boyd and Robson, who stand a comfortable head and shoulder above the rest of the Argentina players in singles ability. The doubles team has not been selected, partially because of the manner in which Robson has been playing in practice matches at the club.

Zappa and Costillo are the national doubles champions of Argentina, but French intimated that Robson and Boyd might be named. A series of practice matches between the two teams will be staged upon Boyd's arrival, and the results will be deemed as evidence of superiority.

MANUSH'S HITTING WINS FOR NATS, 4-2

by walking two and had three balls and no strikes on Pinch Hitter Fothergill, when Marberry rushed to his rescue and forced the fat slugger to pop-foul to Kuhel.

This threat seemed to awaken the Nats, for they came in from the field and added another run to their total. This was made from Hayes' opening single, Sam Rice's sacrifice and Manush's one-base liner to center.

There was no further scoring except for Jeffries' homer into the left-field stands opening the home ninth.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

DICK DALTON, the "Boy with the bird throat," whistles and imitates bird calls with his mouth open. From the lowest tones to the shrillest notes Dick can imitate the birds' calls so accurately that they will answer him, and even come from far away and light in the trees near him. With the aid of a hollow pasteboard tube Dick can imitate a flute to perfection.

Jutie, the self-named Holstein calf, was born with her name spelled on her side. Patches of black hair against a white background plainly distinguish the letters of her name.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post and enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

SASSCER TO PLAY HERRMAN TODAY

morning against John C. Holzberg, Columbia. The latter was 2 down to J. William Harvey at the end of the first nine yesterday afternoon, but on the incoming nine laid Harvey three stymies and chipped into the cup from the rough on the fifteenth hole, a succession of events which naturally led to Harvey's defeat.

In the upper half of the bracket in the same consolation flight the opponents will be B. H. Burrows, runner-up at Chevy Chase, and Earl McAleer, both of whom are former caddies and public links players. McAleer has long been regarded as one of the best left-handed golfers in this section. He was medalist in the national public links championship at Dayton, Ohio, in 1924, when he defeated John C. Shorey in the second round, the same round in which George J. Voigt was eliminated. Yesterday's matches resulted as follows:

FIRST OUTING IS WON BY JACK HIGH

Mile Record Holder Beats Colossal by Nose at Belmont.

NEW YORK, May 21 (A.P.).—With another demonstration of the speed that has ranked him as one of the turf's fastest for the last three years, George D. Widener's Jack High came back to the races at Belmont Park today, reeled off a muddy mile in 1:36 4-5 and won the Ben Brush Purse.

A year ago the 5-year-old son of John P. Grier hung up a new track record for Belmont Park when he covered the mile in 1:35 to win the Metropolitan Handicap, and then went on to win three of his five other starts as a 4-year-old. For some reason or other he was not named for the thirty-eighth running of the Metropolitan, which is down for decision next Saturday.

Concedes 20 Pounds To Colossal.

Today he packed 129 pounds, conceding 20 to J. E. Davis' Colossal and 37 to the Audley Farm's Highland Belle, his only two rivals, but handled the burden like a real champion. Highland Belle set the early pace, but once the trio hit the stretch, the Widener ace and Colossal hooked up in a pretty duel. In the last sixteenth "Pony" McAtee outrode Eddie Watters to give Jack High the decision by a nose. Colossal finished fifteen lengths in front of Highland Belle. On the basis of his consistent races, Jack High was made the 1 to 4 favorite.

After finishing second twice and third in his other appearance on the metropolitan turf, the Westaide Stable's Jamison came through with a brilliant stretch drive to win the Hollis Purse and $3,700, under Tony Pascuma's powerful handling.

HISTORY, aided by the Eastern High Baseball Team in general and lanky Dick Lanahan in particular, repeated itself yesterday afternoon as the light-blue aggregation captured its fourth consecutive public high school championship by defeating Western, 7 to 2, before approximately 200 fans, the largest crowd to witness a high school game to date.

Lanahan assured himself of the victory when he poled a long home run over the right-field fence, with two mates on base, in the third inning. Not content with a paltry three-run lead, however, the Guyonites continued the assault on Raedy, Western's hurler, and when the Georgetown aggregation finally succeeded in retiring the side they found themselves seven runs behind.

Lanahan in Rare Form.

During his seven-inning stay on the mound, the shuffling portsider granted his opponents one solitary hit, fanned ten and walked none. He was particularly effective in the second when three Westerners were retired on eleven pitched balls. Phillips, who relieved him, was touched for a trio of bingles and two runs in the ninth, but at no time were the leaders seriously threatened.

Raedy's wildness and unsteady support by his teammates prevented him from making a better showing, although winning the game was practically an impossibility with Lanahan displaying such form.

BATTALINO'S TITLE AT STAKE

La Barba 8-5 Choice Over Featherweight King Tonight.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, May 21 (A.P.).—The test by fire of Christopher Battalino's championship ability awaits the rugged Hartford Italian in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

About a year and a half ago, when the Connecticut youngster jumped from nowhere to the title throne of the featherweights by outpointing the fast-fading Frenchman, Andre Routis, before the home-town faithful, it would have been considered fistic heresy to compare his ability with that of Fidel La Barba. Tomorrow night, however, over the fifteen-round championship route, Bat tackles the cagey Italian from Los Angeles and the odds are only 8 to 5 that he will lose his title robes.

For a time, after winning the 126-pound title, the rough-and-tumble New Englander was like a rookie pitcher facing the Athletics—he couldn't get any one out. He backed through the second-string featherweights, taking overweight lickings, sometimes getting up off the floor to complete his full quota of punishment. Last December he was matched with Kid Chocolate, the sensational Cuban Negro, in the Garden and the experts figured that would be the last of Battalino.

Battalino Beat Kid Chocolate.

But Christopher turned in something of a classic that night. With little more for equipment than aggressiveness, durability, courage and a pair of hands that worked ceaselessly to the body, Battalino whipped the Negro decisively. The derisive title "cheese champ" was wiped out, and a few weeks later he was back dropping overweight decisions, this time to Eddie Shea in Chicago.

La Barba, an entirely different type of fighter from Chocolate, is an aggressive, left-hook star of the very kind that has caused Battalino the most trouble in the past. In his last match here Fidel, who quit the flyweight throne to go to Stanford University, walloped Kid Francis, who battles along in a style similar to both La Barba and Battalino.

The greatest advantage conceded La Barba, however, is his wide edge in experience and his smartness.

MANERO NOW HOPE OF U. S. AT LEEDS

Gains Third Round to Become Lone Yank Survivor.

LEEDS, England, May 21 (A.P.).—Tony Manero, of Elmsford, N. Y., today remained the sole survivor of a transatlantic delegation of nine which set out Tuesday in the $5,000 Leeds professional golf tournament.

Four of the American phalanx—Horton Smith and Willie Hunter, of the United States, and Hector Freccebro and Tomaso Genta, of the Argentine—fell in the qualifying rounds, and all except Manero went out in the first and second rounds today. Among them was Joe Turnesa, the medalist, who was put out in the second round this afternoon by Percy Allis, the British-bred Berlin professional. Jose Jurado, of the Argentine, survived the first round, but fell in the second, while Marco Churia, the fourth South American, and Joe Kirkwood were eliminated in their first matches this morning.

Manero Shows Form In 2 Victories.

Manero was playing in excellent form today. He defeated W. T. Twine, the Bromley crack, 4 and 3, and then polished off the lesser known of the Whitcombe brothers, Reginald, 5 and 4, in the second round.

"I'm a good match player," Manero said recently, and he proved his contention. He had not shown to advantage in the medal play either at Southport in the 2,000 guineas last week or in qualifying here Tuesday, when the going was roughest. He lost two of the first three holes against Whitcombe, then pulled himself together to finish out the round 4 up, and took all the heart out of the Englishman on the twelfth when he sank a 15-foot putt.

Manero will meet Alliss, Turnesa's conqueror, in the quarter finals tomorrow morning.

Other third-round pairings are: Charles Whitcombe, Ryder Cup captain, vs. Tom Barber; A. J. Lacey vs. George Gadd, and E. R. Whitcombe vs. W. H. Davies.

G. U. Plans Tournament On New Tennis Courts

A tennis tournament at Georgetown University, with local amateurs and collegians forming the competing field and with local and national officials in attendance, is being planned for next September in connection with the dedication of ten new courts which will be built on the university campus during the summer, it was stated last night by the Rev. Peter V. Masterson, faculty moderator of athletics.

Through the staging of the tournament, Father Masterson said, it is hoped that interest will be stimulated in tennis in Washington. He is considering, he said, sending invitations to several nationally known stars to appear in exhibition matches.

The new courts will occupy the space now used as the freshmen athletic field. The present courts will be converted into handball courts with concrete surfaces, which will allow the transformation into tennis hard courts for early spring play.

Ted Mitchell Named Swimming Instructor

Announcement was made yesterday of the appointment of Ted Mitchell, former Catholic University boxing coach, as chief swimming instructor at the Congressional Country Club. Mitchell will assume his new duties either today or tomorrow.

Mitchell has occupied a prominent place among Washington's athletic coaching group since 1922, when he first took charge of the Catholic University boxing team. For eight years the Cardinal ring teams achieved unusual success in collegiate competition, only once losing more matches than they won during a season. Mitchell resigned from the Catholic University athletic department last June. For the past few months he has been associated with the Eynon Motor Co.

NATS ELATED AT SUCCESS IN WEST

Joy Is Tempered by Winning Streak of Macks, However.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHICAGO, May 21.—With a record of nine victories in eleven starts, the Nationals tonight leave the Western sector, following their first 1931 invasion, very much pleased with themselves. When it is remembered how they fared in the "wild woolly" last year, it is no wonder that the boys are nearly breaking their arms patting themselves on the back.

But, despite their own good work, Manager Johnson and his charges are not quite as happy as they should be, for every time they have looked at the scoreboard they have seen that the Athletics have been winning, too—and even oftener. The result has been that the Nationals have lost ground in their race with the Macks, whom they regard as their most serious rivals for the pennant.

"We're not worrying any, though," Manager Johnson stated in discussing this disappointing angle of the Nats' good showing. "Wait until the A's strike that long string of doubleheaders. Then see what will happen with that three-man pitching staff of theirs."

Nats in 3 Cities In 3 Days.

The schedule makers, who must own stock in the railroads and hotels in which the teams stop, judging from the manner in which the clubs skip around, have the Nationals playing in three different cities in as many days—the second time this has happened this month.

Shortly after today's game the Washington Club entrained for New York. Tomorrow will be spent in traveling, the Yankees will be met in the big town on Saturday, the Red Sox will be entertained in Griffith Stadium on Sunday, and on Monday the Nats open a three-game series in Boston.

Lloyd Brown Ordered To New York.

Lloyd Brown, the Nats' southpaw ace, who was called to Washington early this week because of the illness of his wife, has been ordered to show up at New York to pitch against the Yankees in Saturday's fracas. Of the seven games played between the two clubs so far, one was a 14-inning tie, while the Nats were victorious in four of the other six. As the Washington Club considers the New Yorkers the only other outfit, aside from itself, which has a chance of dislodging the Mackmen from the top of the ladder, naturally the Nats are particularly anxious to "take" the Yankees Saturday.

Instead of going to New York with the team, "General" Alvin Crowder went direct home tonight. He has been instructed to work out in Griffith Stadium Saturday so as to be ready to toil against the Red Sox on the Sabbath. Crowder has yet to win a game this season, but he has been improving between each start.

Lou Fonseca, obtained from the Cleveland Indians in exchange for Willie Kamm, finally joined the White Sox today and made his debut in the game. With Lu Blue playing a bang-up game at first, the big Portuguese was tried at second by Manager Donie Bush. Fonseca once filled this position quite acceptably for the Tribe before he was converted into a doorway guardian. He was given the clean-up position in the batting order and made no hits.

A foul from Fonseca's bat struck Umpire George Hildebrand on his right knee and play was stopped for about five minutes while the arbiter had the injury treated on the Chisox bench.

Reynolds, who dropped a fly off Kuhel's bat yesterday which gave the hitter two bases, did the same thing in the second inning today. Bluege was on first at the time and advanced to third on the muff.

Buddy Myer tried out his injured hand before today's game and discovered that swinging a bat hurt him; hence Jack Hayes' name in the Nat line-up.

After Sam West had singled in the third, he did not know whether to advance or return to first on Bluege's liner to Jeffries. West stopped half way and while he was wondering what he should do, Umpire Moriarty ruled that the ball had been trapped, not caught. Sam, of course, was an easy victim at second, but the hitter reached first in safety.

After racing to the left field foul line for Kuhel's looper in the sixth, Jolley could not stop running. Fortunately for him, a gate leading into the stands was open and he veered toward it and ran up the steps, thus saving a collision into the wall.

Blue's walk, opening the home seventh, was his third successive stroll of the afternoon.

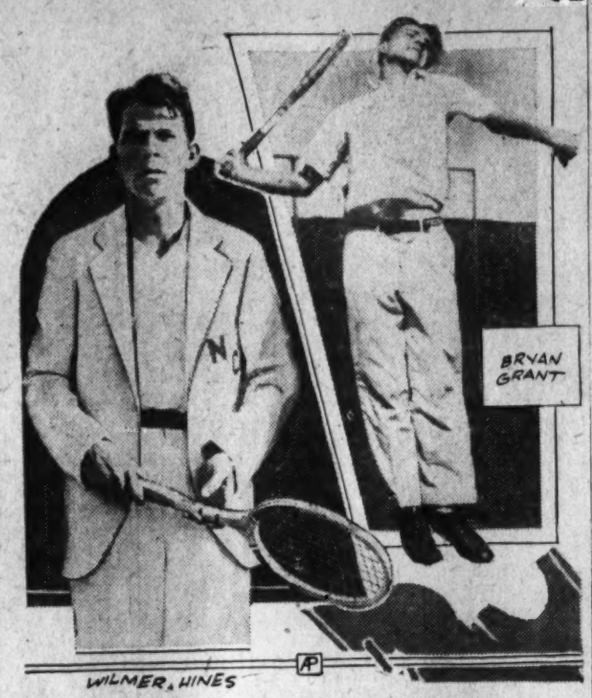
North Carolina Net Team Nears National Tennis Title



Led by Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, national clay courts champion, and Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C., national junior champion, the University of North Carolina tennis team, back from a conquest in the East, is hot after the national collegiate title.

CHAPEL HILL, N. C., May 23 (A. P.).—For the first time in its 136 years of history the University of North Carolina, oldest of state universities, has a tennis team that is avowedly out to win the national college title.

Presenting two of the greatest college players in the country, the Tarheels are building their hopes around Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, and Wilmer Hines, of Columbia, S. C. But these aces by no means constitute the strength of the team.

Grant, tenth ranking player in the country, is the national clay courts champion, while Hines, ranked thirty-third, is national junior champion and Southern doubles champion with Judge Beaver, of Gainesville, Ga.

This team has an undefeated record for the season, having shut out all Southern conpetitors and defeated strong Eastern teams.

Victories on a tour of the East were as follows:

Georgetown, 7-2; Princeton, 8-1; Army, 9-0; New York University, 8-1; Yale, 5-4; Brown, 9-0; Harvard, 7-2. The Tarheels beat Harvard for the first time that strong aggregation had taken a drubbing in 38 starts.

Players composing the team besides Grant and Hines are: Edgar Yeomans, Washington, D. C.; H. H. Hendlin, New York City; Capt. Ed Graham, Chapel Hill; Lenoir Wright, Charlotte, N. C., and Lucas Abels, of High Point, N. C.

BERGMANS BLESSED.

TWO BRITISH YOUTHS IN FINALS

De Forest and Smith Survive in Amateur Golf Tourney.

WESTWARD HO!, Devon, England, May 31 (A.P.).—Two tall, lean Englishmen, John de Forest, 25, son of one of Great Britain's wealthiest barons, and the 22-year-old Cambridge undergraduate, Eric Smith, tomorrow will play a 36-hole match for the British amateur golf championship.

The two young Britishers, one of whom will wear the crown Bobby Jones took to the United States last year, are the survivors of a tournament which saw George Voigt, the chief American hope, and the British favorites eliminated early. None of them even got to the quarter-finals.

De Forest Protege Of Horton Smith.

De Forest, who polished his game in the United States last winter, taking lessons from Horton Smith and other American professionals, won two hard matches today. He first defeated Syd Roper, the former coal miner and Voigt's conqueror, 2 and 1, and then scored a 1-hole victory over the Scotsman, William Tulloch, despite the latter's reputation as the "dour giant killer of Cathkin Braes."

Smith, the young Cantab, became a finalist by defeating Peter Miller, the London amateur, 2 and 1, and then eliminating the hope of Ireland, Dr. John MacCormack, by 1 hole.

In the Anglo-Scottish semifinal between Tulloch and De Forest the latter took a lead at the fifth and was never behind again. Tulloch won the first, but De Forest squared the match at the fourth, won the fifth and then held to his advantage. De Forest made it 2 up at the twelfth hole, but Tulloch again pulled him down and it had to go to the last green for decision.

The lead changed hands frequently in the Smith-MacCormack match with the young Cambridge player outsteadying his older war-torn rival to take the decision.

LOCKE IS CONSIDERED.

Iowa City, Iowa, May 21 (A.P.).—Gordon Locke, former University of Iowa football star and now athletic director at Western Reserve University, Cleveland, is one of several men under consideration as assistant football coach at Iowa, Athletic Director E. H. Lauer said today.

STOCK PRICES RALLY TO GAINS AT CLOSE

Steel Rises 1¼ Points as Other Issues Recover; Western Union Breaks.

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—Short covering that originated in rails gave the stock market a rally that carried through to the close today, and for the first time in a fortnight final prices averaged higher.

Until it was rumored that the Eastern railway executives were close to an agreement on the proposed request for higher freight rates, stocks had been irregular, affected somewhat by weakness in isolated issues and by group heaviness in chemicals, amusements and coffees. Nevertheless, the market seemed to be edging toward an advance, and when the rails started to rise other groups followed closely. Net advances in industrials and utilities ranged roughly between 1 and 2 points, but the carrier issues did much better, climbing from 2 to 5. Total sales were 2,400,000 shares.

Outstanding soft spots of the trading included Western Union, which broke 100 for the first time since 1922; General Electric, General Motors, Worthington Pump, American Water Works, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Anaconda, Bethlehem, American Smelting, Loew's and Case.

Gains Supplant Losses.

Extreme declines in these and a few others were between 2 and 4 points; however, losses were in most instances converted into small gains. U. S. Steel, steady all day, was up 1¼ net. American Telephone was much quieter and managed a 2-point net gain. American Can closed 2½ points higher, the last quotations generally were a little under the top.

Decision of the Eastern railroad executives to request the Interstate Commerce Commission to put freight rates back to a level which would help both the service and credit of the roads was not accompanied by an announcement as to the amount of the increase to be sought, but Wall street felt that a 10 per cent rise might be both satisfactory and helpful. April earnings, which are now straggling in, make an unfavorable comparison with a year ago and contrast sharply with 1929.

Bearish professionals who had expected some gloomy news to come out of settlement day in London were disappointed, for none of the dismal prophecies held up. The bank of England's gold reserves showed another gain, and nothing in the weekly statement indicated that any unusual "situations" had been encountered.

Brokers' Loans Drop.

The drop of $40,000,000 in brokers' loans meant a new low level in speculative borrowing. Trading in the week covered by the report was dull, but it also saw liquidation of investment holdings.

One of the interesting items in the New York Federal Reserve Bank statement was the Government securities total, which was unchanged from a week ago. Discounts were off about $4,000,000, but bill purchases increased approximately $5,000,000. New York City member bank loans on securities to brokers and dealers dropped $40,000,000.

Good rains in the Southwest and bearish Kansas State reports contributed to the heaviness of wheat which lost more than a cent a bushel. Corn was off ½ to a cent, reflecting bearish news from Iowa and Nebraska. Cotton finished steady, 2 points lower to 2 higher.

Foreign exchanges were narrowly changed, sterling cables holding firm at $4.86½. Some of the Latin Americans eased.

Bank of England.

London, May 21 (A.P.).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes in pounds: Total reserve increased 2,788,000; circulation decreased 1,586,000; bullion increased 1,202,000; other securities increased 140,000; public deposits increased 4,642,000; other deposits decreased 5,505,000; notes reserve increased 2,783,000; government securities decreased 3,785,000.

The proportion of the bank's reserve to liability is 56.48 per cent compared with 53.40 last week.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 21 (A.P.).—Shattering the season's bottom-price record, corn today dropped 4 cents to 4 cents a bushel the first time in 1931. Traders were confronted both by a let-up in corn shipping demand here and by cheap tenders of corn from Missouri river markets. Stop-loss selling followed, with bears contending that corn still was high in relation to other grains and feed stuffs.

Corn closed nervous ½ to 1⅞ cents down, wheat unchanged to 1⅜ off, oats at ⅛ to ¼ decline to a shade advance, and provisions unchanged to 10 cents up.

Breaks in the corn market came chiefly after word went around that No. 2 mixed corn was offered from Missouri River cities for transfer to Chicago at the equivalent of prices quoted on May delivery contracts here. Under such circumstances many holders of all future deliveries made haste to sell, and frost predictions for corn belt States tonight were virtually ignored. It was in vain also that bulls showed corn primary receipts were much smaller than a year ago with stocks decreasing.

Vessel charters for 130,000 bushels of corn to be shipped from Chicago to the Georgian Bay, Canada, and 250,000 bushels to Buffalo, attracted some attention late as an offset to the selling flurry, and led to rallying tendencies at the close. On the other hand, Iowa official reports said corn planting was more than four-fifths completed, and was six days ahead of normal. Argentine corn shipments were estimated at 5,900,000 bushels, compared with 1,964,000 a year ago.

Wheat weakened with corn and in sympathy with unsettlement of securities. Timely rainfalls over winter wheat districts, southwestern Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado in particular, were supplemented by some drought relief in Canada and domestic spring wheat States. Russian wheat shipments for the week were heavy, 1,416,000 bushels, and United States wheat primary arrivals were also on a large scale. Oats averaged lower with other grain.

Market Is Active, Providing Number of Surprises; More Gains Recorded.

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—The bond market today provided a number of surprises. Sales on the stock exchange totaled $12,556,500, making the day one of the most active full sessions this year. Cross-currents were evident in the movement of prices. Many of the more speculative obligations broke sharply, while some of the gilt-edged issues made further gains and others reacted.

United States Treasury and Liberty Loans were generally lower. The Treasury 4¼s of 1947-52 dropped half a point on a few sales, a large decline for these issues. The first and fourth Liberty 4¼s and the Treasury 3¾s of 1941-43 and of 1943-47 were heavily traded in at lower levels. Some reaction among the Federal Governments was not surprising in view of the succession of gains which they have scored.

The lower prices contrasted sharply with gains in high-grade corporate obligations, such as American Telephone debenture 5½s of 1943, Atchison general 4s, Brooklyn Union Gas 6s, Chicago, Burlington & Quincy general 4s, Delaware & Hudson refunding 4s, New England Telephone 5s, Philadelphia Electric 4s of 1971 and Public Service Electric & Gas 4s of 1971. Some of the foregoing issues equaled their 1931 peak prices and others reached new top prices for this year.

The widest losses occurred among foreign obligations. Net losses of 1 to 10 points were fairly common among the issues of Argentina, Antioquia, City and Province of Buenos Aires, Bolivia, Province of Cordoba, Colombia Agricultural Bank, Westphalia United Electric, Chile, Uruguay, Silesia, City and State of Sao Paulo and Rio Grande do Sul.

The trend in speculative corporate bonds was downward also, but the net losses were more moderate. Rock Island refunding 4s of 1934 and St. Louis Southwestern first 4s and Consolidated 4s slumped. Issues of some of the Van Sweringen lines made varying recessions.

The interest on the 7 per cent and 6½ per cent gold bonds of the Municipality of Medellin, due on June 1, will be paid at the offices of the fiscal agents in New York, it was announced today.

He succeeds John H. Snyder, Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co. of New Jersey.

Essay Winners Announced.

Announcement yesterday of winners in the annual essay contest of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, open to members of Washington Chapter, American Institute of Banking, who are employes of association member banks, reveals Miss Catherine M. Krieg, Riggs National Bank, a winner for the fourth time in these contests.

Miss Krieg's essay was given second place in this year's contest, the subject for which was "The Functions of a Modern Bank and the Service It Should Render." Last year, her paper won third place on the subject, "My Job, My Duties, What Are the Requisite Qualifications and How May I Be of the Greatest Service to My Bank in Helping to Increase Earnings and Reduce Expenses?"

In 1929, her treatment of the subject, "Methods by Which a Bank May Best Protect Itself Against Fraud," was judged the best. In 1928, she won second place with an essay on "The Establishment of a Credit Bureau."

Boudren Gets First Place.

Bernard I. Boudren, assistant cashier and manager of the Seventh and I Street Branch of Riggs National Bank, was given first place in this year's competition, and Miss Eugenie J. Horak, Bank of Brightwood, third place. Nine essays were submitted in the contest and the foregoing winners will be given a free trip to the convention of the association to be held this year at Hot Springs, Va., June 18-21.

They will read their essays during a session of the convention and the winning essay will be printed in a book to be published containing the convention's proceedings. Judges of the contest were Vice President Wilmer J. Waller, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; President Claude H. Woodward, Mount Vernon Savings Bank, and Vice President Hilleary G. Hoskinson, Riggs National Bank.

TAX COLLECTIONS DROP $360,346,408

First Ten Months of Fiscal Year Cuts Government Revenues.

(Associated Press.)

A decrease of $360,346,408 in the amount of taxes collected by the Government in the first ten months of the 1931 fiscal year, as compared with the same period a year ago, was shown yesterday in statistics issued by the Internal Revenue Bureau.

Collections for the ten months totaled $2,005,500,721, with all of the eight tax divisions showing declines. Income taxes led with a drop of $314,236,151 to a total of $1,537,073,532. Documentary stamp taxes came next with a decline of $26,862,113 to a total of $52,501,911. Tobacco taxes declined $5,023,947 to $363,968,338. Estate taxes dropped $9,179,446 to $40,294,196, distilled spirits tax fell off $1,225,693 to $8,681,880; collections under the prohibition law dropped $422,614 to $543,973; internal revenue collected by the customs service decreased $9,716 to $5,125, and miscellaneous internal revenue dropped $3,386,724 to $2,431,762.

Of the $1,537,073,532 income tax, corporations paid $836,006,203 and individuals $701,067,239. The former was a decrease of $131,405,658, as compared with the similar period of the previous year, and the latter a drop of $182,830,492.

Meanwhile, the Treasury deficit was announced as $984,268,517 on May 19, with but six weeks remaining in the fiscal year ending June 30. It appeared probable that extensive financing would have to be resorted to in order to raise necessary funds.

Shell Union Oil Has $21,000,000 Cash

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—J. G. Van Ech, president of the Shell Union Oil Corporation, told stockholders at their annual meeting today as of May 8 the company had liquid funds of $21,000,000, an increase of $2,000,000 since the end of March.

Mr. Van Ech explained, furthermore, that the company had effected economics which should result in large savings in expenses. "I expect that our operations this year will be several million dollars cheaper than they were in 1930," he said, adding that the current quarter will not show nearly as large a deficit as did the first quarter of 1931.

Mary and Doug Visitors To House of Commons

London, May 21 (A.P.).—Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks visited the House of Commons lobby tonight as guests of Prime Minister MacDonald's sons, Alastair and Malcolm, who were entertained by the film couple in America.

Hastings Hits Election Officials in Alabama

Wilmington, Del., May 21 (A.P.).—Senator Daniel O. Hastings, of Delaware, chairman of the Senate subcommittee conducting a recount of the ballots cast in the Bankhead-Heflin senatorial contest in Alabama last fall, today wired Senator John H. Bankhead that election officers had paid so little attention to the election laws that the recount should continue.

Senator Bankhead had wired Senator Hastings that the recount should be discontinued on the ground that no fraud had been shown. The Alabama senator in his telegram said the committee had agreed to discontinue the recount if no fraud were found in the first ten counties.

TAX SYSTEM CHANGE PROPOSED BY MILLS

Adjustment Is Urged Before Meeting Considering Federal Finances.

(Associated Press.)

New problems of financing the Government and America's position in international banking were discussed by Government officials yesterday before the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks.

Undersecretary Mills of the Treasury, said the present Government deficit raised the question of whether some of the war taxes had not been repealed or modified too rapidly. He added there was "no occasion for alarm unless it should appear that there is a real danger of a series of unbalanced budgets."

Mills advocated an adjustment of the revenue raising measures and predicted that Government expenditures as a whole would not be materially reduced because of expension demanded by the people.

Tax Adjustment Urged.

His speech was read by Assistant Secretary Ballantine, the Undersecretary being confined to his home by grippe.

Mills said the situation would be one of grave concern were it not for the abnormal conditions with expenditures swelled by emergency needs, and revenues depressed below the normal point.

"Insistnce on a balanced budget," he said, "is the one means that I know of compelling a government to live within its income and of making the people realize that if they desire to expand the services of the Government they must inevitably look to increased contributions in the form of taxes."

He urged that the tax system be adjusted so there would be no great variation between Government receipts and expenditures, and said the Treasury was endeavoring to find the answer.

Foreign Investments Are Heavy.

Grosvenor Jones, chief of the finance and investment division of the Commerce Department, told the 600 delegates there was a marked tendency to ascribe the delay in world economic recovery to the fact that "this country is lending and investing in foreign securities less freely" than before the 1929 stock market crash.

"Our critics forget," he said, "that many countries borrowed to the limit when the borrowing countries as well as this country were prosperous and foreign issues could be easily placed with the American investing public."

In addition to the war debts and short-term investment abroad, he said, Americans had invested more than $15,000,000,000 in foreign securities.

Chairman McFadden of the House banking committee predicted recovery would be a "long, hard pull" and expressed the hope that it would not be necessary for Congress to increase taxes, but that it would reduce Government expenses instead.

Federal Reserve System Scored.

The Pennsylvanian urged the bankers to maintain their independence of the Federal Reserve System, blaming it and certain business interests with responsibility for what he described as inflated securities values before the 1929 crash.

It would be dangerous, he said, to deal with the question of reducing wages at this time because of the psychological attitude of the public. He said surpluses held by big concerns should be distributed to stockholders and to employes in wages as a step toward stimulating business.

Decision on Competency Of Mrs. McHie Reserved

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—Supreme Court Justice Valente reserved decision today on an application to dismiss the petition of Mrs. Isabel McHie, of Baltimore, in which she asked to be adjudged competent to manage her $350,000 estate. The application for dismissal was filed by Stuart Janney, of Baltimore, and Dallas Townsend, of New York, who form the committee administering the estate.

Mrs. McHie, who escaped from a Baltimore institution several weeks ago, was declared incompetent upon an application signed by her mother, Mrs. Susan Mulhall, of Washington. Mrs. Mulhall told the court she did not know the nature of the petition she signed.

Runaway Girl, 15, Held Here for Her Mother

Mary E. Lynch, 15, of Forestville, Md., was taken into custody last night and held at the Eleventh Precinct for her mother, who claims that the girl ran away from home about two weeks ago. The mother reported her daughter missing Wednesday, and the girl was located yesterday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Sam Truitt, at 2211 Nichols avenue southeast.

The mother swore out a warrant for the girl before Judge William Naecker at Suitland for her return to Prince Georges County. The girl said that she had spent part of the two weeks with her sister and part of it in Oxon Hill.

Leopold Is Expelled Under Austrian Law

Vienna, May 21 (U.P.).—Archduke Leopold Salvator von Hapsburg has been expelled from Austria, it was said reliably today, because the laws of the republic authorize only the Hapsburgs who renounced their titles after the war to live in the country.

Leopold refused to renounce his title. Furthermore he has been reported active in support of the movement for restoration of the Hapsburgs on the throne in Hungary, claimed by Archduke Otto.

3,000 of Chicago's City Employes Out of Work

Chicago, May 21 (A.P.).—Three thousand city employes were temporarily jobless today. They were thrown out of work by a strike of street cleaners and truck drivers in the department of public works.

No definite reason for the walk-out was forthcoming. A report to Mayor Anton J. Cermak from the department said the truck owners and drivers objected to the supplanting of union laborers with nonunion.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

SHOUSE HITS HOOVER ON ECONOMIC POLICY

Democratic Head Blames President, Cabinet, Tariff for Trade Ills.

Baltimore, Md., May 21 (A.P.).—The "harmful optimism of the Cabinet" in the Hoover panic and Republican tariff policies were attacked here tonight by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee.

"I should like to give the Hoover administration and its spokesman credit for real progress," said Mr. Shouse, speaking over a radio hookup following a Democratic victory dinner at which Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, Senator Millard E. Tydings and Mayor Howard W. Jackson also spoke.

"Within the last few weeks they have come to admit two things—first, that there is a business depression, as they phrase it—I call it the Hoover panic—and second, that instead of only two or three millions of unemployed, as was persistently claimed over a period of many months, there are more than 6,000,000 unemployed today. It is progress to have finally an admission of basic facts, because obviously until the facts are admitted there can be no hope of correction."

Hoover Prediction Cited.

On March 8, 1930, said the Democratic chairman, "the President himself sent forth to the American people a most reassuring prediction. He said that the peak of unemployment had already been passed; that within a period of 60 days, making a specific prediction, business would be back on an even keel and steadily moving forward."

The election of Mayor Jackson on May 5, over a Republican opponent, was hailed by Gov. Ritchie.

"A Democratic majority in Baltimore of approximately 65,000 this spring, following a like Democratic majority last fall, and both following a large Republican majority in 1928, only two years before, means, I believe, that Baltimore is determined to join the rest of the country in putting an end to Republican mistakes and blunders and mismanagement in Washington, and to entrust our national affairs to the Democratic party in 1932."

Hope in Democrats Urged.

The Democratic party, said Mr. Shouse, "is the only instrumentality through which there can be substantial hope of any improvement of conditions for the ordinary struggling citizen of this republic. But that assertion does not mean that the Democratic party should not be fair to capital and labor alike.

"American business need not be afraid of a party that stands for progress. American business needs to be very much afraid of a party that stands for stagnation. American business has seen the result of the Republican tariff theories, carried to their logical conclusion. From the policy of protection it has gone to the extreme of embargo, and today, having sown to the wind, we are reaping the whirlwind.

"Our foreign trade is prostrate, our foreign markets are destroyed, retaliatory tariffs have been enacted by practically every nation with which we do business. In these circumstances American industry has come to recognize at last that progress—world progress, and progress alike that endeavors to assure the advancement and the betterment of our people—is as necessary to the development and the maintenance of American trade and American standards of living as it is to the rights of the common man."

Jersey Rate Plea Cites Virginia Port

Hampton Roads Conditions Held Similar at I. C. C. Freight Hearing.

New York, May 21 (A.P.).—Similarity between the New York-New Jersey port situation and that of the port of Hampton Roads, Virginia, was emphasized by Charles E. Bell, who testified today for New York in the New Jersey freight rate and lighterage hearing. The hearings, in which New Jersey seeks, among other things, lower freight rates, is in progress before Interstate Commerce Commission examiners.

The two port conditions, Mr. Bell testified, are identical except that the Hampton Roads grouping, which includes Newport News, Portsmouth and Norfolk, is confined to one State.

Norfolk, like New York, contains the bulk of the population, he pointed out. Both lighters and car floats are used to transport freight across Hampton Roads and the Elizabeth River, which separate the cities, he testified. The port is operated by a port authority created by the Legislature of Virginia.

Vawter, Acquitted Of Murder, Killed

Principal in Sensational Trial Loses Life in Laboratory Blast.

Richmond, Va., May 21 (A.P.).—Charles E. Vawter, fatally burned in an explosion in his laboratory in Philadelphia, was a principal in a noted Virginia trial, being acquitted in 1917 of a charge of murder for the killing of Stockton Heth. The killing occurred in Vawter's Blacksburg home and the trial at Christiansburg attracted widespread attention because of the prominence of the principals.

Heth, a nephew of former Gov. Roge Tyler, was shot to death the night of March 13, 1917, after Vawter had accused him of forcing attentions on Mrs. Vawter.

Vawter claimed that Heth, a much larger man, had assaulted him before he fired. Vawter was acquitted after a nine-day trial.

Vawter was born at Emory, Va., in 1877, the son of Capt. and Mrs. Charles E. Vawter. He was educated at the University of Virginia and immediately began teaching as an assistant professor of mathematics and physics at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. He became professor of mathematics two years later.

He was married to Rachael Henderson in 1902 and they had two children at the time of the Heth shooting in 1917.

HEARING IS PLANNED ON PUGLISI APPEAL

Arlington County Zoning Body Orders Public Meeting Next Thursday.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 309. Clarendon, Va.

Notices went out yesterday from the office of the chairman of the Arlington County zoning appeal board, J. Hammond Brewer, for a special public meeting to be held the evening of May 28 at the courthouse.

According to the notice, the meeting is being held for the purpose of considering an appeal filed with the board by Charles Puglisi through his attorney, Thomas W. Phillips, from a decision of the directing engineer, C. L. Kinnier, in connection with an application for permission to construct a residence addition to his present store building located in Livingstone Heights, Arlington County.

The grounds for the appeal as filed by Attorney Phillips are:

1. That the circumstances surrounding this proposed construction constitute a special exception to the terms of the ordinance of such a nature that the permit should be granted.

2. That the circumstances surrounding this proposed construction constitute a specific case where a variance from the terms of the ordinance will not be contrary to the public interest and that a literal enforcement of the provisions of the ordinance will result in unnecessary hardship.

3. That the permit applied for is within the spirit of the ordinance and consistent with substantial justice.

Mrs. Martha Rauh was elected president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Cherrydale School at the meeting last night in the school auditorium. Other officers are Mrs. Edward Janson, first vice president; Miss Elizabeth Beale, second vice president; Mrs. Louise Peck, treasurer; Mrs. Elsie Fitts, secretary; Mrs. Hugh Reid, parliamentarian, and Mrs. Harriet Wismer, historian. The newly elected officers were installed by the junior past president, Mrs. Rachel Tabor.

The association was presented with a certificate from the National Congress of Parents and Teachers for having completed the summer roundup last year and a notice was read from the Virginia Congress of Parents and Teachers stating that the Cherrydale School had made the highest percentage in the State for this work.

Concluding the business meeting a musical program was presented by the newly organized Glee Club of the school, under the direction of Mrs. Arthur Phillips.

The Arlington Rotary Club held its weekly luncheon meeting yesterday at the Washington Golf and Country Club.

The club had as its guests, Dr. Frank Ballou, superintendent of public school instruction of the District of Columbia, and William Radcliffe, past president of the Washington Rotary Club.

Horace Crosson, 17 years old, of Cherrydale, is in the Emergency Hospital, Washington, suffering from a compound fracture of the right arm and severe cuts on the right leg as the result of a collision between the milk truck on which he was riding and a machine said to have been operated by William Gessford, on the Wilson boulevard near the Woodrow Wilson School Building early yesterday morning.

The truck on which Crosson was riding was said to have been operated by W. H. Corbin. Both drivers escaped injury.

Crosson's condition was said to be improved at the hospital last night.

A warrant charging Edwin Brockwell and Morris Lenox, both of Washington, with criminal assault on Mrs. Mary Flood, 20 years old, also of Washington, on Tuesday night, was dismissed by Police Judge Harry R. Thomas after hearing the testimony behind closed doors yesterday.

Ginger Ale Stolen From Store.

Omer W. Prendoff, division superintendent for the Sanitary Grocery Co., yesterday reported to police that one of the company's branch stores, at 1211 Fourth street northeast, was entered early yesterday and several cases of ginger ale valued at $10, were stolen. He told police that the store was entered by breaking the glass from a transom over the front door.

St. Paul's Church Society Sponsoring Tour With Luncheon and Tea.

Public Places on List Include Ramsay House and the Blue Door.

Many homes in Alexandria will be opened to the public tomorrow from 10 to 12 noon and 2 to 5 p. m., when the Rector's Aid Society of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will sponsor a tour of historic and modern homes, although none will be under 50 years old. Two members of the society will receive the visitors at each home, and the admission fee will be paid at the first home visited, the visitor receiving a card of admission to the remainder.

During the noon recess a luncheon will be served in St. Paul's Church parish hall by the members of Section B of that church, and the day will end in a tea at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Robert South Barrett, 404 Duke street, where the wonderful life-size portrait of the late Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, the second national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, will be seen. This painting is a replica of the one made for the National American Legion Auxiliary and hung in headquarters at Indianapolis and has only been received by her son, Dr. Robert South Barrett, within the last few months and has only been viewed at a small private showing.

This portrait and also the home of the late Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, 408 Duke street, adjoining that of her son, which will be open, will be of particular interest to all legionnaires and auxiliary members. The home of Dr. Barrett was also at one time occupied by Richard Bland Lee, brother of "Light Horse" Harry Lee. The adjoining home, 404 Duke street, was built by Capt. William Lambert, who was in the naval forces during the Revolution.

The list of places open that day includes the home of J. H. Crilly, 607 Cameron street, built by Thomas, the ninth Lord Fairfax; Robert Forsythe Downham's home, southeast corner Washington and Oronoco streets, erected shortly after the Revolution, and at one time the home of Townsend Fendall; the home of Arthur H. Bryant, northwest corner of Washington and Oronoco, which was the residence of Benjamin Hallowell, who established the first school in Alexandria. In the spring of 1825 Robert E. Lee attended this school while preparing for entrance to West Point, and lived in the adjoining house, with his mother, Mrs. Ann Hill Carter Lee.

Gen. Lafayette was entertained at 301 south St. Asaph street, on the occasion of his last visit to America, in 1825, which is now the home of Miss Cora Smoot; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cael will open one of the most interesting houses in the city, the Dr. William Brown home, at 212 south Fairfax street, where a room that had been closed for over 60 years was recently uncovered. Dr. Brown and Dr. Elisha Dick were physicians to Gen. Washington, and nearby at 209 Prince street is the home of Dr. Dick, now occupied by Mrs. Fina M. Howell; the home of Col. and Mrs. Charles B. Moore is at 207 Prince street, and also has an historic connection; Mrs. Marie E. Smoot, 121 Prince street, will open the house she has restored in the original part of Alexandria, or Bellhaven, as also will Ward Brown, architect, of Washington, at 123 Prince street.

Mrs. Clarence C. Leadbeater now lives in a beautiful place, although not of Revolutionary history, but that of the Southern Confederacy, 414 North Washington street, the home of the late Gen. Montgomery Corse, C. S. A.

Public places that may be visited in this tour because of their never failing interest are the old Ramsay house, the home of William Ramsay, one of the founders of Alexandria; Gadsby's Tavern, the Blue Door, a quaint frame dwelling located at 708 Wolfe street, and now owned by Miss Anne Lewis Jones; Old Corners, at 523 South Washington street, recently purchased by A. W. Higgins.

This tour is the first of its kind in Alexandria and the opportunity to see the interior of many of these historic houses owned by private individuals and ordinarily only open to their intimates is an unusual one.

Dr. Osborn Named Dental Examiner.

Dr. Harry E. Osborn yesterday was appointed a member of the Board of Dental Examiners of the District of Columbia by the District Commissioners. He will replace Dr. Thomas J. Rice.

ALABAMA ACCLAIMS BANNER DESIGNER

Action Renews Controversy Over Stars and Bars of Confederacy.

Montgomery, Ala., May 21 (A.P.).—The State of Alabama has backed up its contention that Nicola Marschall, a native son, designed the first Confederate flag by an official act and will unveil a tablet to his memory at the Confederate reunion here June 2-5.

The controversy over the designing of the Stars and Bars has bobbed up at intervals since shortly after the close of the war between the States. Last year a tablet honoring Maj. Orrin Smith, of Louisburg, N. C., as the designer, was unveiled at the national convention of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, at Asheville, N. C.

The recognition of Marschall became official in Alabama yesterday when Gov. B. M. Miller signed a resolution passed by the Legislature on the recommendation of a committee named to determine the origin of the flag. Part of the evidence uncovered in the Alabama department of archives and history was taken from the work of Mrs. Chappell Cory, of Birmingham, who contended the claim of Maj. Smith was not made until he was 80 years old and then during a serious illness.

Marschall lived at Marion, Ala., after completing art studies in Austria and Mrs. Cory's version said he was invited to design the flag by Mrs. Napoleon Lockhart, a neighbor. He also was credited with designing uniforms worn by the Confederate soldiers.

Regardless of the claims, Miss Jessica Randolph Smith, of Washington, daughter of Maj. Smith, will be the official color bearer, and a new Confederate flag, ordered by Gov. Miller today, will wave above the Capitol during the reunion.

North Carolina Leader Says Matter Settled

Burlington, N. C., May 21 (A.P.).—Maj. Orrin Smith, of North Carolina, and not Nicola Marschall, of Alabama, has been recognized by the United Daughters of the Confederacy as designer of the original Confederate flag, Mrs. J. Dolph Long, former president of the State division, said here today.

Mrs. Long said that recognition of Marschall by the General Assembly of Alabama was in direct contradiction of the official action taken by the United Daughters of the Confederacy, the United Sons of the Confederacy and the United Confederate Veterans.

While president of the North Carolina division Mrs. Long presented evidence to the national convention at Hot Springs, Ark., in 1925, and at the same time Alabama women presented their claims that Marschall was the designer of the first "Stars and Bars."

An investigation committee headed by Mrs. St. John Lawton, of Charleston, S. C., heard the matter, Mrs. Long said, and recognized Smith. Later on the convention floor Smith was accorded official recognition by a formal vote of the convention, she said.

As evidence of the recognition of Smith by the national body, Mrs. Long recalled that the national organization last year at Asheville unveiled a tablet to the memory of Smith which was erected by the North Carolina division.

Maj. Smith lived at Raleigh and Henderson. Marschall lived at Marion, Ala.

The controversy over which man designed the first flag was debated at many national conventions, Mrs. Long said, until Smith was recognized at the Hot Springs convention meeting and had not been mentioned on the floor of a convention since that time.

U.S.S. Richmond Bound For Duty in Honduras

Norfolk, Va., May 21 (A.P.).—The U. S. S. Richmond, one of the cruisers attached to the scouting fleet, arrived at the naval base here this morning from New York on her way to Honduras. She loaded airplanes and stores and sailed at noon.

The Richmond was ordered to Honduras on special duty in connection with the efforts of the American Government to protect Americans and their property. She will relieve the cruiser Marblehead.

CUT IN ALEXANDRIA EXPENSES URGED

Council Begins Considering Chamber of Commerce's Reduction Plea.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The city council yesterday received and took under consideration a communication from the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce recommending that the council take steps to reduce the expenses of administration of the city's affairs and to promote efficiency in the various departments. The commerce body also asked the council to urge property owners on improved streets to beautify their grounds and improve the general appearance of their property in anticipation of the bicentennial celebration in 1932. This is in line with a proclamation recently issued by Mayor Edmund F. Ticer.

Attorney Charles Henry Smith appeared before the council in protest against a recent ordinance directing removal of a gasoline filling station on the 100 block South Washington street, operated by J. Frank Carlin. Mr. Smith was advised that the removal of this station, which is on the curb, is necessary on account of the construction of the Mount Vernon boulevard on Washington street, and the necessary narrowing of the sidewalk, and that the council is not disposed to rescind its action.

Mayor Ticer, who is vice chairman of the trustees having charge of the fund received for the sale of the gas plant, transmitted to the council, to be included in its sinking fund, $16,780 from the gas fund, to complete the payment of the 1931 interest on the municipal bonds of the issues of 1902, 1908 and 1916, outstanding as of December 31 this year, the trustees having been instructed to pay this interest which amounted in all to $25,500. A partial payment of this interest had already been made by the trustees.

Mayor Ticer said receipts from license fees have been considerably less than at this time last year, there being a shortage of some 700 automobile licenses, 20 truck licenses, and 200 general licenses. The city manager was directed to take steps to have these collections made as promptly as possible.

The Ford Motor Co. was granted permission to use the vacant lot on the 1600 block King street to hold an automobile show May 28 and 29.

Councilman Michael T. Dwyer introduced resolutions providing for street improvements on Wolfe street between Alfred and Columbus streets and on Montgomery street between Washington and Columbus streets, which were received and held for future consideration.

Samuel T. Park, of Alexandria, was elected State president of the Order of Fraternal Americans at the annual convention in Winchester Wednesday. Other Alexandrians honored were James R. Mansfield, elected secretary, and Col. John H. Trimyer, treasurer. Col. Trimyer also was named national representative.

Alexandria has been chosen as the meeting place for the thirty-seventh annual convention of the Virginia State Federation of Labor next May.

Maj. Julia C. Stimson, chief of nurses, U. S. Army, will address graduates of the Alexandria Hospital nursing course next Thursday night at graduation exercises in the auditorium of the Virginia Public Service Co. There will be four graduates: Miss Mary L. Hitt, Miss Nellie L. Reading, Miss Callie L. Yeatts and Miss Virginia H. Grimth.

Mayor Edmund F. Ticer was principal speaker at the weekly luncheon yesterday in the George Mason Hotel of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club, his subject being, "The Tax Dollar." Mayor Ticer was introduced by Elliott F. Hoffman, past president of the Kiwanians.

Two new automobiles were turned over to the police department yesterday for use in patroling outlying districts.

James Whitfield Thomas, 67 years old, for the last ten years employed as a rate clerk at the Potomac freight yards, died suddenly Wednesday night at his apartment at 504 Prince street. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Marie Thomas; a daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, of Cleveland, Ohio, and a son, Floyd W. Thomas, of Columbia, S. C. He was a native of Augusta, Ga., and a members of the Masonic lodge there.

Robert H. Hutchinson, 83 years old, a Confederate veteran, and retired railroad employe, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Pettit, 1408 Duke street. He was a native of Loudoun County, Va. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Mary Pettit and Mrs. Nellie Vermillion, of Alexandria, and four sons, Daniel Hutchinson, of Washington, Robert, William and John Hutchinson, of Alexandria.

The funeral will take place at 9:30 o'clock tomorrow morning from St. Mary's Catholic Church, and burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Ross Declares Equal Representation Leaves Much Desired.

Landover, Md., May 21 (A.P.).—Nellie Tayloe Ross, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, said today that while her party had been first to give women equal representation in national organization, "there is yet much to be desired in emulating that example" in local units.

To the United Women's Democratic Clubs of Maryland Mrs. Ross voiced "a deep conviction that, generally speaking, all over the country they (men) have failed to give due cognizance to the fact that we have entered upon a new era, when women in politics, as in most other fields of endeavor, constitute an incalculable source of strength."

Mrs. Ross called upon her listeners to keep before them the object of getting certain definite principles applied to problems of government. She urged particularly separation of social and party relations.

AIRINGS OF CHURCH SCANDALS FAVORED

Catholic Editors' Fearless Frankness Is Urged in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Md., May 21 (A.P.).—A policy of fearless frankness in dealing with all moral and theological questions and a policy of treating truthfully all scandals in connection with the church were advocated here today by the Rev. James M. Gillis, of New York, editor of the Catholic World.

Father Gillis spoke to the editors and publishers of Catholic papers throughout the United States and Canada who are attending the convention of the Catholic Press Association.

"Our Catholic editorial ethics are awry," he said. "We are too timid, editorially, to discuss and solve problems which our readers have a right to expect us to discuss and solve. We have an excessive fear of scandal and lag behind England and Ireland in dealing with these things. The main duty as an editor, as well as a historian, is to tell the truth. What God has permitted to happen, man may be permitted to know."

Efforts are being made to drive irresponsible persons out of the circulation field of Catholic magazines, the Rev. Francis P. Lebuffe, business manager of America, published in New York, told the association.

Father Lebuffe, chairman of the circulation vigilance committee of the association, said on the credentials of approved sales persons the seal of the committee has been placed so prospective subscribers may know the solicitors are trustworthy.

Approximately 100 editors, business managers and others attended the opening sessions of the annual convention. Benedict Elder, of Louisville, is president of the association.

Negro Representation Voted at Diocesan Meeting in Charlottesville.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., May 21.—The council of the diocese of Virginia, at its closing session this afternoon, voted to allow colored representation in that body on the same basis as the white clergy and laity.

Decision to grant Negroes equal rights with whites on the floor of the council, met with no opposition. Indications this morning pointed to a spirited debate, but action was taken by practically a unanimous vote. All of the addresses made were favorable.

Dr. G. MacLaren Brydon, of Richmond, for eight years secretary of the council and who is in charge of the work among colored pebple in the diocese, was the chief proponent of the change in the canon.

The council registered its unanimous opposition to the new proposed canon on marriage and divorce, which provides, among other things, that the marriage of divorced persons may be recognized, if performed outside of Episcopal churches.

Delegates to Oppose Change.

Delegates to the general convention, which meets in Denver in September, were instructed to vote against the proposed change.

The council adopted a resolution urging support of efforts now being made to better the condition of women workers in factories by providing for a 50-hour week and eliminating night work and commended the appointment of a new children's code commission. The statistician's report showed a total of 20,254 communicants, 144 church schools with an enrollment of 14,005 and 516 parish organizations with a membership of 15,424. Total receipts for past year, $777,703.87; disbursements, $747,017.96. Church property was valued at $5,854,993. Baptisms during year, 977; confirmations, 960; marriages, 361; burials, 631.
